ALLIES ARE READY TO COMPEL TURKS TO ACCEPT TREATY

Foch Says Army of 300,000 May Be Needed—200,000 Men in Turkey Now.

TREATY DRAFT COMPLETED

San Remo Conference Transfers Asia Minor Provinces to Allies as a Whole.

GERMAN PLEA FOR ARMY

Requests Allies to Permit Force of 200,000 with Whole General Staff Retained.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAN REMO, April 21.—Having virtually completed the draft of the Turkish treaty, the allied Premiers are having trouble in deciding how to enforce it. It is admitted on all sides that the treaty cannot be put into effect without the use of force. Already allied soldiers are sitting on the Sultan's doorstep in Constantinople and British officers are telling him how to rule.

But in Anatolia Mustapha Kemal pays no attention to the Sultan's orders, even when they are countersigned by General Milne, and goes on his way with his independent Government. Nationalist forces are occupying Armenia, which the treaty purposes to make independent, and must be put out if the treaty is to be enforced. Emir Feisal has made himself King of Syria and is asking the French troops to go home, while his brother, as the newly proclaimed King of Mesopotamia, invites the British also to be gone.

All this is against the provisions of the treaty as drawn. How the Allies are to get the armed forces to make Mustapha Kemal behave himself, to persuade Emir Feisal that he is not as powerful as some other nations' Prime Ministers and to send the young King of Mesopotamia back to the court of his father is the big Turkish problem.

Discussed Policing Dardanelles.

It is announced that this morning the conferees discussed the policing of the Turkish Straits, and so they did; but that was a small part of the business considered, the important matter being the shaking of the big stick at Turkey. It is unlikely that the affair will be settled here, as the Premiers are to meet again in Paris on May 5.

Marshal Foch reported that it would take 300,000 men and a fleet to put the Turkish treaty into effect. The British have not that many troops available, or anything near that number, nor have the French, and the guns of the fleet cannot reach Kemal's inland headquarters.

There is evidence of strained feeling between the French and British regarding Turkey. The French would like to make terms with Mustapha Kemal. They think that would be the easiest and cheapest way out of an awkward situation. But the British will not hear of it. They suggest that pressure be brought to bear on the Sultan to make him force Kemal to heel. The French reply to that is that the Sultan can be pressed until he is flat, but Kemal simply does not care a rap.

The French also feel that, although in theory French, British and Italians are all on an equal footing in Constantinople, in actual fact it is a different state of affairs, with Great Britain looming very large and France and Italy in far too modest a background.

The Premiers decided today that the final disposition of the territories sliced off from the Turkish Empire should be made at some later date and put a clause into the treaty to that effect. Turkey will be simply called upon to renounce sovereignty over these sections in favor of the Allies. That is how the Allies dealt with Fiume in shaping the Austrian treaty.

The territories in this category are Armenia, Mesopotamia, Cilicia, Syria, Palestine, Georgia and Azerbaijan. Chief importance naturally attaches to Mesopotamia, Syria and Cicilia, as well as Arabia. They are to be left as a field for exploitation, politically and economically, and the best man will win. France and England are the two nations most interested.

Having found a dismal disparity of views and lively mutual suspicion among the Allies, the Premiers decided to leave the problem of Asia Minor for solution at a more propitious time.

There was a long discussion on Kurdistan today. It was decided to leave it to the Turks for two years, at the end of which it is to be turned over to the League of Nations, which, it is hoped, will then be able to exercise the mandate it cannot assume today because it lacks all means of action.

The disposition of Smyrna has not been definitely settled, although it remains only a question as to the regime under which the Greeks shall hold it.

The Italians seem to be sure of the southern coast of Anatolia, with its hinterland as a zone of influence.

Generally speaking, the conference at San Remo is not getting along well. For four days the Premiers have been discussing Turkey without accomplishing much, and the Russian and German situations remain to be taken up. The Adriatic problem will probably not be discussed here, since the Premiers will depart on Saturday, and Nitti has had

Belgium to Send Mission To Ask Hoover's Aid on Loan

BRUSSELS, April 21.—The Belgian Government has decided to send a special financial mission to the United States to endeavor to obtain the intervention of Herbert Hoover in favor of a new Belgian loan. The delegates are Florimond Hankar, Director of the National Bank of Belgium, and Emil Franqui, Director of the Société Générale.

It was decided to appoint the mission after the refusal of a new loan by the American syndicate with which Belgium contracted for a 9 per cent. loan under the obligation that she would contract no other loan in the United States without the intervention of this syndicate.

5TH AV. WON'T SEE OVERALL PARADE

COMPROMISE ON BROADWAY

Leaders Expect More Than 10,000 in Saturday's Demonstration Against High Prices.

Because of a protest by the Fifth Avenue Association, the overall and economy parade next Saturday morning has been barred from the avenue.

Members of the Cheese Club, who are organizing the demonstration, and Aaron Rachofsky, veteran of Liberty Loan pageants, who is arranging it, were indignant at the merchants and were inclined to regard their protest as an overt effort to head off a drive which might be expected to prove particularly unpopular with sellers of high priced goods. A spokesman of the organization, however, said the protest was inspired only by the unwillingness of merchants along the avenue to have business tied up by a parade and that it had become a regular custom of the organization to protest against every march proposed for the avenue.

The protest was successful with Police Commissioner Enright and Mayor Hylan because the association backed it up by calling attention to an old ordinance, as well as an old police regulation, which forbids the holding of parades in congested thoroughfares if the merchants thereon object.

Mayor Hylan made known to Mr. Rachofsky and a Cheese Club committee which visited him with Commissioner Enright the decision to forbid the marchers to use the avenue, but he softened the blow by adding:

Will Use Broadway.

"I'll tell you, boys, what I'll do. I'll split fifty-fifty with you by giving you part of Broadway."

This offer was accepted and the Mayor was invited to don the overalls he is said once to have worn when employed in a humbler capacity than that of Chief Executive of the metropolis and to head the parade. Mr. Hylan declared he would be delighted thus to lend encouragement to the fight against prohibitive prices for necessities, but explained he could not do so because he would not be in the city.

This route for the parade then was agreed upon: Start at Columbus Circle at 11 o'clock, march down Eighth Avenue to Twenty-third Street, thence east to Broadway and north to the Circle, where a mass meeting will be held and pledge cards will be distributed to those who wish to commit themselves to overalls, calico frocks, old or patched clothing, dinner pails or any other direct drive against the high cost of living.

Mr. Rachofsky was so much encouraged by the number of volunteers for the parade that he predicted a column of at least 10,000, adding that the city had manifested such a volume of sentiment in favor of an active warfare of economy and self-denial that there might even be 50,000. In order to maintain the earnest character of the affair and discourage those who would use it solely for advertising purposes, it was decided to permit organizations to do no more than carry signs indicative of their identity.

Appeal to the President.

Walter J. Kingsley, Chairman of the Parade Committee, made an effort last night to get the indorsement for the movement of both President Wilson and Governor Smith. To the President he sent this telegram:

"The Cheese Club is holding a monster economy and thrift parade here Saturday. Please send an expression of opinion that will make this a nation-wide movement."

The telegram to the Governor carried the identic wording, except that the word "State" was substituted for "nation."

Among the parade recruits yesterday were Erasmus Hall, Brooklyn, high school students, Columbia freshmen and the Arnold Toynbee House Settlement of 311 East Broadway, which also announced that persons dressed in denim or calico would be admitted free to its benefit in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory Saturday night.

The Broadway Country Club of Flushing, Queens, reduced the price of its dance May 1 to one-half for those who array themselves appropriately to support the "revolt" against high prices. A movement was started to have a regulars' Overall Day in Flushing May 1.

The Freeholders of Newton, N. J., appeared yesterday wearing overalls. The first one who weakens and returns to woolens is to forfeit $10 to the others. Plainfield, N. J., indorsed the movement, wives of the Netherwood Residents' Association agreeing to follow the men in dressing more heavily. Students at the Ridgewood High School agreed to wear old clothes, but not overalls, lest they put up the price for workingmen.

SPEAKER SWEET BLOCKS DEFEAT OF FARE BILLS

Forces Adjournment of Assembly Before Final Vote on Jenks Measures Is Reached.

DEMOCRATS DENOUNCE ACT

Some City Republicans Join in Protest, but Are Overridden by Steam Roller.

TWO WELFARE BILLS PASS

Democrats in Senate Win Enough Republican Votes to Overcome Attempt at Delay.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 21.—Facing almost certain defeat, Speaker Sweet and the majority leader, Simon L. Adler, run the Republican steam roller over the Assembly tonight and forced adjournment and postponement of action on the Jenks' increased fare bills, after nearly five hours of debate. The adjournment was forced over objection of the Democratic members and some of the New York City Republicans, who refused to be a party to the majority "riding the bills over" under the dictatorship of Speaker Sweet.

The action, taken while a bill was still under consideration, was called by one member the boldest ever attempted in the Assembly.

Forced by apparent defection from the Republican ranks, due to a speech by Assemblyman George N. Jesse, a New York Republican, who declared the measures "political" and not in the interest of the people, but intended to help in the manipulating of traction stocks, the Speaker applied the steam roller.

After attacking the measures for an hour and a half, Mr. Jesse was interrupted by Mr. Adler and he then announced that "Mr. Adler wants to adjourn until tomorrow and postpone further consideration of the bills."

Protests Against Delay.

The minority leader, Charles D. Donohue, jumped to his feet.

"I must object to any postponement of this legislation at this time," he said. "Such action can serve no good purpose."

Mr. Donohue declared that the House lacked authority to entertain a motion for adjournment when a measure was being discussed on the order of final passage. He was supported by Assemblymen Cuvillier and Ullman, but Speaker Sweet ruled against them. Mr. Cuvillier appealed from the decision but the Speaker refused to put the appeal before the House, and to cut off further talk, Mr. Adler moved adjournment—a motion which was not debatable.

Another circumstance which some legislators declared "bold" and "raw" was the distribution while the debate was on among members of a pamphlet on "Service-at-cost franchises in effect in America," written by Harlow Clark, editor of a magazine published by the American Electrical Railway Association. It had been printed as a legislative document at the State's expense. It contained 177 pages, and was ordered printed under a resolution of Senator Walters, passed about noon today. Printing of ordinary legislative bills takes the State Printer ten days in some instances. Printing of the traction pamphlet was effected in three or four hours.

No one had spoken in support of the measures up to the time of the forced adjournment. The Assembly will meet again at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning, when debate will be resumed.

WELFARE MEASURES WIN.

Senate Democrats with Some Republicans Push Two Through.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 21.—Advocates of women welfare legislation won victories in both branches of the Legislature today.

In the Senate they forced to final passage over the head of J. Henry Walters, President pro tem., the Eight-hour Day bill and the Minimum Wage Commission bill, affecting women and minors in industrial employment. In the Assembly, in the face of vigorous opposition from Speaker Sweet, they defeated the Betts bill, repealing a provision in the Labor Law under which the working hours of women now are limited to not more than fifty-four in any one week.

In the Senate a tense situation was caused by the apparent desire of Senator Walters to avert, through a trick motion, action on the two bills, in violation of pledges to Democratic Senators who were anxious to have the measures debated. His plan was defeated by James J. Walker, the minority leader, who forced a vote.

The Democratic minority had the Republican majority at its mercy, as the only alternatives who were carrying on business by unanimous consent or going into the order of motions and resolutions when the Democrats could and would have moved wholesale to discharge committees not only from consideration of the welfare bills but of other measures that the Republicans are holding in committee. Walters chose the least of the two difficulties and so the welfare bills won.

The Eight-hour bill was passed by a vote of 32 to 17. Eleven Republicans deserted the Senate leaders and voted with the Democrats for the bill. The bill creating a minimum wage commission was passed by a vote of 31 to 18. Ten Republican votes were recorded for this bill.

In the Assembly the defeat of the Betts bill, which would remove from the labor law all restrictions for the safeguarding of women in industrial employment, was accomplished by a vote of 78 to 51.

All the Democrats and Majority Leader Adler, Miss Marguerite L. Smith and other Democrats voted against the bill. Assemblyman Adler asserted passage of the measure would involve the breakdown of the labor law.

Four Hundred Vermont Women Urge Governor To Call Legislature to Ratify Suffrage

Special to The New York Times.

MONTPELIER, Vt., April 21.—Four hundred women, members of the Vermont Equal Franchise League, assembled in this city this afternoon and paraded in the rain to the State House, where they made an appeal to Governor Percival W. Clement to convene a special session of the Legislature to vote on ratification of the Federal suffrage amendment. The delegates, according to the officers, represented all except two counties in the State, and petitions were presented to the Governor along with impassioned appeals.

Governor Clement previously had announced that two of his objections to the calling of a session were the question of the validity of the ratification by the Legislature without a referendum vote of the people and the expense to be incurred, these objections were disposed of by the women and strong arguments presented in favor of a session, for which the women have been working since last June.

At the conclusion of the demonstration Governor Clement said he did not care to make a decision at present.

"I have not been at any time opposed to suffrage," the Governor said, "and have taken no position on that question. Whenever the State of Vermont shall pass upon that question, in whatever the State decides to do we all shall acquiesce."

It is expected that the General's decision—which probably will be accepted as final by the suffragists—will be announced the last of the week. Should the Legislature convene ratification would ensure within two days, because both House and Senate are almost unanimously in favor of it.

STEAL $75,000 GEMS FROM MRS. FISH

Burglars Plunder Fifth Avenue Home, Police List of Booty Reveals.

MYSTERY VEILS BURGLARY

Hamilton Fish Refuses to Affirm or Deny Loss—Pawnbrokers Are Warned.

A list of stolen jewelry, estimated as worth $75,000, was sent to the police yesterday. Much mystery was thrown about the case, but the list and admissions by the police indicated that the jewelry was stolen from the home of Mrs. Hamilton Fish, at 810 Fifth Avenue, some time last Saturday. The police sent copies of the list broadcast among pawnbrokers.

Detectives at the East Sixty-seventh Street Police Station said they had heard nothing of the case, and at the Detective Division at Police Headquarters the only available information was that the list sent to pawnbrokers consisted of jewelry stolen from one house on April 17. Mr. Fish refused to confirm or deny the robbery, and when he was acquainted last night with the facts in the possession of THE NEW YORK TIMES said, "Draw your own conclusions."

Mrs. Fish, who was Miss Florence Delaplaine, married Gustave Amsinck in 1905, after the death of her first husband, James Beekman. After Mr. Amsinck's death, she was married to Mr. Fish, former Assistant Secretary of the Treasury and Congressman, in 1912, at her home, 810 Fifth Avenue.

Among the jewelry listed is a black leather purse with two diamonds set on the outside in enamel. The inside is marked, according to the police, "G. Amsinck, 22 East Forty-seventh Street or 810 Fifth Avenue." Other marked articles listed are a pair of cuff links initialed "G. A." and a black silk purse with a silver rim on which is engraved "F. F."

For the first time in many months the police have furnished to pawnbrokers a description of stolen jewelry, apparently not content in this case to await the daily reports of articles pawned which money lenders are required to make.

Among the stolen articles were:

Bar pin, platinum, 1 inch long, leaf design, about 18 small diamonds, 5 small pearls set in leaves.

Lorgnette, platinum, about 18 diamonds in handle, each about ¼ carat (blue leather jewel case).

Lorgnette, platinum, folding, set in diamonds, flower design, both sides of handle, diamonds ¼ carat each.

Bar pin, platinum, 3 inches long, set in diamonds and sapphires alternating, about 18 stones in all.

Gold or platinum bracelet, set with about 20 cabochon emeralds and diamonds and with pearls suspended at the clasp.

Gold bracelet set with four emeralds and five diamonds alternating, each about one-half carat.

Gold bracelet, set with nine sapphires, each about one-half carat.

Gold and platinum brooch, cabochon emeralds, larger than five-cent pieces, surrounded with filigree work with a large number of diamonds, three small loops of diamonds at bottom.

Wrist watch, platinum, Cartier (Paris) make, one diamond in stem, case No. 11207-2350, scratch number on case B023, a ligne platinum extension bracelet watch about size of a ten-cent piece.

Breast pin, platinum, and black watered silk ribbon, set with large number of diamonds, each about one-thirty-second of a karat.

Platinum links, moonstone surrounded by small diamonds.

Gold scarf pin, row of five small diamonds with small dark pearl at end.

Mrs. Fish's home, which was left to her by Mr. Amsinck, her second husband, is a large, four-story brick house on the north corner of Fifth Avenue and East Sixty-second Street. It is protected by a high iron railing along the street sides and barred windows in the basement. The police would not offer any theories as to the manner in which thieves could have entered the house. No. 811 Fifth Avenue, the house adjoining to the north, owned by Francis L. Loring, at present is unoccupied, and doors and windows are boarded over. On the Sixty-second Street side there is a fire-escape leading from a two-story addition to the rear of the Fish home into the area next to John Drexel's city home at 1 East Sixty-second Street.

"I have nothing to say," Mr. Fish said at first to a TIMES reporter last night.

"But, Mr. Fish, only a few outside of those who committed the robbery know how it happened."

"I know nothing."

"Among the list of stolen goods is a purse containing your address, 810 Fifth Avenue."

"Well, then, draw your own conclusions."

"THE NEW YORK TIMES has a copy of the list given by the police to pawnbrokers, Mr. Fish."

"As I said before, you must draw your own conclusions. I read THE TIMES every morning, and tomorrow will be no exception."

STOCKS SLUMP, COMMODITIES FALL

Worst Break Since Credit Became Strained Sends Prices Tumbling.

Speculative Securities and Liberty Bonds Decline—Cotton, Grain, Provisions Down.

The present strained credit situation now obtaining throughout the world found reflection yesterday in virtually all financial markets, and prices for both securities and commodities suffered what probably was the worst concerted decline experienced thus far. On the Stock Exchange the highly speculative industrial stocks fell abruptly for losses which ranged to 40 points or more, while even the so-called "standard issues," the securities of the substantial and representative railroads and industrial concerns like the United States Steel Corporation, were heavy. Liberty bonds, too, were very heavy, declining from 1 per cent. to nearly 3 per cent. on the day to levels which showed losses from the prices of last week of 1½ to 6¾ points. On the local Cotton Exchange quotations were sensationally weak, and at Chicago the Board of Trade market for grains and provisions tumbled badly in the last hour.

No immediate development occurred to account for the pronounced weakness. In most places it was believed that the trouble was cumulative; that it simply reflected a condition which had been in the making for some time past, and even the origin of yesterday's declines was hard to trace. It was difficult to say whether the general selling movement started in New York or at some interior point. The stock market did show the first signs of uneasiness, but it could not be determined definitely whether this was brought about by local operators or was the result of selling orders coming in over wires from other cities.

The Japanese Situation.

Nothing of consequence developed with regard to the Japanese situation. The fall in sterling exchange was said to have been caused by sales of sterling bills here by Japanese interests who were adopting this method of transferring some of their London balances to New York and this gave rise to the report that Japan might draw upon the American gold supply. However, Japanese bankers in this city do not believe that either the Japanese Government or the Bank of Japan is anxious to take gold from us at the present time, and, they point out, even if they did desire to do so, the present quotation for Japanese exchange would make the operation very expensive. Japanese balances in the United States and Great Britain are estimated to be in the neighborhood of $550,000,000, about evenly divided between New York and London. Until recently the amount held here for Japanese account considerably exceeded the amount held abroad, but the increased Japanese demand for American goods has cut down the balances here to some extent. One explanation given yesterday for the transferring of funds from London to New York was that the Japs contemplate further extensive purchases here and are preparing for the contingency.

So far as the influence of the local stock market was concerned, that was very decided. The cotton market started the day fairly strong and moved up in the first hour or so, and the Chicago market was irregular but with no great display of weakness until stock prices had gone well on their way toward declines. This movement, which reached its greatest force in the early part of the last hour of business, carried all before it, taking the other markets with it. There was a slight recovery at the close, and brokers were inclined to be more optimistic than the trend of the day would seem to warrant. This attitude was explained on the ground that the severe declines had temporarily "cleared the atmosphere," which is to say it had eliminated many stop loss orders and in other ways rectified an over-extended speculative position, so that from the broker's viewpoint there is promise of some recovery in prices before any fresh slump is encountered.

Slump Came in Afternoon.

Selling of stocks was not aggressive during the morning. There was some selling, of course, but there were periods when prices manifested an ability to regain their comparatively slight losses

TWO MORE STORES TO SLASH PRICES IN APPAREL LINES

Movement Started in Brooklyn Voluntarily Taken Up by Manhattan Merchants.

SHOES ALSO TO BE CHEAPER

Reductions in the Volunteer Stores to Include Footwear and Other Articles.

ARREST PACKER'S MANAGER

Brooklyn Butcher, Declares Excessive Prices Were Charged—'Flying Squadron' After Poultry Dealers.

Two department stores in Manhattan yesterday sent representatives to confer with Armin W. Riley, chief investigator of the "Flying Squadron" of the Department of Justice, with the idea of making price reductions similar to those proposed by Brooklyn department stores. Mr. Riley announced that one of the stores was Bloomingdale's, at Fifty-ninth Street and Lexington Avenue, but said that he could not give the name of the other firm, which is one of the largest in Fifth Avenue.

Frederick Loeser & Co. of Brooklyn announced on Tuesday a voluntary reduction in prices of many articles, and this was followed yesterday by the announcement that Abraham & Straus, at 422 Fulton Street, Brooklyn, had also decided to offer to place on sale a large proportion of their stock at reduced prices. The stock to be sold at the lower prices comprises wearing apparel for men, women and children, including shoes.

Mr. Riley made it plain that the business of his office was to see that there was no profiteering in food, wearing apparel, fertilizer and fuel, which are considered necessaries, and that it was not his duty to determine a fair price. He said this was the function of the Fair Price Commissioner, which office has been vacant here since the resignation of Arthur Williams. He added that if merchants wanted to charge excess profits on jewelry, perfumery and other "luxuries," to lower the prices on the "necessaries," they could not be held under the Lever act.

Agents Working Here.

Agents of the Department of Justice, Mr. Riley said, have been visiting stores throughout the city to gather information on the prices. He intimated that arrests might be made in some of the cases soon if the firms did not come in voluntarily and announce their decision to reduce prices.

Informed by the Commissioner of Public Markets that two carloads of live poultry were being held in New Jersey because the dealers were unwilling to accept the prevailing price of 45 cents a pound, Mr. Riley announced that he would send agents of the Department of Justice to the Pennsylvania yards in Jersey City this morning to see that the poultry was brought in and placed on sale. If the dealers refuse to sell the fowls themselves, the agents of the Department of Justice will handle the shipments.

It was learned yesterday that through the efforts of the Department of Justice agents the city got its required quantity of live poultry on Saturday. The poultry was being held in Jersey City on account of the labor troubles, and the agents saw that the fowls were brought across the river on ferries.

Seize Store of Sugar.

Mr. Riley said yesterday that on Tuesday afternoon Agent Joseph Polen seized 7,185 pounds of sugar in the possession of Herman Toback of 771 Jackson Avenue, the Bronx. Toback claims to be a manufacturer of syrups and flavoring, and that he is entitled to have this quantity of sugar in his possession.

Oliver H. Saunders, manager of the branch of the Cudahy Packing Company at 168 Greene Place, Brooklyn, was arrested yesterday accused of charging an "unfair and unreasonable amount" for hinds and ribs of beef. He was held in $2,500 bail for examination on May 5. It is alleged that on April 16 Saunders sold to John Schroth, a retail butcher of 748 Fulton Street, fresh hinds and ribs at two prices, 29 and 34 cents a pound, although the meat was from the same lot number and was of the same kind and quality.

United States District Attorney Leroy W. Ross of Brooklyn yesterday submitted to the Federal Grand Jury the evidence against the Armour, Swift and Wilson packing companies. If indictments are returned against the wholesale meat men it is the intention of Mr. Ross to move for speedy trials.

Cardinal Gibbons of Baltimore and Cardinal O'Connell of Boston have issued appeals urging a check in extravagance and indulgence in useless luxuries. They urge the public to conserve for solid future benefits.

Accuse Thirteen as Sugar Profiteers

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 21.—Warrants charging profiteering in sugar were issued this afternoon for eleven retailers, a broker and a firm of confectioners. Among those for whom warrants were issued are George S. Camp, broker, 135 South Second Street; Francis Schenck and Milton Heilman, trading as the Confectioners Specialty Company, 228 North Third Street, and Thomas Martindale & Co., Tenth and Market Streets. The arrests mark the first test of the Lever act in the post-war period in this city.

Kill Bills to Curb Loft Rent Gougers.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 21.—By a vote of 12 to 1 the Senate Cities Committee late tonight decided to kill the series of bills introduced by Senator Abeles of the Bronx to curb rent profiteering on lofts and business premises. Senator Abeles was alone in voting for a favorable report on the bills.

Japanese Lose Billion in Stocks Three Trade Exchanges Close

TOKIO, April 16 (Associated Press).—The Silk, Cotton and Rice Exchanges closed today as a result of a ten days' slump in prices.

With the close of the Stock Exchange the losses to speculators were estimated at 2,000,000,000 yen (nearly $1,000,000,000).

HONOLULU, April 20.—Panicky conditions reign in Japan, according to a cablegram from Tokio received by Nihhu Jiji, a Japanese language newspaper here.

The textile industry has fallen off, the yarn and silk markets are slumping, industrial plants are discharging employes by the hundreds, many smaller plants are closing down entirely, while others are operating on part time, and business of all kinds is coming to a standstill, according to the paper's information.

BRYAN NOW WINNER ON PARTIAL VOTE

JOHNSON'S LEAD IS 8,645

Palmer Keeps Georgia Delegate Plurality, but Watson Is First in Popular Vote.

Special to The New York Times.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 21.—It seems certain late tonight that William J. Bryan will go to the San Francisco convention as a delegate. Returns from Tuesday's primary election covering less than half of the State put him in fourth place, in a list of four of the leading candidates for Democratic delegates-at-large, although at the start he seemed to be distanced by competitors.

The vote for Bryan is a distinct reverse for Senator Hitchcock, as Bryan pledged the people before the primaries that no matter what the preferential vote might be for President he would not vote for Hitchcock at the convention. Dan V. Stephens, ex-Congressman and a Bryanite, also finds a place on the "big four" list, according to the returns.

Johnson has apparently carried the State for the Republican preference by about 20,000 over General Wood.

S. R. McKelvie won a renomination for Governor and will be opposed by former Governor John H. Morehead, Democrat.

Arthur Mullen, Democratic National Committeeman, anti-Bryan worker and friend of Hitchcock, was apparently defeated by W. H. Thompson of Grand Island, a Bryan man. Mullen and Hitchcock had openly lined up with the wet element of the party in the State. Sentiment in Nebraska in opposition to the Peace Treaty without reservations also worked to the benefit of Bryan and his friends.

O. H. Howell of Omaha has won the race for Republican National Committeeman from Charles McCloud of York. Howell represents what is known in this State as the progressive element in the party.

Bryan's championship of woman suffrage and prohibition as against opposition to suffrage and a stand by Hitchcock for beer and light wines appears to have had a potent influence on the woman voters in the State.

Figures of Nebraska Vote.

OMAHA, April 21.—With less than half of the 1,819 precincts in the State reported tonight, Senator Johnson has a lead of 8,645 votes over General Leonard Wood, his nearest competitor, with General John J. Pershing third. The Republican vote for President from 850 precincts gave: Johnson, 34,418; Wood, 25,773; Pershing, 16,675; Ross, 923.

In the Democratic Presidential race 816 precincts gave: Hitchcock, 17,145; Ross, 5,041.

From 840 precincts the vote for Democratic delegates at large showed: Neville (Hitchcock) 22,774; Schallenberger (Hitchcock) 22,774; Stephens (Bryan) 19,830; Bryan, 18,823; Berge (Bryan) 18,614; Thomas (Bryan) 17,579; Neble (Hitchcock) 16,796; McNeny (Hitchcock) 16,462.

For Governor on the Republican ticket 798 precincts showed: McKelvie, 1,899; McMullen, 15,205; Pollard, 10,009; Hall, 5,936; McLaughlin, 5,631; Mathewson, 880.

For the Democratic nomination for Governor, 832 precincts gave: Shumway, 1,035; Jackson, 3,060; Clark, 5,924; Taylor, 2,762; Morehead, 14,915.

For Republican national committeeman, 804 precincts gave: Howell, 33,237; McCloud, 28,592.

PALMER STILL IN LEAD AS GEORGIA PREFERENCE

Has 140 Convention Votes, but Watson Is Ahead in Popular Vote Returns.

ATLANTA, April 21.—Complete unofficial returns from all the 155 counties in Georgia which held primaries yesterday, as received here tonight by The Atlanta Constitution, give Attorney General Palmer 140 votes in the Democratic State Convention, Thomas E. Watson 132 votes and Senator Hoke Smith 110. Two counties did not hold primaries.

RAILROADS REFUSE PLEA TO EXTEND THEIR ULTIMATUM

Brotherhood Men Intercede in Vain to Ease Terms for "Outlaws" Return.

STRIKERS DENY DEFEAT

But Return to Work Individually and in Groups—McHugh Has Not Ordered Men Back.

The Railroad General Managers' Association denied yesterday afternoon a request of officers of the railroad brotherhoods to extend the time limit of the managers' ultimatum, which expired Sunday, in order that the "outlaw" strikers should not lose their seniority rights. Under the ruling of the general managers, all of the strikers now returning will be registered as new men, and their new seniority status will depend upon the order in which they report for duty.

The railroads' position was set forth in an official statement issued by J. J. Mantell of the Erie. It said:

The General Managers were waited upon this afternoon by Messrs. L. G. Griffing, Assistant Grand Chief Engineer, B. of L. E.; T. R. Dodge, Assistant President B. R. T.; G. W. Wark, Vice President B. of L. F., and P. J. McNamara, Vice President, B. of L. F. and E., representing the four organizations.

A request was presented to the General Managers' Association that the time limit fixed by them with the concurrence of the railroad brotherhoods, placing the hour when the men could return to duty without surrender of their seniority rights, should be extended from 12 noon, April 18, to the same hour April 22.

It was said that the request was made at the suggestion of the leaders of the outlaws who would immediately return to work if the request was granted.

After careful consideration the managers decided that they could not consistently retire from the position they have already taken with the approval of the organization chiefs, and that to accede to the request of the outlaws would be detrimental to the best interests of the three parties involved, i. e., the public, the railroads and the organizations.

Brotherhood's Plea Refused.

The Brotherhood representatives pleaded for hours with the railroad chiefs in an attempt to gain reinstatement for the "outlaws." Their action was interpreted as meaning that the "outlaws" were now ready to come back. This was denied, however, by the Executive Committee of the strikers, who met yesterday in Grand View Hall, Jersey City. In answer to reports that Edward McHugh, their representative in Washington, had left their case in the hands of the Brotherhood chiefs, the following prepared statement was issued by the strikers:

"That statement is untrue. It is more of the propaganda launched against us. We have code messages from our committee in Washington which tell us what conditions really are. They do not indicate that we are putting our case in the hands of the Brotherhood chiefs."

E. A. McHugh, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Railroad Workers of America, returned from Washington last night and issued the following statement at the Pennsylvania Station:

"If the attitude of the managers in their denial of an extension of the ultimatum is for the best interest of the public, notwithstanding the Pennsylvania Railroad system, according to latest reports, has granted to the employes an extension of time until 12:01 P. M., April 22, then I will not ask the men whom I represent to return to work."

Mr. McHugh denied the report that he ordered the men to return. He went immediately to Jersey City.

Strikers are returning individually and in small groups, it was said at the offices of the railroads in Jersey City and Hoboken, but there is still a shortage of switchmen and yardmen. Mr. Mantell said last night that although freight embargoes had been modified, foodstuffs and some other materials required for immediate use, such as coal, were the only articles that were being moved. The railroad men said that the freight service yesterday was 50 per cent. normal.

Earlier in the day Mr. Mantell had predicted that the strike in the New Jersey waterfront zone would be broken within forty-eight hours. He said that he believed that within that period they would be convinced that the Labor Board in Washington would not recognize them while they remained on strike. Mr. Mantell said that the shortage of switchmen and yard enginemen was preventing the railroads from classifying freight in the Jersey City and Hoboken yards, where all freight is dispatched and received for New York City.

Breaking Parcel Post Jam.

Express embargoes are being modified by many of the railroads. An official of one road said that one of the reasons for doing this was that parcel post matter had accumulated so that some action had to be taken to break the jam in the post offices. Thirty-seven cars of parcel post mail were sent from this city yesterday.

make the strike tied up express service. One firm sent 1,000 dozen shirts in small packages. Massachusetts shoe manufacturers have been shipping orders in carload lots by parcel post.

Freight service showed a decided improvement on all roads yesterday. Ten trains were brought in on the Erie from the west and seven were sent out at Jersey City. West Shore officials said that about 50 per cent. of the freight was moving on their lines. The Central Railroad of New Jersey reported conditions between Elizabeth and Communipaw improving. Fifty-three cars were floated to New York by the Jersey Central. The Lackawanna moved some freight east from Secaucus and announced that more than 500 cars of coal had been unloaded within the last forty-eight hours in Hoboken.

The New York Central Railroad, which was least affected by the strike, announced that it delivered 50 per cent. of its freight yesterday. The New York, New Haven and Hartford reported conditions "improving." The Lehigh Valley handled 184 cars in New York Harbor on Tuesday, according to an official statement, but admitted a shortage of men in Jersey City and Perth Amboy. Pennsylvania freight is 50 per cent. normal, officials said.

War has been declared between commuters of Nutley and those of Paterson who use the 7:45 train from Paterson over the New York branch of the Erie every morning. Nutley commuters are firing the train and as a result of complaints that Paterson commuters had taken all the seats before the train got to Nutley, the volunteer crew decided before it left the Paterson yards yesterday that it would not stop at the Paterson station. The train breezed by the station, while the crew laughed at the Paterson commuters standing in the rain. The Nutley people all got seats.

The Babylon Post of the American Legion passed resolutions denouncing the "outlaw" strikers and asked that the authorities print in the local papers the names of all the strikers, so that all might know on whom the partial responsibility lies, as far as our community is concerned."

Rea Thanks Princeton Men.

President Rea of the Pennsylvania Railroad yesterday sent a telegram to President John Grier Hibben of Princeton University, expressing his appreciation of the work done by the undergraduates in the recent railroad employes' strike. The telegram said:

The work done by the Princeton boys during the railroad strike was wonderful and their spirit is beyond praise. The public need have no fear of Bolsheviki with the young men of the country at its back, but the present disturbance is a warning to the people to look alive and try to discover the true needs and the underlying causes of the grievance of the great number of honest, law-abiding railroad men who are serving their country at this time by remaining at work and refusing to treat their solemn obligations as scraps of paper.

The public will no doubt be called upon to pay the proper cost of adjusting railroad wages, but if they are wise they will first insist on knowing why a "green" hand from Princeton can produce a greater output than many of the skilled laborers are now producing, since the cost to the public of decreased output is quite likely to exceed the cost of increased wages.

William Pierson, of 721 Newark Avenue, Jersey City, dockmaster for the Pennsylvania Railroad, was fined $50 in the Second Criminal Court, on a charge of assault. Pierson had lodged charges of assault and battery against Joseph Stanton, 388 Grove Street, and Frank Morrow, 368 Grove Street, two strikers, after he ejected them from the yards of the company on April 16. Magistrate O'Driscoll dismissed the charges against the two men and on Stanton's counter-charge of assault against Pierson imposed the fine.

CHICAGO 'OUTLAWS' REFUSE TO GO BACK

Break Up Meeting When Their Leaders Advise Return—Grunau Released and May Call a Vote.

CHICAGO, April 21.—John Grunau, leader of the outlaw Chicago Yardmen's Association, who was released [illegible] at Joliet today, after friends had deposited $10,000 bond, was expected to call a new meeting of striking switchmen to end the walkout, following the tumultuous termination of a mass meeting today, called by a committee of strike leaders to vote on returning to work.

Grunau, who was arrested by Federal agents last Thursday, charged with violation of the Lever act, notified Federal officers today that he would accept bond, and was brought back to Chicago in custody of a United States Marshal.

Declaring they had been "sold out," and hooting down attempts of strike leaders to appeal to them to end the walkout, several thousand strikers today bolted a mass meeting when it was announced that Grunau, who was to have presided, was still in jail.

The gathering broke up in an uproar, but there was no violence and no arrests were made.

Shannon Jones, R. S. Murphy and M. J. Kenney, who called the meeting, urged the strikers to return to work and await action of the Railroad Labor Board on their demands for increased pay.

"I hope that you can see that it won't do any good to fight the Government," Jones told the strikers. "You can fight the railroads, but not the United States, and you are foolish to try. The only thing you can do is to go back to work and then submit your demands to arbitration. Our representatives have been turned down at Washington by the Labor Board, and we won't get any hearing until we have gone back to work."

As Murphy began to speak he was greeted with cries of "Where's Grunau?" "We want Grunau."

Efforts to maintain order were futile. Some one called out, "the meeting's adjourned," and there was a rush for the door.

Half a dozen men leaped to the platform and attempted to address the meeting, but policemen cleared the hall.

The railroads announced that 120 men returned to work today and that livestock receipts in Chicago and the movement of livestock and fresh meat to Eastern points was normal. Eleven hundred cars of coal were received.

MORE GAINS AT PITTSBURGH.

All Roads Show Improvement in Traffic Service.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, April 21.—Continued improvement was noted in the rail strike situation in the Pittsburgh district today.

"Passenger service normal and freight service showing an improvement," was the bulletin issued from the office of J. B. Yohe, General Manager of the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie. A train of perishable goods moved yesterday, it was stated, and all available perishables can be handled today.

The Baltimore & Ohio situation showed improvement, with embargoes, except in a few minor instances, lifted on the Western Maryland road.

Little change was apparent in the Pennsylvania situation. In the twenty-four hours ended at 9 A. M. a new record for the movement of freight was established in the Conway and Pitcairn yards. Passenger service is normal.

Firemen on the Chartiers Valley branch of the Pennsylvania voted to return to work at 12:01 A. M. tomorrow. This action was taken by all striking firemen on the Panhandle, and will affect men at Scully yard, Carnegie and Washington, Pa.

Some Cleveland 'Pennsy' Men Return

CLEVELAND, April 21.—Sixty striking switchmen employed in the Pennsylvania Railroad yards, and all the other Pennsylvania road men here returned to work this morning, the company's officials announced. About 200 yardmen are still out. Conditions in other Cleveland terminals were unchanged.

RAIL MEN PROTEST WAGE DATA OFFER

Declare That Collection by Roads for the Labor Board Would Take Too Long.

BOARD WITHHOLDS DECISION

Brotherhood Leaders Warn That Further Delay Would Increase Unrest Among Workers.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—A proposal that the railroads collect for the Railroad Labor Board data on the wage demands of the employes met with sharp objection today from brotherhood and union officials, who declared such action might delay for months adjustment of the pending wage controversy.

In offering the co-operation of the roads to the board in reaching its decision, E. T. Whiter of the Association of Railroad Executives said at least three months would be required to obtain the wage data from the roads by means of a questionnaire.

W. N. Doak, Vice President of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, protested against the proposal, declaring that if the roads could postpone settlement of the wage dispute for three months it could be delayed a year, and each month's delay meant the saving of millions of dollars to the roads. A spirit of unrest, he said, was apparent among the workers, which would be increased by further delay in adjusting working conditions.

Chairman Barton of the Board announced that hearings would be continued without interruption and the matter would be expedited. The railroads' suggestion was taken under advisement.

Spokesmen for the brotherhoods contended that the question of costs was for the Interstate Commerce Commission to decide and that the board should consider demands only on the basis of the increase in the cost of living.

B. H. Fitzgerald, President of the Brotherhood of Railroad and Steamship Clerks, Freight Handlers, Express and Station Employes, said early action by the board was necessary to curb restlessness among the men of his organization.

Formal notice that their applications for a hearing had been denied was given today to the representatives of the non-recognized St. Louis and Chicago Yardmen's Associations by the board. Spokesmen for the associations said they would report the result of their efforts to their men, but were confident the latter would not return to work.

Applications for hearings and similar demands were filed with the Board today by the United Enginemen's Association of Chicago, and the Yardmen's Associations of Cleveland, Columbus and Kansas City.

An agreement with the railroad brotherhood unions under which the striking railroad workers in the metropolitan district of New York would return to work immediately was announced today by Edward McHugh, spokesman for the strikers.

Mr. McHugh said he had abandoned the effort to have the case of the New York men taken up separately by the Railroad Labor Board and that his committee would return to New York, leaving their case in the hands of the leaders of the regular brotherhoods.

HUDSON TUBE SERVICE EXTENDED IN JERSEY

Trains on Entire System Will Resume This Morning, Say Officials of Company.

Service in the Hudson tubes was extended at noon yesterday to Grove and Henderson Streets, Jersey City. It was the first time since the "outlaw" strike that a train containing passengers was run to that station. Officials of the Hudson and Manhattan Railroad Company, which operates the tubes, announced they expected a daily improvement in the schedule of train service from Thirty-third Street and the Hudson Terminal on this side and the Hoboken and Grove Street stations on the Jersey side. Service on the entire system was shut down at 7 o'clock last night, but will be resumed at 7 o'clock this morning.

The decrease in the number of persons who used the ferries to the Jersey side indicated that the campaign against the use of the tubes, owing to the increase of fares, was not receiving much sympathy. The distribution of petitions against the increase was carried on in the tubes and on the ferryboats, however. It was explained at the City Hall in Jersey City yesterday that when a sufficient number of signatures have been obtained the petitions will be sent to the office of the Interstate Commerce Commission in this city, where a hearing on the protest is expected to be held on April 29 next. It was said there was every indication that 100,000 names will be attached to the petitions before they are filed.

John J. Fallon, Corporation Attorney of Hoboken, yesterday was instructed by Mayor Patrick Griffin to represent that city at the hearing before the commission. John Bentley, City Attorney of Jersey City, will appear on behalf of the people of that city.

CHEER AND HISS DE VALERA

But Birmingham Citizens Give "Ireland's President" a Hearing.

Special to The New York Times.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 21.—When Eamonn de Valerra, self-styled President of the Irish Republic, rose to speak here tonight, he was greeted with mingled aplause and shouts of "throw hi mout!"

Declaring that he was going to answer some of the charges that had been made against him, de Valera launched into a tirade against the "English tyrant," and insisted that the opinion that the aims of the Irish Republic were not in accord with those of the United States was wrong. Persons who held such opinons, he said, were in accord with the methods used by England to slowly bring Ireland to her death.

"We are not asking for American soldiers to fight for us," he declared. "We are not asking you to say 'hands off' to England, we only ask that you believe in us and our cause."

Objectors caused considerable confusion in the crowded theatre when resolutions were offered that the United States should in the future refrain from assisting Great Britain financially.

Montreal Printers Lose Strike.

MONTREAL, April 21.—The "outlaw" strike of the typographical staff of The Montreal Daily Star collapsed today. The men decided to ask the management to take them back at the wage scale in effect before the strike, without discriminating against any of them.

LATEST IN OVERALLS STARTLES WASHINGTON

Young Women Secretaries of Representatives Appear in Blue Denim Trousers.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The staid House office building had a touch of "jazz" today, when six young women secretaries who had enrolled in Representative Upshaw's overalls brigade appeared in blue denim trousers, the bottoms of which were rolled well up above their high heeled pumps. The young women created something of a sensation and had a large following as they tripped along the corridors. The drabness of the uniforms was relieved by multi-colored silk waists and silk stockings.

"It's a horrifying spectacle," chorused a dozen Daughters of the American Revolution, as their sight-seeing trip through the big office building was interrupted by the crowds following the young secretaries.

Assistant Postmaster General Koons instructed city postmasters today to permit letter carriers to wear overalls whenever the majority at any office so desired.

The letter carriers' revolt against the cost of clothing, however, will be "gray" instead of "blue," the instructions specifying that gray denim must be used in accordance with the traditional gray of the mail service. All the denim uniforms at any office, Mr. Koons ruled, must be of the same style, quality and color, and "laundered at least once a week."

SALEM, Ore., April 21.—Governor Ben W. Olcott signed a pledge circulated today among officials and employes at the Capitol to buy no new outergarments, other than overalls, until next November.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., April 21.—The "old clothes and overalls" movement appeared in Charleston yesterday when twenty employes in the post office signed an agreement to wear denim for working apparel. Reports from Parkersburg, W. Va., say the students of the high schools have organized an overalls club.

SANDUSKY, Ohio, April 21.—Contending that "overalls clubs for the most part are composed of men who can afford better apparel," the Trades and Labor Assembly in resolutions requests the public to "conserve denim in the interest of the laboring man." The workers say that since the formation of overalls clubs the price of overalls has advanced from $3.50 to $7.

OGDEN, Utah, April 21.—Men and women employed by many of the large companies here have donned overalls and gingham dresses.

EL PASO, Texas, April 21.—The senior class of the El Paso High School decided at a session described as "stormy" to wear overalls and gingham gowns at the graduating exercises.

MORE BEEF, HIGHER PRICES.

Chicago Stock Yards Glutted, but Retailers Charge More Than Ever.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 21.—Despite the fact that the Stock Yards are glutted with cattle and wholesale prices are dropping so fast that they cannot be fixed, retail butcher shops in Chicago reported a boost in price for prime beef, which the butchers declare is difficult to obtain. Porterhouse steak was selling in Chicago today at 60 cents a pound, sirloin steak for 50 cents and rib roast beef for 40 cents.

The worst of it is that the retailers see no let-up and expect the price to rise still higher. New levels may be reached by the end of the week.

At the Stock Yards conditions are remarkable. A three-day run of 50,000 steers has frightened almost all buyers off the market, and more cattle are coming in all the time. The price has gone down nearly $3 a hundred weight during the last ten days. Steers which sold at $15.50 a few days ago were sold at between $12 and $13 today, and their owners considered themselves lucky to find any buyers. Nine thousand head of cattle remained unsold in the pens.

Some packing house officials said that the reason for the low prices was that little live stock could be shipped East on account of the railroad strike. Others discarded this theory, but offered no substitute.

BREAKING PIER STRIKE.

Merchants' Efforts in Longshoremen's Fight Producing Results.

E. A. Kelly, Assistant General Manager of the Clyde and Mallory Lines, said last night that the effort of the coastwise steamship owners to break the longshoremen's strike through the employment of non-union men, was meeting with even greater success than was expected and that nearly every day one or two ships were sailing. The merchants, he said, are giving full co-operation in the handling of freight to and from the piers, and the police are furnishing ample protection. The coastwise lines are now advertising for foremen, Mr. Kelly said.

14 ALLEGED I.W.W.'S SHOT IN BUTTE RIOT

Strikers Are Massing and More Disorder Is Feared Following Walkout of Miners.

UNIONS WON'T ASK TERMS

Publish Statement That Owners Can Come to Them to Find Out What They Want.

BUTTE, Mont., April 21.—Fourteen men, believed to be Industrial Workers of the World strike pickets, and one policeman, are in hospitals suffering from gunshot wounds sustained in a clash on Anaconda Road, near the Neverswest mine, late today.

Physicians believe two of the alleged I. W. W. men will die. The police are searching for three other men said to have been wounded seriously.

Striking miners were massing in Finlander Hall and the street in front of the building tonight and police reserves were called.

Sheriff O'Rourke, who was in the crowd in front of the mine, stated that he could not account for the clash, though he said several arguments were in progress a few minutes before the first shot was fired. He declared that as the arguments became heated he decided to order the pickets away from the mine and was instructing his men to start the crowd moving when a shot was heard. Instantly there was shooting in every direction.

Throughout the day there had been reports of fights between pickets and men seeking to approach lines incident to the strike called by Metal Mine Workers' Union, No. 800, to enforce demands, including a wage of $7 for a six-hour day and release of "political prisoners."

Operators of mines in this district, which suspended operations because of a strike called by the union, were informed today that no formal demands would be presented to them by the union. A newspaper advertisement signed "Strike Committee," said the operators must take published demands as official or "come down to our office and find out what we want." Published demands include a wage of $7 for a six-hour day.

LIFT STRIKE NEARLY OVER.

Union Heads Assert All Employers Will Make Settlements by Monday.

Officials of the Elevator Starters' and Operators' Union yesterday declared at union headquarters, 136 Third Avenue, that 6,000 of the 17,000 operators on strike had returned to work through settlements with the individual owners of buildings, and that by Monday virtually all of the strikers would be back at work at advances in salary ranging from $5 to $10 a week.

Thomas J. McGill, President of the union, who was suspended as starter at the Municipal Building for absence without leave, said yesterday that he was absent since April 15, with permission, and without pay on account of sickness. He expressed confidence regarding the outcome of his trial on Tuesday before Commissioner of Public Works Clarence H. Fay.

According to W. P. Ropes of the realty firm of Horace S. Ely & Co. more than 50 per cent. of the strikers are back at work. Managers of office buildings reported that their service was practically normal. In many cases other employes of the buildings have temporarily taken the elevator jobs.

LISTENS FOR MARS SIGNAL.

Dr. Millener Shut Up in His Laboratory Near Omaha.

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, April 21.—Continued attempts to receive any possible message from inter-planetary regions are being made tonight by Dr. Frederick H. Millener at his laboratory in a farm house at Cedar Creek, Neb., near here. Last night's attempt to listen for a message from Mars or any other sphere were interrupted by static disturbances of terrestrial origin.

Tonight Millener's grant antennae are again reaching out for any signal that may come from other worlds. He is closeted in his laboratory with Harvey Gamer, a retired electrical engineer, at whose residence the enormous receiving station has been constructed, and refuses to permit anyone to enter the building until he is satisfied of the success or failure of his experiment.

Construction of the balloon from which Dr. Davis Todd and Leo Stevens, Chief Aeronautic Instructor in the United States Army, intend to conduct similar experiments is progressing. Their experiment will be held in abeyance, however, until sanctioned by the Government.

Wood and Webster Run in Vermont.

BURLINGTON, Vt., April 21.—The names of General Leonard Wood and William Grant Webster of New York will be the only ones on the ballot in the Vermont Presidential preference primary May 18. No Democratic candidates will appear on the ballot. A petition was filed for Henry Ford, but his assent was not received. Under the law the primary does not bind the national convention delegates.

FLOODS DELAY WOOD ON HIS OHIO TOUR

General Is Forced to Cancel Some of His Engagements, but Makes Three Speeches.

Special to The New York Times.

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio, April 21.—After many delays due to the floods in the Miami and Scioto River sections of Ohio, Major General Leonard Wood, continuing his campaign for Ohio's endorsement of his candidacy for the Republican Presidential nomination, arrived here at 8 o'clock tonight. Owing to the flooded condition of the country the General was unable to keep several of his engagements and made only three of the six speeches he was to have made in as many places.

General Wood was due in Chilicothe at 10 o'clock this morning, but it was three hours later when he arrived in that city. To get there from Dayton the train on which he traveled had to make a hundred-mile detour, the railroad in the Frankfort section being inundated and out of commission.

At Chilicothe, in the heart of a district which Senator Harding's friends claim will go for him by a large majority, General Wood was greeted by an audience of more than 2,000 persons who crowded the Elks' Hall to its fullest capacity. Walter Story, Mayor of Chilicothe, who is Chairman of the Wood committee, and William H. Boyd of Cleveland, one of the Wood candidates for Delegate-at-large, were in charge of the arrangements at Chilicothe and both asserted that General Wood had an even chance to carry the district.

Mr. Boyd, who is completing a speaking tour of the State, said to THE TIMES correspondent that the Wood vote next Tuesday would be one of the big surprises of the campaign.

"There are," said Mr. Boyd, "three Congressional districts in Cuyahoga County, which includes the City of Cleveland, and we are confident that we will carry all three of them next Tuesday. This is not ordinary campaign political phophesy but a statement of conditions based on the very best information that can be obtained. I have lived in Cleveland thirty years, and I make this statement after a careful study of the general situation in that part of the State. Furthermore, I am convinced that we are going to make just as good a showing in other parts of the State, and we are going to elect anywhere from twelve to twenty delegates, and I won't be surprised if that number is exceeded when the votes are counted next Tuesday night.

"It was announced to night that Frank Lee Sikes, one of the Harding candidates for delegate from this, the Tenth Congressional District, who named Senator Harding as his first choice and Senator Johnson as his second when he failed, has changed his attitude and is now for General Wood. Mr. Sikes was one of the Roosevelt leaders in this district in 1912."

Both at Chilicothe and here in Portsmouth, tonight, General Wood addressed capacity audiences. He made two speeches here, one in the Auditorium and the other in an open air talk to the crowd that was unable to get into the Auditorium.

CHARGES SUGAR GAMBLING.

Southern Wholesaler Says Brokers Hold Bulk of Product.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, April 21.—Charges that the bulk of the refined sugar in this country is in the hands of food gamblers are made in a letter received here by wholesale grocers. The accuser is J. H. McLaurin, President of the Southern Wholesale Grocers, and in his letter to the Baltimore food jobbers transmits a copy of a letter from him to Attorney General Palmer demanding that Mr. Palmer give his own personal attention to the sugar situation.

Mr. McLaurin declares in his letter to the wholesalers that his association is now on a trail which it is hoped will lead to exposures in the near future.

In a letter which he received from the Axtell Company, Inc., 104 Wall Street, New York City, is a statement that the trade is at the mercy of certain financial interests who are speculating on the demand that will come, and unless something is done to stop these conditions there is no telling as to where prices may go, and that they are opposed to the toll system, as it operates against the interests of the consumer and is an imposition on the wholesaler and manufacturer.

OFFERS AID TO N. Y. U. FUND.

General Board Will Give $350,000 to Supplement Other Gifts.

The General Education Board, founded by John D. Rockefeller, announced last night it would contribute under certain conditions $350,000 to the endowment fund being raised by New York University.

The contribution, which will be toward an endowment of engineering and collegiate studies at University Heights and at Washington Square, is conditioned on the raising of a total fund for these purposes of $1,200,000 and the clearing off of the floating indebtedness of the university now amounting to approximately $400,000.

"The General Education Board is moved to make this contribution," says the board, "because it considers that New York University has long been engaged in the education of a large body of students on an extremely inadequate endowment, its student registration for the current year being upward of 10,000, not including those in Summer school and extramural courses, while its productive endowment is but little over $2,000,000."

PALMER STILL LEADS IN GEORGIA PRIMARY

and their total of four votes, it is stated, will go to the candidate with the largest county unit vote.

It was pointed out that official returns might change the results shown by the complete unofficial returns, as contests in a number of counties were decidedly close. There are 386 votes in the convention.

Watson ran a close second in most of the large counties, and on unofficial returns from 117 counties he led the field on the popular vote, the figures being Watson 43,197, Palmer 40,412, and Smith 37,61e.

In a statement today Senator Smith said:

"The election yesterday is an overwhelming declaration by the voters of Georgia against the League of Nations as the President brought it back from Paris. This should be cause for general rejoicing, as the covenant without substantial modifications is a menace to the country."

RESULTS CONFUSE SENATORS.

See Palmer Minority in League Fight —Doubt Nebraska Significance.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Senatorial comment on the Nebraska and Georgia primaries was vague and scanty today.

The complexities of Georgia's system of voting confused Senators, who said that they could not see how the primary there promised any clear advantage to any of the three contestants. It showed, they said, that Mr. Palmer could be beaten in the State through a combination of Senator Smith and Mr. Watson, or that Senator Smith, though not himself the victor, could throw the State to either of the others.

So far as Senator Smiths' chances of re-election are concerned, his colleagues said that the voting appeared at this distance to have been anything but encouraging.

Nebraska was more interesting from a Democratic viewpoint than from a Republican, apparently, though Senator Johnson's strength in Omaha caused some remark, the assumption heterohand having been that he would not run so well there as in the rural districts.

"I do not see anything decisive in either the Georgia or Nebraska primaries," said Senator Pomerene of Ohio, Democrat. "As I sense the situation, the contest in Nebraska resolved itself into a personal fight between Mr. Bryan and Senator Hitchcock. I cannot believe that the results indicate anything as to the nominee or the platform."

BEER FIGHT UP TODAY.

Prohibition Enforcement and Liquor Bills to Come Before Senate.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 21.—Wets and drys are due for another combat in the Legislature tomorrow. Prohibition enforcement bills and measures providing for the legalizing the manufacture and sale of 3½ per cent. beer will come up in the Senate under a special rule, Senator George F. Thompson of Niagara leading the drys and James J. Walker, minority leader, that of the semi-wets.

Favorable action on the beer bill in the Senate, which is thought likely, will result in a spirited fight in the Assembly, where Colonel Ransom H. Gillett has served notice that he will move for immediate concurrence. The bill has been amended to prohibit the sale of beer with meals and in its present form would legalize the sale of beer for home consumption only.

SAY JAPANESE FIRED ON AMERICAN BARRACKS

Japanese Demand That Czechs in Manchuria Be Disarmed Follows Fight at Hailar.

HARBIN, Manchuria, April 17 (Associated Press).—A witness who has arrived here confirms a report that the Japanese last Sunday night fired on the barracks of American engineers near the scene of the fighting at Hailar, on the Siberian frontier, between the Japanese and the Czechs. There were no casualities among the Americans.

The Japanese occupied the hills at Hailar Tuesday morning and issued an ultimatum to the Czech commander to surrender his armored car. The Czech officer acceded.

A strong Japanese detachment has arrived at Pogranniahnaya.

The Japanese authorities have demanded that all Czech troops in this country be disarmed as a result of the clash at Hailar.

Six trainloads of Czechs participated in the fighting, which resulted in twenty casualities in the Japanese ranks. The fight began over possession of a number of Russian prisoners who were being held by the Japanese. And it is said Chinese soldiers aided the Czechs in their endeavor to liberate the Russians. The Japanese were forced to retreat before an attack of Chinese, who captured the Japanese barracks. During the melee the Russian prisoners escaped.

Intriguing Interest

You remember the crestfallen author whose four introductory chapters had been blue-penciled and a new start recommended. As re-written, the story opened,—" 'Oh, Hell,' said the Duchess, who heretofore had not joined in the conversation."

The mid-Victorian author might demand of his "patient reader" a dusty trudging through lengthy introductions.

The modern advertising man cannot count on such loyalty.

When next you scan a magazine, study the advertising headlines and notice those that coax you into reading farther.

When you advertise, seek for the man who can coax people into reading the message about your goods.

ALLIES TO DISCUSS RED TRADE ISSUES

Conference Suspended Meantime Owing to Demands Made by Bolshevist Envoys.

BRITAIN AND U. S. CONFER

Will Agree On Plan to Extend Trade with Russia Without Recognizing Soviet Government.

LONDON, April 21.—Andrew Bonar Law, the Government spokesman, replying to questions in the House of Commons today regarding the negotiations with the Russian trade delegation at Copenhagen, said preliminary discussions had occurred between the delegation and representatives of the Supreme Economic Council, but that further progress could not be made pending consideration by the allied Governments of questions raised by the Russian delegates.

Asked whether the Russian delegates had refused to come to England because Great Britain would not allow Maxim Litvinoff, the Soviet representative at Copenhagen, to accompany them, Bonar Law said that point had been raised, but that there were other points.

The delegation of British Laborites which is going to Russia to investigate the general situation, will be comprised of three representatives of the Trades Union Congress and four representatives of the Labor Party. The delegation will leave London next Saturday.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Negotiations between the State Department and the British Foreign Office concerning the proposed re-opening of trade relations with Soviet Russia are progressing cordially, Sir Auckland Geddes, the new British Ambassador, said today. The question of recognition of the present Government of Russia is entirely apart from these conferences, it was said.

It is the purpose of America and England to arrive at an agreement as to means of expanding the trade already being carried on with Russia through Scandinavian countries and by way of Finland and Latvit.

COPENHAGEN, April 21.—A dispatch from Helsingfors reports that the Petrograd Bolsheviki on April 11, the Russian Easter, imprisoned the Polish Bishop and clergy there, whereupon the Poles in the city foregathered and, with church banners flying, marched in a great procession to the prison.

The Bolshevist authorities ordered troops against the demonstrators and a riot ensued, during which the Bolsheviki killed many Poles, wounded others and imprisoned a large number.

The Poles in Petrograd are now very excited.

Garrison Detachment Demands Increase of Pay Promised Them.

BERLIN, April 20.—A small detachment of the Berlin garrison laid down their rifles today because the Government refused to increase their pay, despite promises made to that effect before Kapp's revolt.

Delegates from the striking detachment visited the Berlin barracks, trying to persuade other regiments to join the strike, but with little success.

Fiume conveniently placed at the end of the calendar.

There is some feeling in the French camp because the British are believed to be in favor of easing up on Germany. The French, on the other hand, say that the treaty should stand, and that it should be carried out by force if necessary.

Lloyd George proposes that a lump sum be fixed for Germany to pay and offers England's aid in collecting it, not only by economic pressure, but even by force, should it be required, on condition—it is these two words that offend the French—that France promises to take no action independently of her allies. The French say they will not surrender the prerogative of acting alone should they think it necessary, and they support their point by the argument that a few years hence Great Britain may be less inclined to support them against Germany than she is today.

Premier Nitti is more or less neutral, so far as Italy's direct interest is concerned, but he is backing Lloyd George because Great Britain is understood to have promised coal to Italy. At the treaty discussion, however, the Belgians will be present. They are expected to side with the French, which will make the Council's voting strength two against two. It is understood that after the discussion of the Treaty of Versailles the Premiers will take up the Russian problem. The conference is expected to end Sunday.

Ready to Fight Turks if Need Be.

SAN REMO, April 21 (Associated Press).—The Supreme Council of the Allies accepted today a plan drawn for the employment of the allied armies by Marshal Foch, Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, British Chief of Staff, and General Badoglio, Italian Chief of Staff, who were present at the morning session.

Two hundred thousand allied troops are now within the borders of the Turkish Empire, strategically disposed, and these forces can be increased, if Turkish resistance develops formidably, to any essential number. Greece will probably supply the largest number of troops.

Supplementary naval plans were also approved by the Council, to which Baron Beatty, commander of the British Grand Fleet, and Admiral le Vavasseur, assistant to the Chief of General Staff of the French Navy, explained the plans in person.

The treaty on which the Council is working does not include final arrangements for mandatory States. They will simply be cut apart from Turkey and disposed of by the Supreme Council in the future. The Council has determined to leave Kurdistan as part of Turkey for two years, and then decide whether to leave it with Turkey or make it a seperate province under a mandate.

The Council had a dreary three hours' afternoon session over Turkish bondholders' rights, then over boundaries, but did not finish the treaty.

France is making fresh proposals respecting Smyrna, which were discussed late in the afternoon. This session was expected also to settle the future of Adrianople and consider questions relating to Egypt, the Sudan and Cyprus.

The communication issued by the Council after the afternoon session reads:

"The Council resumed discussion of the clauses of the Turkish treaty and afterward heard naval and military experts on certain technical points which required clearing up. The sitting closed with certain territorial questions under discussion."

A British communication issued late this afternoon said:

"The Supreme Council, including also Marshal Foch, Admiral Beatty, Sir Henry Wilson, General Badoglio and other military experts, discussed naval, military and aerial commissions for Turkey and gave the naval and military experts the necessary instructions for drafting the naval and military articles. Finally the Council settled the question of Kurdistan."

Arthur J. Balfour, British member of the League of Nations Executive Council, who has been acting as the presiding officer at the Council's sessions, arrived in San Remo today to represent the League of Nations in discussions with the Supreme Council regarding the mandate for Armenia which the League had been asked to assume.

Erzerum, which has been selected as the capital of Armenia, is the home city of Mustapha Kemal, the Turkish Nationalist leader, and he is a Deputy from that city in the Turkish Parliament. He is reported to have 15,000 troops in Erzerum, which the League of Nations, under the mandate, would have the task of turning out.

The news of Germany's request to retain an army of 200,000 reached San Remo first through the Associated Press dispatches and was discussed in an animated manner in conference circles. It was recalled that 200,000 was Marshal Foch's original figure for the German army, but it was reduced to 100,000 at the instance of Lloyd George.

The Premiers decided to end the Council on Saturday. Many questions will be left unsettled, but each Prime Minister has problems at home demanding his attention. That is the official explanation.

CONSTANTINOPLE, April 20 (Associated Press).—The Grand Vizier, Damad Ferid Pasha, tonight received notification that the Turkish peace delegation was expected in Paris on May 10.

The delegation has not yet been named, but doubtless will be headed by Damad Ferid Pasha.

Talk of Easier Terms to Germany.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 21.—The French correspondents at San Remo, in default of news, are still giving all their attention to arguments and suggestions as to the execution of the Treaty of Versailles. In the Anglo-Italian reconciliation scheme, it is stated, there are proposals for fixing the sum to be paid by Germany in reparation as well as for the reduction of the term of occupation of the Rhineland, and it is suggested might fix the sum she wished Germany to pay, and once that was done and the withdrawal from the Rhine begun—such is the Anglo-Italian argument—Germany would undergo a real change of heart and become a friendly and docile nation.

The correspondents who put forward their supposition as to the Nitti-Lloyd George case immediately reject it, of course, and ascribe to Millerand—with or without inspiration—arguments that what Germany has never been and has never shown any intention of being she is not likely now to become under even the kindest treatment.

Pertinax, in the Echo de Paris, states quite definitely that Millerand opposed this suggestion at Sunday's informal conference with all his force. He declared, says Pertinax, that peace could not be separated from justice, and that France could not allow herself to be drawn into concession after concession which might end in the loss of all her legitimate rights. He added that the promise recently made to the Allies by France that she would take no independent action was conditional upon the conclusion of a general accord that the treaty should be enforced.

The interpretation is that Millerand is prepared to oppose the revision or mitigation of the treaty till the conference breaks up, and that, if it does break up without Nitti and Lloyd George having come into line for treaty enforcement, France will retain the right to act independently when and how she pleases within the general terms of her promise that she will first acquaint the Allies of her intentions.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Secretary Colby today announced that Robert Underwood Johnson, American Ambassador to Italy, had been instructed to attend the San Remo conference as an observer and not as a participant.

HOLLAND MAY TAKE ARMENIAN MANDATE

San Remo Reports Suggest That She Is League Council's Choice.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 21.—Holland, according to reports from San Remo, may be the mandatary for Armenia. This would be in accordance with the attitude that the Council of the League of Nations has taken toward the suggestion of the Supreme Council that the former should itself be the mandatary. The League Council has replied that under the provisions of the covenant it could not undertake direct responsibility for Armenia. The covenant assumes that a mandatary would always be one of the more advanced and stable States, and the League Council has now expressed the opinion that it could find a state willing to undertake the supervision of Armenia on condition that the Supreme Council would give that State certain financial and military guarantees.

The Armenians are by no means helpless in either respects, but it will take some time to organize their financial resources and local gendarmerie, and no small States is likely to be willing to accept unlimited liability for Armenia without the promise of support from other countries.

So the League Council is asking the Supreme Council at its meeting at San Remo to consider what guarantees it is prepared to offer. At the same time the League Council has expressed its willingness to lay before the first meeting of the Assembly of the League next Fall the question of how such financial and military guarantees may be provided for States that assume mandates from the League.

PARIS, April 21.—The Supreme Council has abandoned the idea of giving the mandate for Armenia to the League of Nations, as a result of objections raised by the Council of the League of Nations, and will ask neutral Norway and Sweden to help the Armenian people establish a "free State," an international loan being floated to finance it, says a Havas dispatch from San Remo.

WASHINGTON FAVORS RESPITE FOR GERMANS

Requests the Allies to Extend Time Limit for Evacuating the Neutral Zone.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The suggestion has been made to the allied Governments by the State Department that Germany receive an extension of the agreement which expired April 10, by which the presence of limited German forces in the neutral zone is permitted.

The tentative decision of the San Remo conference yesterday to compel strict enforcement of the Treaty of Versailles, however, is interpreted by officials here as indicating that the Allies have not deemed it advisable to grant the extension.

The agreement in question was concluded Aug. 9, in response to a protest of Germany against provisions of the Treaty of Versailles prohibiting the retention of an armed garrison in the neutral zone opposite the occupied Rhine bridgeheads. In permitting the retention in the zone of twenty battalions of infantry and a small contingent of cavalry and artillery in answer to the German request, the Allies expressly stipulated that the forces should be withdrawn three months after the treaty should take effect, or on April 10, the treaty having gone into effect Jan. 10.

American interests, it is said in official circles here, would be vitally affected by the withdrawal of all German police protection from the neutral zone opposite the Coblenz bridgehead. Reports received here recently by officials have indicated that the withdrawal of the armed German forces from that area would probably set off incipient Red revolts in a fringe of German towns fronting Coblenz.

'KING OF GEORGIA' SCATTERED ORDERS

Now the Jeweler to His Majesty Is in a Berlin Court Accused of 'Unfair Competition.'

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 21.—Trial for "unfair competition" has revealed a romantic scheme for making Prince Matchebelli, residing in the Grünewald, Berlin, King of Georgia in the Caucasus. In pursuit of Ludendorff's Napoleonic plans, some German regiments "liberated" Georgia, whereupon Prince Matchebelli journeyed to the German capital to urge his appointment as King by Wilhelm, the All Highest. The latter being difficult to approach, Matchebelli formed a syndicate of certain more or less noble Berliners, who, in view of the Matchebelli family's historic rights to the "eternal right to rule Georgia and the possession of the inexhaustible gold mines coupled therewith," promised to use their influence with Ludendorff and Wilhelm to obtain for him the Georgian crown.

As advance payment for services Matchebelli rewarded the principal promoters with titles of cabinet ministers and the Georgian equivalent of Privy Councillor and also liberally distributed "orders of the Gold Mountain." Another Georgian decoration named the Tamara Order was awarded only for military merit.

Unfortunately, Georgia, like all the world, was surprised by the German revolution, and instead of becoming a German vassal kingdom, turned republican, the German conquerors forming a soldiers' council and governing the land until relieved by the Allies. Returned to Germany, most of these soldiers claimed the Tamara order and Matchebelli feeling under obligation, commissioned a Berlin jeweler, Sedlatzek, to make three classes of the order in tin silvered and solid silver white for himself and Ludendorff he had two specially costly Grand Crosses made. The distribution of the three ordinary classes Matchebelli left to the former Georgia Soldiers' Council. Those on whom the order was conferred would receive a letter from the jeweler, Sedlatzek, stating that he was sole purveyor to His Majesty King Matchebelli, and asking which of the three classes was desired, he being the only person in Berlin to provide them.

These last seven words, according to German law, constitute unfair competition, because Tamara orders may and are bought at several other jewelry stores and decorate many a brave uniformed chest.

King Matchebelli, being temporarily away in Switzerland, the case was adjourned until he can testify.

Poles Not to Occupy German Area.

GERMANY PLEADS FOR ARMY OF 200,000

Would Also Retain Her Entire General Staff and Officers' Corps.

THE TEXT OF HER APPEAL

New Note to Supreme Council Considered Another Move In Attack on the Treaty.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 21.—While the Premiers' Council at San Remo is discussing whether the Versailles Treaty is to be enforced or not, and Germany disarmed, the German Government has made a formal request to the Allies to be allowed to keep an army twice as large as that permitted by the treaty terms. The request was made in three notes which were handed to the French Foreign Office by the German Chargé d'Affaires, to be forwarded to San Remo.

The first note is a reproduction of the letter addressed to the Allied Commission of Control in Germany on the demand for the dissolution of the civil guard (Einwohnenwehr).

The German Government in this note pleads the insufficiency of police to maintain order as an excuse for the retaining organization on its present footing and delaying its dissolution.

The second note refers to the number of effectives at present in the neutral zone. It requests that the Allies agree to after the conditions of the protocol of August, 1919, which authorizes the maintenance of a certain number of battalions and batteries, so as to allow a fixed number of men instead of units and to permit an increase of the number of batteries from two to eleven.

The third note asking that instead of 100,000 Reichswehr troops, as stipulated by the treaty, Germany be allowed to retain an army of 200,000 men. The motives which are invoked in support of this last demand are the necessity of maintaining internal order and the significant admission that the army is opposed to its own dissolution.

It is requested that this army of 200,000 be allowed to have heavy artillery and aviation formations in addition to infantry and cavalry units, although it is specially stated in the treaty that neither heavy artillery nor airplanes will be allowed in the German army equipment.

A resumé of these notes was immediately telegraphed to Premier Millerand at San Remo, and copies were dispatched at the same time by special courier.

To the debate there on the question of the revision of the treaty they are certain to add piruant interest for it was to Lloyd George more than to any other members of the peace conference that the clauses, fixing the size and armament of the German Army were due. The third of the German notes is based on the report drawn up by the German Minister of Defense. In it a demand is made for the establishment of the following units: Twelve divisions of infantry instead of seven, as laid down by the treaty, five infantry brigades, organized as divisions but comprising only groups of artillery; three divisions of cavalry, one battalion of heavy artillery for each infantry division, four companies of special troops for railroad work, and eight aviation groups of twenty airplanes each.

In the whole communication no phrase is more significant in French opinion than the admission that the main reason for the requests is that the army itself refuses to be dissolved. That admission is regarded as convincing proof of the French contention that Germany and the German Government are still completely under the sway of the old military regime and the militarist spirit.

Under the terms of the treaty the army ought to be "exclusively destined for the maintenance of order within the country and for the policing of the frontiers."

The assertion that an army of 200,000 men, equipped as is demanded, is necessary for such work is regarded here as farcical and intended merely for purposes of preparing for war.

Interest has turned more completely than ever to San Remo to see how the situation will be met. Will Lloyd George and Nitti consent to such a demand? and will Millerand? it is asked. To the latter question the answer is undoubtedly negative, and the Premier will have behind him the whole strength of French opinion.

KOESTER FOR THE TREATY.

German Minister Urges Fulfillment in Order to Get Revision.

BERLIN, April 21.—Adolf Koester, the new Minister of Foreign Affairs, in an interview with Vorwärts today, declared that Germany must strictly fulfill the provisions of the Treaty of Versailles, for in that way only could she obtain a revision of the treaty. Herr Koester said:

"Only the German Coalition Government is trusted abroad, and the Entente would not allow a dictatorship of the proletariat here. We must today, more than ever, have the trust of foreign countries. This is a necessary step to revision of the Peace Treaty."

ARISTOCRATIC REFUGEE TAKES CHILD TO DEATH

Hungarian Baroness, Impoverished by Bela Kun, Drowns Herself in Lake Constance.

GENEVA, April 19.—Another tragedy among the aristocratic refugees in Switzerland is reported from Romanshorn.

The young Hungarian Baroness Karlensky, who was of Russian origin, after paying her hotel bill, took a boat on Lake Constance, accompanied by her two-year-old child. Later both were found drowned in the lake.

A letter which the Baroness had left at the hotel said that Bela Kun, the former Hungarian dictator, had killed her husband in Budapest and confiscated his property.

NITTI CALLS ITALY VICTIM OF CALUMNY

Says Enemies Are Spreading Lies About Her Economic Situation.

HE DECLARES IT IS SOUND

But "False News" Works Against Her Credit in "Friendly and Neutral States."

SAN REMO, April 21 (Associated Press).—Premier Nitti, of Italy, speaking today with reference to that country's policy toward Germany, Austria and Jugoslavia, and also of the financial situation of Italy, charged that a campaign of falsehood was being conducted by unknown persons against his country.

"The dissemination of false news detrimental to Italy is an abominable thing," he said. "It is a veritable campaign of libelous falsehoods. By whom is it promoted? Many telegrams which purport to have come from Italy prove to have been sent from neighboring countries by persons who have not lived in Italy and who are acting in the interests of unknown parties.

"No country of the European continent is sounder than Italy. The exchange is absolutely unfair and does not in any way correspond to our real situation.

"What is happening to Italy is really odious. She fought and defeated a great and powerful enemy, but her efforts have not been sufficiently appreciated. Yet she acted with the greatest disinterestedness. She is the only country in Europe which entered the war without being bound to do so by treaties, and yet people dare to talk about her egoism.'

"After a hard-fought war she has acquired neither colonies nor territories rich in minerals, but only small Italian territories. Yet foreigners have the face to talk about her 'imperialism.'

"Italy now is making a magnificent effort at reconstruction. She is suffering from unrest, like every other country emerging from the war, but she is not less strong than any other country. Yet here, even in this connection, is a campaign of false news. We have overcome far greater difficulties, and we shall overcome even these. But it is painful to witness this campaign of falsehood. Whence does it come? Do you think it is fair?

"We count on our own resources alone, but for this very reason Italy must not be deprived of credit, and we must be enabled to obtain at least that minimum of coal, iron and raw materials indispensable to us. There are strikes and disorders in Italy, but are there fewer in other countries? Have you not even in the United States very serious strikes?

"These are consequences of the war. It is the nervousness which has spread over all belligerent and even neutral countries. We all are suffering in Europe—even America is suffering—from moral shellshock.

"We must allow Germany to resume her place in the world. Europe will never re-acquire stability until Germany—that great storehouse of productive energy—and Russia—that immense warehouse of raw materials—are once more placed in a position to make progress and prosper once more. The whole effort of Italy's policy is directed to this end now."

The nomination was referred to a committee. Mr. Glennon is a Deputy Public Service Commissioner and was formerly Assistant District Attorney of Bronx County.

TORNADO'S DEAD 155; LOSS IS $2,000,000

Three Southern States Are Organizing Relief for Victims of the Storm.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 21.—Revised reports today from the tornado-stricken areas of Mississippi, Alabama and Tennessee placed the number of fatalities resulting from yesterday's storm at 155, nine less than first reported today. The later reports told of hundreds injured and estimated the property damage at more than $2,000,000.

Communication with the stricken areas was being gradually restored today. Appeals for aid were received from many small towns and settlements and Red Cross relief parties were being organized at many points to carry food and tents into the storm-swept districts.

Hundreds of injured require medical attention, and the force of physicians and nurses available locally are inadequate to cope with the situation. Tents and other temporary structures must be erected for numerous families whose homes were obliterated, and a shortage of food is foreseen as a result of the destruction of barns and warehouses, coupled with the complete obstruction of communicating roads.

The greatest havoc wrought apparently was in the three Alabama counties north of this place. The tornado apparently struck first at Gulq, Ala., and zig-zagged through Northwestern Alabama, Eastern Mississippi and Southern Tennessee, where its force was spent.

JACKSON, Miss., April 21.—Acting Governor Castel was in conference with National Guard officials relative to relief work in the storm-swept section today. The Governor said the State would render every assistance to the sufferers.

Advices from Meridian say that the havoc created is the worst in the history of the State. Late estimates are that one hundred dead and several times that number injured between Deemer and Louisville on the New Orleans, Mobile and Chicago Railroad.

LAUREL, Miss., April 21.—Fifteen persons are known to have been killed and property valued at a million dollars destroyed in the tornado which swept through Jasper County, fifteen miles north of Laurel yesterday. The two main buildings and the boys' dormitory of the Jasper County Agricultural High School at Bay Spring, were demolished. Professor Bryant, one of the principals, and Miss Moore, music teacher, were killed. The building and plant of the Bay Spring News were wrecked and a dozen more structures occupied by leading citizens were swept away.

NEW ORLEANS, April 21.—The Gulf division of the American Red Cross has sent a carload of tents, blankets and medical supplies together with nurses, workers and physicians to Meridian to aid in relief work among the storm sufferers.

PREDICTS UNITED CHINA AT AN EARLY DATE

Wu Ting Fang Thinks Shanghai Will Be the Seat of the New Parliament.

SHANGHAI, April 16 (Associated Press).—Dominant elements of the Northern and Southern Chinese Governments will merge and organize a united Parliament, probably in this city, in a short time, according to a prediction made by Wu Ting-fang, administrative leader and Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Southern Government, on his arrival here today. A Constitution and peace program would be drafted at the meeting, he said, thus terminating the Canton Government, which, he declared, had ceased to function.

Sun Yat-sen, first President of the Chinese Republic and leader of the Constitutionalists, and Tang Shao-yi, former Premier of the Peking Government, are here, and 90 of the 300 members of the Canton Parliament have arrived. Proxies held by the leaders of the delegation give them the voting power of a majority of the Southern Government's administrative Council of Seven, and they will carry out the projects which have been negotiated by Sun Yat-sen with Tuan Chi-jui and other Peking chiefs.

Wu Ting-fang favors the consortium in which Japan, the United States, France and Great Britain would play a dominant rôle in the financing of Chinese undertakings, but opposes loans now pending. He says he wants internal peace first, and then foreign supervision of expenditures.

A Rare Collection— 437 Imported Beaded Bags at Most Interesting Prices

WE believe we are able to offer the largest and finest collection of hand-crocheted beaded bags which has ever been shown to the purchasing public. At this time there is no rival hand worked assortment that will surpass these in beauty. The designs are copied from the antique and are quaint and lovely in color and shadings. Floral designs are particularly colorful. Some of the bags are mounted and lined, others are ready to be mounted and finished to suit individual tastes. The beads in some instances are so small that it is hard to realize that they are beads.

Individual pieces, perhaps three or four, similar to some in the collection may be found in the most exclusive shops, but a large assortment such as this cannot be found elsewhere in this city.

Bags for street or dress occasions in conventional designs and with elaborate dark colored floral designs. Cut beads and jet may be found in bags ranging from a small draw-string and crocheted top bag to the opera size with metal frames.

in the forenoon. After the turn of the day, though, the selling became much broader, and then the worst breaks were recorded. General Motors fared worst of all, with a net decline of 42½ points. Baldwin Locomotive, another speculative favorite, Stromberg, and several others, while not losing nearly so much, fell 10 to 15 points, and at the close failed to regain any material portion of the losses.

Fall in Liberty Bonds.

The fall in Liberty Bond prices was, if anything, even more sensational than the decline in stocks. These bonds, which have been weak for some time, were unusually heavy yesterday, one issue losing 2.80 per cent. on the day, while others were down 1 to 1½ per cent. The selling was said to be very widely distributed, coming both from the houses which handle big blocks for corporations and other large holders and from those houses which cater to the $50 and $100 bondholders. In banking circles it was said that the big corporations and the big individual holders were unloading partly because of the high rates for money, which make it much more expedient for these holders to sell their war bonds than to borrow money for working capital and other necessary purposes and partly because of fear that the "soldiers' bonus" program will result in the issuance of several billions of new Government bonds, an act which would almost surely have a most detrimental effect on the market price for existing war bonds.

Holders of small amounts of Liberty Bonds have been selling them in great volume for some months. This selling has been more or less spasmodic, increasing during times of big strikes and contracting somewhat at other times. A factor which bond men say is very real has been the Spring delivery of the so-called popular priced automobiles, cars costing between $800 and $1,500, for it has been noticeable that as these deliveries increased the offering of the small denominations of Liberty Bonds have increased with them. In addition, many thousands of small wartime investors are said to be marketing their bonds in order to meet living expenses.

Declines for a Week.

As is shown in the following table, the declines in Liberty Bonds have been pronounced during the last week:

	High 1920.	High last week.	Yesterday's close.	Fall from high of week.

The weakness in cotton and the commodity markets was ascribed by bankers yesterday to the fear of wholesale curtailment of credits. The action of the Kansas City Reserve Bank in announcing its intention of taking advantage of the recent amendment to the Federal Reserve act, which permits individual Reserve Banks to initiate lines of credit for their member banks, with progressive penalty rates for member banks which exceed their allotments of credit, is expected to be followed by other interior Reserve Banks. So far as is known, the New York Reserve Bank management does not contemplate doing this, but there were rumors yesterday that the banks at Minneapolis and Chicago would take the step in the near future and some of the Southern banks are expected to follow.

This, or fear of this, was said to have had quite as potent effect on the fall in cotton and commodity prices yesterday as did the decline in stocks and bonds. If the member banks are to be held in check, through the threat of penalty rates of rediscount, it was argued that they would in turn curtail their credit extensions to their clients, which would force liquidation in many lines.

Recently, an association of Southern cotton men passed resolutions calling for the withholding of spot cotton from the market until the price reaches 60 cents a pound. This plan, it is felt, will not be possible of realization if the banks in the South are unable to finance the planters and warehouse interests. The local spot market yesterday declined an even 100 points and at Dallas, Fort Worth and Little Rock similar declines were reported. The other leading Southern spot markets did not feel the strain yesterday, but there was belief that they would if the selling movement continues.

Imports Force Commodities Down.

Another factor in the fall of commodity prices was said to be the increasing competition which imports are forcing on American producers. Publication of the March foreign trade statement showed that goods worth $484,000,000 had been brought into the country in that month, an amount greater than the value of imports for any other month in the nation's history. Exports, too, were very large, amounting to $320,000,000, the second largest total ever reported.

But bankers and other expert observers say that the excess of exports over imports is not the real basis for judging the foreign trade situation. Some of them maintain that the significant development is that other countries have been able to send us $484,000,000 in goods during March and $1,425,000,000 of goods in the first three months of the year, and that these goods, when they are received, are offered in this market in direct competition with American products. Thus, they contend, the fact that we are receiving this greatly increased volume of foreign goods and commodities, despite our continued huge exports, will tend to force prices charged here down from present levels. And this influence, they believe, is already making itself felt in the primary markets, where quotations are in process of discounting future retail prices.

RUSH TO SELL IN CHICAGO.

Excitement on Stock Exchange Extends to Board of Trade.

CHICAGO, April 21.—There was unprecedented excitement in Lasalle Street banking and brokerage houses today when the selling movement, which began last Friday, reached new heights today, and the rush to sell developed into a virtual slide downward in prices of the speculative stocks.

Brokers' offices were crowded with customers seeking to unload, and as the closing hour approached late trading showed declines ranging from 4 to nearly 40 points.

Chicago stocks again suffered substantial losses. Free liquidation took place, especially during the late trading. There was little support, except occasional profit-taking by shorts.

The packing shares were offered freely and sold off sharply. Armour preferred dropped 4½ points to 96, Swift International 3¾ to 4¼ and all the other issues suffered smaller losses.

The excitement in the financial district extended also to the Board of Trade. Liquidation was on in grain with one of the most severe declines in corn and oats under normal conditions in the history of the trade. Heavy commission house selling made its appearance at the start, but offerings were absorbed by local traders and a good rally followed.

VIOLENT SCENES IN CORTES.

Spanish Deputies Accuse Basque Provinces of Secessionist Policy.

MADRID, April 20.—Scenes of disorder and violence occurred in the Cortes today when Deputies from the Basque provinces of Alava, Biscay and Guipuzcoa made attacks on the Government. The situation became quite serious when Deputy Balparda declared that the Basques desired to break away from Spain, and had persecuted Spanish inhabitants of their part of the country.

Accusations that the Government had maintained a policy of suppression against Basque interests were made by Deputy Aranzadi, who asserted that his constituents had been wrongfully declared to be unpatriotic.

He said the Basques placed fealty to Spain first, but demanded autonomy for their small nationality while continuing to form a part of Spain, which was regarded as the mother country.

Crown Prince May Buy a Parsonage

AMSTERDAM, April 21.—Negotiations with the Reformed Church at Wieringen for the purchase of a local parsonage "as a permanent residence for the former Crown Prince of Germany" have been begun by the Dutch Government, according to the Wieringen correspondent of the Telegraaf.

Cuban Republicans Nominate Maza.

HAVANA, April 20.—Senator Maza y Artola was nominated as candidate for President of Cuba by the National Assembly of the Republican Party today.

DE PINNA

PALMER VINDICATED IN ALIEN SEIZURE

Court Upholds His Action in Taking Possession of Botany Worsted Mills Shares.

ONLY 2 PER CENT AMERICAN

Sweeping Victory for Government to be Followed by Sale of Property.

The suit of Max W. Stoehr to have declared illegal the seizure by A. Mitchell Palmer, Alien Property Custodian, of 20,500 of the 36,000 outstanding shares of the Botany Worsted Mills, Passaic, N. J., was dismissed yesterday by Federal Judge Learned Hand, whose opinion said in brief that the property seized was owned by alien enemies, that an alleged transfer of the property was undertaken with the sole intent of protecting these persons, and that it was, therefore, subject to seizure and confiscation.

Stoehr sued in his own behalf and as the owner of forty-four shares of stock in the firm of Stoehr & Sons, the owner of the seized shares. The seizure occurred March 20, 1918. Mitchell Palmer placed the property in charge of James N. Wallace, Francis P. Garvan and H. C. McEldowney, who thereupon became Directors of the Botany concern and who promptly ousted the plaintiff as a Director. Stoehr, a native of Germany, was naturalized as an American citizen, and he contended that the seizure cast a cloud upon property of a total value of about $28,000,000, which greatly injured his interests.

In his opinion Judge Hand said that the firm of Stoehr & Sons consisted of three Germans and one naturalized American citizen and that the interests of the latter in the concern amounted to less than 2 per cent.

John Quinn, who represented all of the defendants except the Alien Property Custodian, said last night that the decision was a complete and sweeping victory for the Government, that the next step would be the entering of a decree for the sale of the seized property, and that the sale would speedily take place, unless the plaintiff appealed from the decision.

TITLED CHORUS GIRL SUES.

Lord George Cholmondeley's American Wife Moves for Divorce.

LONDON, April 21.—Lady George Cholmondeley was today granted a decree for the restoration of conjugal rights in the Divorce Court.

She is the daughter of Charles Henry Taylor of Washington, and was divorced by her first husband, John Alexander Stirling, in 1909.

Petition for restoration of conjugal rights is the usual preliminary to a suit for divorce in this country.

Lady George Cholmondeley, then Clara Taylor, first appeared in London in the chorus of a musical comedy. She met John Alexander Stirling, Laird of Kippendavie, and they were married secretly in 1904. Mr. Stirling divorced her in the Spring of 1909, after a sensational court hearing. Lord Northland was named by Mr. Stirling as co-respondent.

Mrs. Stirling filed a cross bill, which the court dismissed, her husband securing the decree of divorce, with custody of their child.

Mrs. Stirling returned to the stage, and soon afterward met Lord George Hugo Cholmondeley, second son of the Marquess of Cholmondeley, whom she married in March, 1911.

HONOR 7 POLICEMEN FOR DEEDS OF VALOR

Department Awards Annual Medals for Conspicuous Bravery in Fighting Criminals.

ALL RISKED THEIR LIVES

Three Were Shot in Battles with Lawbreakers—Annual Police Parade on May 8.

For deeds of conspicuous bravery in 1919 the Police Department yesterday made the annual award of seven medals to six patrolmen and one acting detective sergeant. The medals will be pinned upon the seven, who thus will become members of the Honor Legion, at the conclusion of the police parade on May 8.

The department Medal of Honor goes to Acting Detective Sergeant Joseph A. Walsh, who on May 1, 1919, hearing police whistles, jumped from a street car and chased a thief.

The fugitive shot the detective in the left leg and the abdomen. Walsh threw the thief to the ground, drew a revolver and kept the crowd back until assistance arrived.

The Rhinelander Medal for Valor goes to Patrolman Harry Cohen, who on Dec. 20, 1919, heard a pistol shot and saw three men running in Thompson Street. Two turned south, but James Ballingham kept on northward, firing several shots at Cohen, who returned the fire. The fugitive ran into a house at 57 Thompson street and was found under the cellar stairs. As the officer approached Ballingham shot Cohen in the left breast, making a slight abrasion. Ballingham was disarmed by Cohen and taken to the station.

Patrolman John J. Walsh wins the Isaac Bell Medal for capturing a burglar on Dec. 2 after a pistol battle in the darkness near a warehouse at Forty-seventh Street and Second Avenue.

The Peter F. Meyer medal goes to Patrolman James J. Deveny, who arrested one of three holdup men who entered a jewelry store in Columbus Avenue on Jan. 31. The policeman was shot during a chase. For shooting a murderer, who tried to kill him, Patrolman George S. Lane of the Detective Division gets the Automobile Club of America medal. While patrolling on Mott Street early on March 8, Lane saw a group of men quarreling and ran to intervene. Stefano Gravano killed one man and turned to shoot the patrolman. In the duel that followed the policeman won.

The Walter Scott medal for valor was awarded to Patrolman John J. Wimmer, who shot and killed a thug in self-defense on Dec. 27. Wimmer was uninjured in the pistol fight.

The Brooklyn citizen medal was awarded to Patrolman John F. Monahan, who arrested two hold-up men on March 27, 1919. Monahan, hampered by his rubber coat, could not draw his pistol quickly enough, and he leaped upon the robbers and took away their guns before they realized what had happened.

ODELL ADMITS KILLING KNEIP IN ROCHESTER

Aided by His Wife, He "Punished" Victim for Insults, Accused Man Tells the Jury.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 21.—James L. Odell and his wife Pearl, both charged with the murder of Edward J. Kneip on the night of Jan. 7 last, testified in the Supreme Court today at the trial of the husband.

Mrs. Odell was excused before her narrative of occurrences on the night Kneip was killed had reached events which took place on the Mosquito Point Road, on the ground that further testimony would affect her defense when she herself came to trial.

Odell told the jury that his first intention on the night Kneip was killed was to force him to confess his alleged relations with Mrs. Odell before her marriage, and then to turn him over to the police, using the confession as evidence against him. When, however, Kneip boldly admitted his former acts and made an insulting remark about Mrs. Odell, Odell said that he determined to punish him.

He described the trip to the spot where Kneip was handcuffed to a tree, told of Mrs. Odell's attack on Kneip with a file and of their dragging the body to a culvert near by. When they returned to the scene later, he said, Kneip got up and struck him. He then felled Kneip with a club, he said.

Mrs. Odell previously had testified that Kneip betrayed her after giving her drugged candy, that he forced his attentions upon her and that after her marriage to Odell he made improper proposals to her.

The defense is expected to close tomorrow.

The Source of a Newspaper's Character

GOOD character stamps the pages of a newspaper as clearly as it chisels the features of a man. It meets the level scrutiny of the reader with certain unmistakable signs of its inner light and purpose.

Courage and fairness, a militant eagerness to share with other men and other institutions the struggle for improvement, an equal willingness to sacrifice selfish gains for larger ends—these are the luminous reflections of its high ideals.

This priceless possession of character is not the native property of a newspaper; it is a gift from those who sustain it. For it is made possible—given life and force and aim—only by the support of right-minded men and women. No newspaper wins to good character save by the encouragement of its community—those who read it, those who advertise in it, and those who make it.

SURE index to the character of a newspaper is the kind of sacrifices it makes. Manly and practical, the newspaper of character publishes the news as it comes. Though it may prefer to proclaim constructive things, one of its first sacrifices is to set aside its own feelings when full and fearless publicity is the remedy for evil or inefficiency.

Again, it sacrifices to conservatism in the treatment of news. Sensationalism always appeals to a certain element among readers, and the courting of that element sometimes opens an easy road to large circulation, with its attendant opportunity for large influence. But that way lies debauchery of the public taste, and all who travel it come to futility and ruin.

From the newspaper of character there is exacted, too, a sacrifice in its function of counsel. It is easy, and often self-gratifying, to wield the immense influence of a popular newspaper in behalf of one man's opinion or a small group's interest. Frequently, it takes courage—and costs support—to assert public advantage over personal view. More frequently, today, the issue is reversed, and all that a newspaper has of character is summoned to withstand the pressure of some visionary ism, for the moment high in popularity.

EVEN more material, but not less real, are the sacrifices which maintenance of character entails on the newspaper asserting a place for ideals in business. It is easy, when there is no hard and fast law against it, to accept revenues from traffics and practices of questionable value. But long before public opinion crystallizes in statute, the newspaper of character is clear-eyed as to its duty. Awaiting no mandate beyond the decisions of its own conscience, it closes its pages to the harmful influence of every agency of vice or quackery or fraud.

No honest advertiser ever has reason to be ashamed of the company such a newspaper invites him to keep. No reader ever need be fearful that his faith will be brokered to deceit. No forceful message has the edge of its effectiveness blunted against columns that nullify judgment and offend good taste.

THESE are the constituents of newspaper character. How they are interpreted depends very largely on the ideals of the men and women who build a particular newspaper. Daily, these men and women put into the sum of their newspaper's character their share of sacrifice, often of name and place, and sometimes of personal ambition. Their labor reveals their faith, their ability and their happiness.

The good name it has guarded, often at sacrifices which it is proud to have made; the fairness and independence it has brought to its conduct and counsel, with what success its readers must decide; the affectionate esteem of its own people, some of whom have given a lifetime to its making—these furnish the true appraisal of the newspaper character that is THE MINNEAPOLIS JOURNAL.

We believe in advertising.

We believe in it so thoroughly that we are willing (unsolicitedly) to buy this space to pay tribute to it.

Not merely a tribute to Advertising as an art, or as a profession, but to Advertising as a Power in business, and as a great factor and a positive necessity in the highest type of conduct and of development of the great enterprises that have made American business institutions and American commerce the wonder and the envy of the entire world.

We would not, under any circumstances, be understood as advocating advertising as a substitute for weakness in either merchandise, or methods of merchandising, but rather as an accessory of almost incalculable value in the exploiting and selling of any worthy product.

Advertising is a force only when there is a force back of it.

The right kind of advertising reduces the cost of selling and therefore does not necessitate inflation of the price of the merchandise advertised.

Advertising an unworthy product is no more nor less than hastening the inevitable disaster that must follow questionable methods, either in the making or exploiting of merchandise of doubtful character.

Advertising often follows and should follow as a sequence to success.

It's merely dodging facts for any manufacturer or large distributor of any important and nationally advertised commodity to treat the advertising end of the business slightingly or as merely incidental to the business at large.

Unless the advertising end of a business is fully recognized as a substantial factor—a part and parcel of the business—there is going to be a leak in efficiency.

The advertising department of a business is deserving of, and needs, the most whole-hearted sort of understanding and co-operation of the entire force making up the personnel of its organization.

From our advertising department we expect only that the advertisements measure up to the standard of the merchandise, and furthermore we expect the advertising management to make sure that the merchandise is fully worthy of what is to be said about it in the printed word.

There is good reason for us to feel as we do toward advertising for we are free to confess that we attribute a large measure of our success—a very large measure in fact—to advertising.

In the first place, we exert every effort to produce merchandise that will pass any test—the test of the fashion creator for style assurance, the test of artistic merit, and the test of quality-service to the ultimate consumer.

As soon as we are absolutely sure on all these points we know it's time to advertise, and our sole object in advertising is to let the world know what we have created for the enjoyment and satisfaction of the people in beauty in apparel.

It is naturally to be expected that people will travel the road that leads them most quickly and safely to destination; hence the guideboard: Advertising.

Hiding your light under a bushel is stupidity if you have anything worth lighting; if you haven't the less said the better.

We feel that the manifest confidence in our product, now so well established, was largely achieved through advertising.

Of course the merchandise is mainly responsible, but advertising told the world about that merchandise.

After all is said and done, advertising can be as big a force as the merchandise that is back of it.

Advertising, like everything else, must have backing, and when properly backed it becomes one of the greatest forces in present day industrial life.

Mallinson's Silks de Luxe had to be what they are before they could justify the advertising which was conceived solely for the purpose of letting the world know about these silks that were a noteworthy step ahead of the general run of fabrics made from the silk cocoon; silks that have everywhere been acclaimed as the highest achievement in American Silk making; silks, in fact, that vie with silks of any country in the world.

What woman does not today know of Pussy Willow, Khaki-Kool, Indestructible Voile, Kumsi-Kumsa, Dew-Kist, Roshanara Crepe, Chinchilla Satin, Madame Butterfly Marquisette, Will O' The Wisp, Thisldu, Klimax Satin, Fisher Maid, and Dovedown?

And how many would have known had it not been for advertising?

DR. MARKOE RITES HELD UNDER GUARD

Surgeon's Funeral Takes Place in Chapel Near Where He Was Slain.

J. P. MORGAN A MOURNER

No Reference to Last Sunday's Tragedy Is Made at the Service.

From the chapel of St. George's Protestant Episcopal Church in Stuyvesant Square, where a crazed assassin's bullet brought his distinguished life to a close last Sunday morning, Dr. James Wright Markoe was buried yesterday after a ceremony from which every one concerned strove to obliterate every hint of the tragedy which so shocked the whole community.

But though the Rev. Dr. Karl Reiland, pastor of the church, made not the faintest reference to the manner in which Dr. Markoe's life was ended nor the remotest mention of Thomas W. Simpkin, the escaped lunatic who shot him to death, there was not a second of the half-hour service during which the minds of the mourners did not dwell upon that gruesome business.

There were among them not only the widow, who had been in the balcony of the church when the sudden attack upon her husband startled the worshippers, and Dr. George E. Brewer, who got a flesh wound when he tried to prevent the murderer's escape, but others who had heard the shots and seen the powder flashes and lived through all the tense moments of the drama. And even though the service was held in the chapel, a separate structure from the church which it adjoins, Sunday's misfortune seemed almost palpably present.

The chapel was crowded to its seating capacity, with a few standees. Those who attended were friends of Dr. Markoe, professional associates, a guard of honor of traffic patrolmen, sent out of gratitude for the surgeon's services to the Police Department, and representatives of the Lying-In Hospital, across the street, which Dr. Markoe founded with money contributed by the late J. Pierpont Morgan.

From the moment they entered, there were manifest on all sides evidences of deep and genuine grief. But just as the congregation on Sunday, with disciplined self-control, went through the service to its end after the insane man's deed had profaned the edifice and the stricken physician had been carried out, yesterday those who gathered for the last tribute kept their emotions so well under control that not a sound disturbed the quiet, simple service except the dismal beating of the rain on the tin roof which at times almost muffled the droning of the prayers for the dead.

While inside were as many as could comfortably be cared for, each with a special ticket of admission, no morbid crowd stood without. This was due to extraordinarily painstaking police arrangements. Fearing that some irresponsible crank might be moved to emulate the assassin's deed, the police, under command of Deputy Commissioner Wallis, took such precautions as cannot be recalled in connection with any other funeral in this city. Details of uniformed men were posted at every possible approach to the edifice, and not a single person was allowed to approach the chapel after 9 o'clock in the morning—an hour before the funeral—unless he or she bore a ticket to the chapel or could give excellent evidence of legitimate business in the neighborhood.

There were no pall bearers. The casket, smothered in a blanket of fragrant red roses, was borne into the chapel precisely at 10 o'clock while the organ played gently and the little honor guard of traffic policemen in command of a sergeant lined the aisles at salute. There followed it the physician's widow, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Sargent, Arthur L. Devens, a son-in-law, Markoe Roberts, and Mr. and Mrs. Henry Markoe.

The services were concluded with a prayer, the pronouncing of the benediction and the recessional hymn, "Lead, Kindly Light," played softly as the casket was borne from the chapel. The pastor delivered no eulogy. The body was taken to Sleepy Hollow Cemetery in Tarrytown, to await the return from the West of Dr. Markoe's daughter, Mrs. William Jay Schieffelin, Jr.

The ushers in the chapel were Morton S. Paton, Herbert L. Satterlee, Arthur Devens and Markoe Robertson. One of the first of the city's noted figures to arrive was J. P. Morgan, who, it will be recalled, was himself the victim of the lunatic's bullet when Eric Munter shot him in his Long Island home early in the war. Others who attended were R. Fulton Cutting, William Fellowes Morgan, William Jay Schieffelin, Henry W. Monroe, Charles H. Brown, William Gibbs McAdoo, Chief Magistrate William McAdoo, Olcott G. Lane and George E. Warren.

TO ASK INDICTMENT TODAY.

Seek to Send Dr. Markoe's Slayer to Asylum Quickly.

Assistant District Attorney Benedict Dineen will ask the Grand Jury this morning to indict Thomas W. Simpkin, the slayer of Dr. James W. Markoe, for murder in the first degree. The witnesses will include Herbert W. Satterlee, Dr. George E. Brewer, Medical Examiner Charles Norris and two policemen. After the Grand Jury meets application will be made to Judge Mulqueen in General Sessions to appoint a lunacy commission, so that Simpkin may be committed to the Matteawan State Hospital for the Criminal Insane.

Mr. Benedict received a letter yesterday from G. W. Brown, Superintendent of the Eastern State Hospital at Williamsburgh, Va., the institution to which Simpkin voluntarily went on March 15. Mr. Brown said that when Simpkin arrived at the institution he said he was "Jonah, who had been swallowed by the whale."

In a letter to Mr. Brown after his escape from the institution Simpkin said:

"I am Jonah, in the belly of the whale. It takes an ancient mariner to find the old whale. This one was born in 1773 and has only one attendant. This is hell, a sane man in an insane asylum."

Like an elastic band—

A STRIP cut from the side of an ordinary rubber heel either stretches very little or else snaps easily. A heel like this is hard and "dead."

A strip cut from the side of an O'Sullivan Heel stretches and springs back like an elastic band.

This test shows clearly the remarkable springiness of O'Sullivan's Heels. It shows why O'Sullivan's absorb the shocks of walking on hard, unyielding pavements. It shows that there is enough "give" in O'Sullivan's Heels to eliminate this source of fatigue.

To secure the resiliency, the springiness of O'Sullivan's Heels, the highest grades of rubber are blended by a special formula. With this blend of live, springy rubber are "compounded" the best toughening agents known. The "compound" is then "cured" or baked under high pressure.

By this means O'Sullivan's Heels are made to absorb the jolts and jars of walking. Moreover, the same process that makes O'Sullivan's Heels resilient gives them their great durability. O'Sullivan's Heels will outlast three pairs of leather heels—they often outlast two pairs of ordinary rubber heels.

Stop pounding away your energy. Go to your shoe repairer today and have O'Sullivan's Heels put on your shoes.

Even cutting an O'Sullivan Heel with a sharp knife demonstrates its great elasticity. Often the knife must be wet with water before a strip can be cut off to make the famous stretch test shown above

All the Hot Water You Can Use

Whenever Wanted—Day or Night

Your home, every home, can now have all the hot water needed as easily as you have electric light.

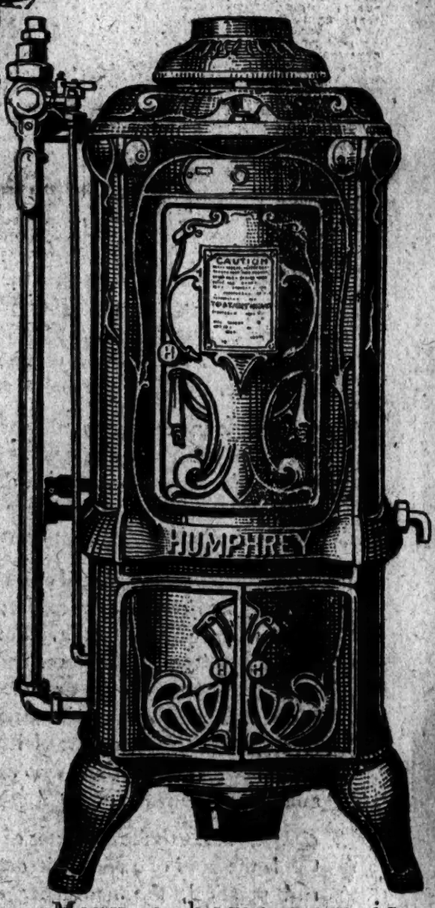
This wonderful convenience has been brought within the reach of all by the Humphrey Automatic Gas Water Heater—the highly-perfected, modern invention that furnishes an endless stream of fresh hot water at the turn of a faucet.

The Humphrey Heater is automatic to the last degree. Opening the faucet releases water pressure which automatically turns on gas and lights big powerful burners from the tiny pilot light. Fresh water rushes through copper coils and is heated on the run as it hurries to you. Instantly, a full-sized, swift stream of piping-hot water gushes forth—and continues as long as the faucet is open. A thermostat maintains a uniform water temperature. When the faucet is closed, gas is turned off automatically—expense is stopped. No more water is heated than is used at the time.

HUMPHREY
AUTOMATIC GAS WATER HEATER

With a Humphrey in your home your hot water supply is not limited to the capacity of a kitchen tank. Nor do you use "dead" water heated over and over again. The Humphrey supplies clean, fresh water as often as needed and in unlimited quantity for dish washing, the laundry, the bath, the shave, for sudden illnesses and emergencies. And you can have this wonderful service for only a few cents a day.

The Humphrey Automatic Gas Water Heater serves for a lifetime. It is encased in a sturdy iron cabinet. No delicate parts. Beautifully finished in green and gold. An ornament to any surroundings.



Many a home now is equipped with non-essential luxuries that cost much more than this practical, healthful and comfort-bringing utility. Investigate! Ask any plumber for particulars or come to our show-room for a demonstration.

Keeps the Hair in Curl

You've never seen anything work greater wonders for straight, lank, unruly hair than plain liquid silmerine. It keeps the hair in curl for a long time—produces such beautifully lustrous, natural-looking curls and waves. And no one need hesitate to use it, for it is so easily applied with a brush and is so perfectly harmless. It leaves no greasy, sticky or streaky trace. The curliness can be acquired in three hours, though many prefer to apply the liquid at bedtime, before putting the hair in curlers. When the hair is combed out it is delightfully soft and fluffy.

Anyone who will get a bottle of liquid silmerine from the druggist and follow the accompanying directions will have a most agreeable surprise. The liquid is also valued as a splendid dressing for the hair.

PUBLISHERS WARNED TO SAVE ON PAPER

Frank P. Glass, Retiring President, Predicts Worse Situation Unless Economy Is Made.

PLEA MADE FOR FARMERS

Secretary Meredith Asks More Publicity—Associated Press Re-elects Frank B. Noyes.

Newspaper publishers from all parts of the country turned yesterday from the annual meeting of the Associated Press to the annual convention of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association at the Waldorf. The news print paper situation was the topic of paramount interest.

Frank P. Glass, retiring President, devoted much of his valedictory to discussing the paper crisis.

"It cannot be denied," he said, "that the publishers themselves are responsible for yielding to the great demand for paper, and that they have caused this skyrocket auction market by bidding against each other, by willingness to take volume advertising offered, no matter how small the margin of profit. Nor should publishers think that the worst is over, that the situation will be cured by this Summer's improved output of paper, or the new machines coming into the market."

Mr. Glass called attention to a recommendation for curtailment, sent out last November when it was advised that advertising be restricted, and continued:

The acceptance of the whole truth was not so rapid and general as to curtail the wild spot market. It has been only in the last two months that many papers have been forced by weather and railroad conditions, as well as by prices, to see their duty and make radical restrictions in the volume of advertising.

"If you have been saving newsprint, redouble your efforts now, for if you don't by the time next Fall arrives the newsprint situation will have become infinitely worse than it is now."

The report of the newsprint committee was considered at length at the afternoon session, and some resolutions were offered, but action was postponed until today.

At a luncheon of the association's Bureau of Advertising, Secretary of Agriculture Meredith pleaded for greater publicity for farmers, saying that a bill inimical to agriculture should have the spotlight of publicity turned on it, just as a vicious franchise measure should. If farmers were attempting to get meritorious legislation, this too should receive the attention of the press, he said. Mr. Meredith said many times the farmers were unable to get their views fully before the public, and hence were unable effectively to protect their interests.

William A. Thomson, director of the bureau, said newspaper advertising had reached the same point of supremacy as a national medium as it long had enjoyed as a local medium. He said there was too much "lousc talk" that national advertising was due to evasion of the excess profits tax, insisting that the real reason was that manufacturers were seeking to win back customers lost during the war. This advertising was backed by sound economic reasons, and its percentage in relation to sales was no greater than normal.

A prediction that advertising would be more free from warranty was made by John Sullivan, Secretary of the association, who declared it was the task of the publishers to educate its assailants and teach them correct economic ideas.

"Advertising is a 'massed salesman,' he said," and it is necessary to procure a constant outlet for large-scale production at low selling prices." He added that a tax on advertising would be as fallacious as a tax on a firm's outlay in employing individual salesmen.

At a meeting of the Board of Directors of The Associated Press, which concluded the annual gathering of its members, Frank B. Noyes of The Washington Star was re-elected President. Calvin Cobb of The Boise (Idaho) Statesman was elected First Vice President, and J. Lawrence Horne, Jr., of The Rocky Mount (N. C.) Telegram, Second Vice President.

All members of the executive committee were re-elected. They are:

MUSIC

By Richard Aldrich

Dirk Foch's Orchestral Concert.

Another orchestral concert was added last evening in Carnegie Hall to the hundred and more that have already been heard in New York this season. It was given for the purpose of revealing the powers of a young Dutch conductor, Dirk Foch, who has been in this country a year or so, and conducted a concert in the Stadium last Summer.

He has many influential friends in New York who provided him with the New Symphony Orcestra, and a large audience that filled Carnegie Hall. His program consisted of Brahms's "Tragic Overture," Tschaikovsky's Sixth Symphony, Debussy's Prelude, "The Afternoon of a Faun," and "Fetes" (the second of the "Nocturnes") and Wagner's Overture to "Tannhäuser."

It is a laudable ambition for a young conductor to wish to show his capabilities to a new community of music-lovers, and it is good fortune to be able to do it under so favorable circumstances as those of last evening. Mr. Foch did not make any extraordinary revelations in music all very well known here, nor did he make the orchestra sound any better than the long and painstaking efforts of Mr. Bodansky have made it sound, but he displayed talent, musical intelligence, routine, skill and a considerable amount of authority in the performance, and in certain of the numbers gained good results.

It is by no means a fair test of a conductor's abilities to put him in front of a new orchestra for a single concert. The real test is in the moiding of an organization by sustained and continued work for the refining of effects, the balancing, adjusting and clarifying of tone, the finish of phrasing, the establishment of a complete understanding between leader and players that shall result in an unfailing response to the conductor's intentions.

This cannot be done in a day or in a few rehearsals, and so Mr. Foch was wise in making his program largely of pieces in which "effects" can be gained with a minimum requirement of the finer subtleties of orchestral playing, as in the "Tannhäuser" overture and Tschaikovsky's "Pathetic" symphony. When the Philharmonic Society was bringing over from Europe its "guest" conductors a dozen or so years ago, every one of them wanted to play that symphony because it yields the biggest "sensations and the most thrills" in the easiest way. Mr. Foch read it in a way to make it yield all that it could without too much consideration for the finer things.

The scale of dynamics was limited generally to very loud fortissimos and very soft pianissimos without detailed explorations of the territory between. There was an abundance of rather crass contrasts, and an unnecessary prominence to inner voices. In the third movement there was much raggedness and in the last more tone than strings and wind could deliver with regard for beauty.

This overload of obvious effects produced, naturally much excitement in the audience. Yet there were better results in Brahms's "Tragic Overture," where Mr. Foch dealt more reasonably with tone, phrasing, lucidity of expression, and found much of its significance.

Debussy's pieces were a more venturesome choice. In the exquisite prelude there were needed greater subtlety, a finer strain of poesy, fewer uncertainties in the playing, all of which, no doubt, could not be gained in the fullest measure through the opportunities at Mr. Foch's disposal.

CARUSO SINGS IN "MARTA."

Throng Hears His Final Role in Italian—"Parsifal" at Matinee.

Caruso sang his last opera in Italian, the melodious "Marta," to a supercapacity house at the Metropolitan last evening, as he will tomorrow his final role in French, when Halevy's "La Juive" is repeated on the closing subscription night. Indeed, not only the tenor's farewells, but all the remaining performances of the week and of the season had been sold out days in advance, and among a line of standees that surrounded the theatre yesterday, only 500 could be admitted, while few more were turned away. Flotow's sparkling music furnished a added gaiety to this beginning of farewells, the crowd listening with breathless delight to Mme. Barrientos's "Last Rose of Summer," and later holding up the opera for minutes when Caruso refused to encore the "M'Appari." Parini and De Luca completed the "Good Night" quartet, and Papi conducted briskly for an early finish, omitting a scene in the last act, as the prima donna was slightly ill. All four stars, however, came out after 11 o'clock for many curtain calls.

Harrold, Whitehill, Ananian, Rothier and Didur, with Mattsenauer, Jeanne Gordon and many more, were heard in a four-hour matinee "Parsifal" under the baton of Bodensky. The restoration of Wagner in English, a text that is itself one of the season's artistic achievements, again won a rare tribute from this public in spite of the customary ban on applause on the more solemn scenes. It was the sixth "Parsifal" in two months, the twentieth "extra" opera in a crowded twenty-three weeks, during which Mr. Gatti-Casazza has kept his organization intact and given more performances, it is said, than ever before at this house, against all obstacles of the high cost of materials and labor and highstrung artistic temperaments since the war.

THE LUSK BILLS.

By the testimony of its own members, by its constitution and platforms, the Socialist Party seeks the overthrow of the present social, economic and political system. It has declared its "solidarity with the workers of "Russia in establishing their Soviet "Republic." It is clearly and unmistakably a revolutionary party. No member of it can honestly take an oath to support the Constitution of the United States or the Constitution of New York. The State and the nation are bound by the instinct of self-preservation to defend themselves against enemies seeking to destroy both. Our political machinery is not intended for such use.

The difficulty in devising necessary measures of self-protection is to avoid evasions that may make them impotent in practice, and to guard against possible implications, extensions or injudicious interpretations by which the rights of innocent persons and organizations might be restricted or withdrawn. But the courts can be depended upon to protect the legal and constitutional rights of every citizen and association of citizens; and what ought to be done should not be postponed nor given up because it is hard to do it.

Of the three so-called Lusk bills in the Legislature against the Socialists, the Teachers' Loyalty bill has been passed by both houses. It requires public school teachers to obtain from the Board of Regents a certificate of loyalty to the State and Federal Constitutions and the laws and institutions of the United States. Such certification is sorely needed. There has been only too much evidence of the success of the Socialists in imparting their fatal doctrines to young and ductile minds. It is incredible that the State should allow schools or teachers whose teaching is for the express purpose of destroying the State. The danger is not that any loyal teacher will be disqualified, but that disloyal teachers will profess loyalty.

Of the other two Lusk bills passed by the Assembly, one defines the qualifications for members of the Legislature and other public officers and ordains their removal from office upon conviction of disqualification. It is notorious that the constitution of the Socialist Party pledges its members, absolutely disregarding their oath of office, to act as their executive committee orders. One of the main disqualifications laid down by this bill in the case of the members of the Assembly is that surrender of citizenship rights in advance by which the Socialist candidate proclaims that his primary and sole allegiance is to his party, by which he is bound hand and foot to carry out instructions. The other main disqualification is adherence to and advocacy of principles and policies that violate the Constitution of the United States or that of this State. A Socialist who adheres to the constitution of his party cannot take office without violating his oath to support the State and Federal Constitutions. Why, then, should he be allowed to hold office?

The remaining Lusk bill is not to be commended, and perhaps would be nugatory. It provides that the Attorney General may petition the Third Appellate Division of the Supreme Court for proceedings to decide if a political organization advocates doctrines and policies which, put into effect, would violate the Constitution. Upon determination that it does, its candidates can have no place on the ballot.

Assemblyman Roosevelt's argument, that this bill by forcing the courts to pass upon political rather than judicial questions puts upon the judiciary a function improper to it, is less plausible than it might have been a few years ago. Once the State had nothing to do with political parties. Now by the institution of the primary system it recognizes their existence and exercises a certain supervision over them. Other arguments against the bill on legal and constitutional grounds are not impressive. The right of the State to defend its institutions against enemies intending to destroy them is a natural one and paramount. The bill does not disfranchise Socialists. It would not exclude members of the Socialist Party from the ballot. By agreement the Socialists could write the names of their candidates on the ballot. They could thus cast a Socialist vote without the Socialist name or emblem. This is the practical difficulty. For the courts there could be no more vital duty, were it laid upon them, than to protect the Constitution and laws and American form of government against organizations that frankly seek to extirpate them. But there are the gravest doubts whether this bill embodies the best or the most effective methods of combating radical socialism.

SYMPTOM AND CURE.

The fact that the new rent laws are allaying the more obvious and humanly appealing distress should not blind us to the fact that the relief is superficial and temporary. A painful symptom is disappearing, but the deep-seated disorder is untouched—if, indeed, it is not being intensified.

The great power vested in the courts, together with the fact that in a number of cases it has been used inequitably, has already measurably checked projects for building new dwellings. When the security market offers so many attractive investments, capital refuses to embark upon uncharted seas. Meanwhile the supply of money on mortgage, which has hitherto been the mainstay of building operations, is tending not to increase but to diminish. The Simpson measure, which exempts mortgage interest from the income tax, has made no progress at Albany. Expiring mortgages are not renewed; and in cases where the mortgage is, so to speak, subject to call, the money is being rapidly withdrawn. The appeal of the many tax-free securities is irresistible. According to a computation made by W. BURKE HARMON, the present housing shortage amounts to $660,000,000. A computation based on such factors as are available indicates that it will increase until 1923, when the deficit will reach the valuation of $960,000,000, and that thereafter it will decrease, if at all, very slowly. If the present unfavorable market for mortgages continues, even this slight hope will be blasted. In a word, any fundamentally constructive measure of relief must centre in the needs of the landlord.

It is with these facts in view that the Real Estate Board of the city is opposing the Abeles bill, which extends the new rent laws to the tenants of offices and lofts. Scarcely less than the flat-dweller, the business man has been the victim of extortion; on the ground of abstract justice, he would seem to be entitled to the same relief. Yet the Real Estate Board is justified in the statement that an extension of the rent laws will very seriously check any movement toward the building of offices and lofts, and so in the long run defeat its own end. The board points out, moreover, that already business houses, unable to find suitable quarters here, are migrating to Jersey City, Newark and even Philadelphia. Not only the happiness and prosperity of individuals are at stake, but the future growth of the city.

Such a problem can be solved only by men of vision backed by a vigorous and united public spirit. Beneficent as the new laws are proving in the relief of present and individual distress, they will have been dearly purchased if they blind us to the deep-seated malady of which that distress is merely a symptom.

GOOD AND BAD IN GEORGIA.

That the Georgia primary election should have turned out to be a race between Attorney General PALMER and THOMAS E. WATSON, with Senator HOKE SMITH running third, is something to that State's credit and something to its discredit. PALMER is in the lead. It is quite an astonishing thing for a "Yankee," and especially one not greatly known in the South, or indeed of any national fame until within the last two or three years, to overcome the inclination to a Favorite Son and a Southerner. PALMER wins his victory, if indeed he has won it, by appearing in Georgia as the advocate of the Wilson Administration and of the Peace Treaty. It is safe to say that every vote that was cast for him was deliberately cast on that issue and for that reason, while other elements, such as sectionalism and State pride, may have aided SMITH and WATSON. The intelligence of this vote, the fact that it was intentionally cast on an issue and without any extraneous appeal, is greatly to Georgia's credit.

To Georgia's discredit is the fact that the combined votes of WATSON and SMITH outweigh PALMER'S. WATSON unquestionably crippled SMITH by drawing all of what in Georgia is called the "red neck" vote, meaning the same thing which in Arkansas is called the "hill billy" vote. WATSON'S strength in the centre and south of the State has never been sufficiently taken into account by those who have seen in him only a demagogue. He is articulate for the ignorant, and from Thomson there radiates a geographical circle in which WATSON alone is read and followed. He has his adherents even in Atlanta, and his influence stretches from Macon to Waycross.

SMITH tried to appeal to this vote. He descended in his campaign to depths which were intended to match WATSON'S. His attacks on the President were personal. He thought he could win votes by using language about the President which the Republicans will never dare to reprint as campaign "literature." The citizens of Georgia have given him his answer by running him third, though he is a son of the State and a candidate for President, to say nothing of his being its Senator and its best known representative in the thought of the Union. That was a good thing.

Not so good was the undeniable fact that the real Simon Pure of demagogy, the man he tried to imitate in coarseness of speech if in nothing else, THOMAS E. WATSON of Thomson, beat him and ran so close to PALMER, who represented the reasonable and thoughtful sentiment of Georgia, that it may turn out in the end that WATSON has won the State. That is not very probable. But the fact that it is probable at all is a sad commentary on the state of politics in Georgia. Is Thomson indeed so near to beating Atlanta for the control of the State?

FIXING THE INDEMNITY.

Dispatches from San Remo tell us that there is already discussion of the fixing of the German indemnity at a definite sum, and that Mr. LLOYD GEORGE and Mr. NITTI, who favor this plan, want to set it at sixty billion marks gold—that is, very roughly, $15,000,000,000. This is a matter which has been much discussed, particularly since Mr. KEYNES'S book appeared; and in view of the impression created by Mr. LLOYD GEORGE'S recent policy that he has come to believe in the Keynes program, there will doubtless be much discussion of the indemnity even if French opposition prevents immediate action.

A good many people believe that it would have been better if the indemnity had been definitely fixed in the Treaty instead of being left to the judgment of the Reparations Commission as to what Germany was able to pay. There is good ground for holding that the uncertainty of the total has hampered the willingness of the Germans to go back to work, as they felt that their entire surplus over the bare cost of living would have to go to their enemies. That would not be altogether unfair, but such a feeling could well operate against the usefulness of the indemnity as a practical measure.

There were good arguments on the other side, however, and it may be observed that the failure of Germany to get to work seems to be chargeable to other matters than the indemnity. That Germany cannot pay as much as we thought a year ago seems probable, but the indemnity provisions of the Treaty have very little to do with her diminished power. A much more serious matter is the questionable willingness of the Germans to pay anything at all.

But, granting that the naming of a definite sum may be a wise step at this time, what should it be? Everybody will agree that the talk of making Germany pay the whole cost of the war, the mention of $120,000,000,000, and similar occurrences immediately after the armistice had a bad effect both in Germany and in the allied countries. But nobody took that very seriously after the Conference got to work. Even Mr. KEYNES claims no more than that some prominent personages at the Conference expected to get about $40,000,000,000; and dispatches from San Remo say that the present French expectation is only $25,000,000,000. Mr. DAVID HUNTER MILLER, who ought to know something about the Conference, says that the indemnity provided by the Treaty figures out at about fifteen billions.

Mr. KEYNES'S own figure was nominally ten billions, of which he would deduct one-fourth for the materials given up by the Germans and have the rest paid in thirty yearly installments without interest. It has been pointed out that this means a cash indemnity, in present value, of only $3,850,000,000, plus the material surrendered. The sum now mentioned is Mr. MILLER'S, but the spirit is Mr. KEYNES'S; evidently he outdoes Mr. LLOYD GEORGE as a bamboozler. One may wonder whether Mr. LLOYD GEORGE has accepted the other items of the Keynes program—a free trade union of Central Europe and Great Britain, which has been described as a plan to enable London to share with Berlin the loot of Poland and the new States on the Danube, and a general cancellation of interallied loans. What, in all these matters, is the rôle of the great combination of London banks and bankers recently formed "to "build up trade with the Central Em-"pires"?

By the cancellation of loans England would lose something more than four billion dollars, net; but England has acquired much territory and many ships, and would share in whatever indemnity the Germans pay. America would lose ten billions, and would be compensated only by the gratitude of Europe. In other words, Mr. KEYNES would have Germany pay an indemnity of a little over six billion dollars, and America an indemnity of ten billions. We wait with interest to see what progress his ideas have made in high places.

Meanwhile, can we bribe the Germans to fulfil the Treaty by lightening the nominal demands upon them? On Tuesday they formally requested the Supreme Council for permission to keep a powerful nucleus of the old army, together with the entire General Staff and officers' corps. The General Staff, according to the Treaty, must be abolished; the officers' corps is organized, not for an army of 200,000, the normal though far less than the actual strength of the forces Germany wants to maintain, but for an army of 800,000. This is ominous enough in itself; still more are the reasons for the request. "An increased army is nec-"essary for the maintenance of order, "and, furthermore, the army will not "accept an order for its dissolution." It is a frank notification that the Germans have and will keep their army, and want to know what we are going to do about it. This is the sequel, and many will think the consequence, of the numerous concessions which have already been made to Germany.

AMERICAN DAY.

The idea of a demonstration of Americanism on the same day that it is customary to "demonstrate" in support of other less desirable isms has grown amazingly since it was proposed by the National Security League in February. Governor ALLEN of Kansas was among the first to approve it, in that month, and this month has put it into an official proclamation. The Governors of nineteen States have promised the League to take similar action, and demonstrations by parades and other customary expressions of sympathy are under way in forty-one States and cities too numerous to specify.

The League proposes two novelties—the emphasis put upon foreigners who are adherents to American institutions by putting them into places of honor, and the marching together of men and women. Children are to have places as representatives of Young America, and teachers as "makers of America." "Defenders of America" are members of the American Legion and similar organizations of soldiers of any war. As American Day is Saturday, there is an opportunity for a demonstration rivaling that of Preparedness Day. There is still time for those who were late in starting with the procession to find places far from the rear of the parade, in which even the last man's place will be one of honor, without distinctions of class any more than of sex. Indeed, Vice President MARSHALL struck a happy note the other day when he said that those of foreign birth who select American institutions in preference to their own show a higher appreciation of them than is possible for those who are born Americans. As to those who are born Americans and prefer foreign institutions, the less said the better; but expressions of disapproval in lawful methods by acts like the observance of American Day which do not allow of misunderstanding are not only a right but a duty. Too much leeway is given to un-Americans of whatever birth when they are allowed to think that silence signifies sympathy with their heresies, sometimes dangerous in character.

THE TRADITIONAL MEXICAN WAY.

The charge brought against President CARRANZA by General ALVARADO in Washington, where the General has arrived as the representative of General OBREGON and the Progressive Party in Mexico, is the charge made against every head of the Government who has obstructed the ambitions of other men—in short, the reform President has become a dictator as PORFIRIO DIAZ WAS, according to ALVARADO. This does not mean, if OBREGON'S agent speaks truly, that CARRANZA has ruled with as much intelligence and firmness as could be claimed for the predecessor of MADERO. As a matter of fact, CARRANZA, compared with the great DIAZ, has been a mediocrity, and it seems ridiculous to accuse the bespectacled theorist in the Mexican White House of being a man on horseback. An Argentinian observer once said that "it is impossible to have "liberty in Spanish America so long "as we have liberators." It is evident that OBREGON and his friends have presented themselves as liberators of the Mexican people from the misrule of CARRANZA. This is the case of ALVARADO against the President:

> CARRANZA, instead of using his power to carry out such reforms [those of the Progressive Party] and to solve all the problems that were in the way of the free development of the economic and social forces of Mexico, has employed all the resources of the nation to prepare his plans to continue in power.

Then, indeed, if this is a true bill, the Chief Executive, who has so often professed loyalty to the Constitution and who has given notice that he would respect its inhibition against re-election, is an arch-hypocrite, and he must be playing a dangerous game, for he has never been popular with the army. At the height of his power PORFIRIO DIAZ made and unmade Governors of States and manipulated Congress. There were no free elections. But DIAZ believed that Mexico could prosper only under a benevolent dictatorship, and his admirers point to the present state of the country as proof that he was right. CARRANZA, who seems to have honestly believed in the rule of the people and who has made some progress in carrying out the reforms of his program, particularly in the matter of education, is now denounced by ALVARADO as a destroyer of State rights with the design of violating the Constitution and retaining office. To attain his ends he has "employed the army, the na-"tional funds, the railroads, the tel-"egraphs, the mails and the whole "administrative machine."

A significant statement made by General ALVARADO is that OBREGON has placed himself at the head of the revolutionary forces. What he wants is "free elections, and it matters not "who is elected as a result." Obviously, what General OBREGON wants is the Presidency, and he can now win it only by prevailing in the civil war for which he and his partisans seem to be responsible. The national election was to be held on July 4. OBREGON'S only serious rival was YGNACIO BONILLAS, a civilian and recently the Mexican Ambassador at Washington, who was well equipped for the duties of the Presidency. It is doubtless true, as ALVARADO asserts, that discontent with the Carranza Government is general; that is a common manifestation in Mexico. But the opponents of the President were not willing to wait for the election returns for proof that he was carrying things with a high hand, for proof that BONILLAS was a stalking horse for a consuming ambition. Whatever mistakes President CARRANZA has made, however stubborn and difficult he may be, General OBREGON and his army friends incur the suspicion of planning to carry the election in the traditional Mexican way, that is to say by revolution.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

His Death May Lead to Reform.

So deep and widespread is the horror excited by the death of Dr. MARKOS at the hands of a lunatic who had passed for harmless, though any competent judge of his condition would have pronounced him a public danger years ago, that there seems to be at least some prospect of getting the revision of our insanity laws which the whole medical profession long has been demanding.

The arguments in favor of such a revision are indisputable. The chief basis of antagonism to a change in the direction of putting the power of commitment and release where it belongs, instead of where it is misplaced, is the belief on the part of the general public that to recognize insanity is as easy in all cases as it is in those in which alone it seems to be present to uninstructed observers—in those, that is, of continuous raving mania, which are, as a matter of fact, about the rarest of all. But there is, too, a vague feeling of apprehension that sane men and women are sometimes sent to and kept in asylums by doctors who see mania where others see only innocent eccentricity, or who have lent themselves to carrying out the plots of mercenary or malicious relatives. The chance of this is just about as great as that of being buried alive, another subject of popular dread, though it hardly deserves to be called the remotest of possibilities.

In public institutions for the care of the insane, overcrowding makes the management only too eager to utilize any colorable excuses for releasing inmates, and they certainly do not keep in confinement those who have recovered or were wrongly committed. In the private asylums the situation is a little different, and a reason for extending sequestration beyond necessity is imaginable, but alleged instances of it, when investigated, have proved, next to always, not crime on the part of the doctor in charge, but a mistaken diagnosis by some relative or other layman.

Insanity Rarely Complete.

What the public has been slow in learning, and what most of it has not yet learned, is that in many forms of insanity, and in several the natural progression of which is toward just such acts as that of the "harmless" SMITKIN, the victim for most of the time is as rational as anybody and can carry on all the ordinary activities of life with ease and good judgment. He may have the wildest of delusions and reveal them only at widely separated intervals, talking and behaving meanwhile in a way that to the inexpert observer seems convincing evidence of complete sanity or even high intelligence.

If the discrimination between the sane and the insane is to remain where it is now, there will never be an end to the perpetration of such acts as the killing of Dr. MARKOS.

Strangely enough, though the public is content to leave "cranks" at liberty until they shoot or stab, it also is willing, afterward, that there should be accorded to them the irresponsibility that carries immunity from punishment. That is entirely inconsistent and creates a double evil, for these itinerant madmen are quite sane enough to know that, whatever they may do, they have nothing to fear from the law as it is except incarceration, and of that they have little dread.

Doesn't Read with Care.

Vice President MARSHALL has made many a speech full of sound doctrine and good advice, with both bettered by an infusion of quaint humor. When he discusses the conduct of newspapers, however, he falls into several too common mistakes, and not only tells the editors to do what they shouldn't, but also not to do what they should. And, apparently, either he does not read the newspapers as carefully as he should or else he reads the wrong ones.

Only on one or the other of those hypotheses can it be explained why, at The Associated Press luncheon, the Vice President reprehended the giving of much space to "every petty murder" and to "every slimy divorce suit." The newspapers that do that, if there are any, nowadays, must be very few, and they do not constitute "the press." Does the Vice President really think that too much space was given by the New York papers to the death of Dr. MARKOS? Can he see no other result of it than that of suggesting like acts to other Simpkins? And how can he question the legitimacy of the public's interest in the terrible deed, or the probability that the information given in the newspaper narratives will lead to much needed changes in the insanity law? If they do not, nothing will.

The Vice President urged the papers to give more attention to telling the story of fine and noble deeds. But they need no urging. They tell such stories as often as they can and always are hunting for more to tell. Mr. MARSHALL could not mention one good cause which the newspapers have not efficiently aided, not one beneficent invention or discovery to which their columns have not been open, not one example of heroism they have not exalted, not one instance of philanthropic generosity to which they have given less space than it deserved.

Another fact he seems to have forgotten—the fact that not even the law itself is a more powerful deterrent of crime than the certainty of publicity for the criminal.

Sticking to Capital Punishment.

In refusing to pass a bill doing away with the death penalty in this State, and thus making its enactment impossible at this session of the Legislature, the Senate probably has shown its accord with the public sentiment on the subject that prevails among us. The question, however, is one sure to come up for consideration again and again, and it is not unsafe to prophesy that some day a bill like the one proposed will get on our statute books.

The tendency of change has long been in that direction—as long, indeed, as since the ferocious days when most crimes were capital, including petty thefts. The causal relation is not clear and may not really exist, but the decrease of crime and the melioration of the law's severity at least have gone together in all countries.

How many murders the perpetuation of the death penalty prevents nobody knows. That it prevents some could not be denied; that many it does not prevent is equally undeniable. Meanwhile, whoever chooses to escape the gallows or the electric chair has an easy way to do so. He need only refrain from murder nowadays, and from treason in time of war, and he is quite safe.

Bonus for Officers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The proposed bill provides for a bonus for those men who served during the war in an enlisted capacity, and fails to provide for those of us who were officers. Before proceeding further, I want to say that I am unqualifiedly opposed to any bonus whatsoever, but if a bonus is insisted on by those in authority, I certainly feel that it should not be discriminatory to one very essential portion of the military establishment.

Without doubt, the financial loss incurred during the war by the men who were officers was fully as great as the loss incurred by the enlisted personnel. To be sure the pay of the officers was greater, but from their pay the officers had to feed and clothe themselves, and not being granted an allowance for their families, many of them were compelled to send to their homes practically their entire earnings. In short, they were not particularly benefited financially by being officers.

Money will have to be raised for the payment of these bonuses by taxation, in which we will all have to share the burden, and to me it seems particularly unjust that the men who were officers will not only not benefit by the bonus, but will also have to contribute to the bonus given to their ex-comrades in arms. Does this seem proper?

The Soldier's War Ideal.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

"We are not concerned with the boundaries of Europe," writes General Wood; "we are not the custodians of the peace of the world." We must, however, agree with him in saying: "No one must dictate to us how we shall handle our commerce and foreign affairs."

Having served with our forces abroad, I have always believed that we were fighting for the peace of the world and with a concern for the abnormal boundaries of certain unfortunate races. I am sure this was a quite common belief among our soldiers, and I doubt whether they would have fought with the same enthusiasm and valor if these had not been the objects of their ideals. The coming elections are the media through which the heart of America should be expressed, and I hope the issue will be whether we are to be a great nation in the world, the standard of liberty for all peoples, or merely an unconcerned and selfish nation of money-makers.

KENNETH L. AUSTIN.

Old Clothes for Spring.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Now that the clothing makers seem inclined to put up the price of overalls beyond the reach of any but the most bloated profiteer, the question naturally arises, What are we going to do about it? I would suggest that every man get out his year-before-last suit, get it neatly patched on the elbows, knees or seat as the case may demand and wear it with a small card attached to the lapel bearing the inscription, "This is my oldest suit." The Amalgamated Patchers' Union will, in turn, no doubt, boost their prices, but by burning a little midnight oil and mending one's own clothes even this difficulty may be overcome.

Should buttons come off, I have heard it said that a nail ingeniously inserted at suspender ends will answer the purpose equally well.

There is one thing certain, that as long as people will pay big prices, big prices will prevail.

Better Than Overalls.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The current tendency toward simplicity of dress should not be left at the mercy of the manufacturers of overalls. Why should not all of us, at least in the warmer months, adopt the decorous, hygienic and inexpensive costume of the Romans—toga, tunic and sandals?

The ordinary undershirt will serve as a tunic; a pair of old shoes, if the soles are good, can be whittled down into sandals. The toga requires no tailoring and will last a long time, as it can be refolded to hide shiny and threadbare spots. Down with luxury!

HARVARD MODIFIES TESTS.

Changes Make It Easier for Public School Pupils to Enter.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., April 21.—Changes in the Harvard College entrance requirements designed to make it easier for public school boys to prepare for the college examinations were announced tonight.

Two plans of admission are now in effect. Under the so-called old plan, by which a student must pass examinations amounting to a certain number of units of school work, the number of units required for admission has been reduced from 16½ or 15½ to 15. The faculty has also authorized the Committee on Admission to admit without conditions candidates whose examination record is slightly defective but whose combined school and examination record justifies the belief that they are ready for college work.

The so-called new plan, which provides that a student must present evidence of an approved school course satisfactorily completed and must show in four examinations in important subjects that his scholarship is satisfactory, has been modified so that a candidate's school course need not necessarily have extended over four years. The candidate will now be admitted if his school course is decided to have been the equivalent of four years' study and if he meets the other requirements.

An exception also is made to the requirement that the candidate's school course must have included languages, sciences, mathematics and history, so that a candidate who has omitted one of these studies will not necessarily be excluded if he is an exceptional student.

"This change has been made," said a statement from the college office, "with a view to diminishing not effective school training, but the importance of examinations. The purpose is to make the requirements somewhat more flexible, so that boys whose training has not entirely conformed to the letter of the formal rules may nevertheless be admitted if it is clearly apparent that they are of sufficient intellectual calibre and school experience to be ready for college work. The change is expected to make it easier for boys to pass the entrance examinations who have prepared at high schools which are not accustomed to training boys for Harvard."

FRENCH FEEL DESERTED.

Left High and Dry by Allies, They Tell Burton E. Stevenson.

There is a feeling in France that that country has been left high and dry by her allies on the German frontier, and the French people cannot understand why President Wilson, if he did not have the same powers as Lloyd George and Clemenceau, ever came to Paris at all, according to Burton E. Stevenson, novelist and representative abroad of the American Library Association, who has just returned to New York.

"In Germany," he said, "there are hundreds of thousands of officers who have never been trained for other than military service and it is undoubtedly true that the military caste wants to come back and is scheming to do so. It is a remarkable fact that the Allies were never able to get the long-distance gun with which Paris was bombarded. They have only 4,000 out of the 5,000 locomotives the Germans were to have given up. On May 10 the German Army is to be reduced to 100,000 men. I believe they have arms enough hid to arm a million men.

"Taking these things into consideration, I believe France is justified in making Germany live up to the terms of the treaty. Is Germany preparing for another war? Well, Germany feels that the only way to get upon her feet is to fight her way back. France aims to put her where she cannot come back. I don't blame her."

'TIGER' WELCOMED IN PARIS.

Clemenceau Is Alert and Smiling After His Illness, but Won't Talk.

PARIS, April 21.—Ex-Premier Clemenceau, who has been visiting Egypt for the last two months, arrived here this morning. He was alert and smiling, but avoided interviewers and would not be photographed.

He was met at the station by his brother Albert, his daughter, Mme. Jacquemaire, and his grandchildren. Many prominent men were present, among them being Captain André Tardieu, Louis Loucheur and Georges Leygues, members of M. Clemenceau's Cabinet. With them he gayly discussed his trip and his illness in Egypt, expressing his satisfaction in returning home. He left the station in an automobile, a large crowd cheering as he drove away.

M. Clemenceau is still as laconic and reticent as he was before he went to Egypt. When he landed at Marseilles yesterday efforts were made to get the aged statesman to talk, but all were futile.

"The war is over, isn't it?" he exclaimed to the correspondent of the Journal. "Yes? Well, all I want is to be left alone. What am I going to do? Why, just live until I die."

SAYS SOVIET IS BANKRUPT.

Bolshevism Repudiated in Russia, John Spargo Asserts.

Declaring that Sovietism in Russia was repudiated and bankrupt, John Spargo, speaking at Washington Irving High School last evening, said that government by the proletariat had only brought about a bureaucracy as tyrannical as the rule of the Czars.

"The Bolsheviki established their rule," he said, "just when tyranny was overthrown and democracy was in the molding. Four months later, in March, 1918, Lenin himself admitted that government by Soviet Councils had failed, and the cry arose to 'nationalize industry.' Leadership by individuals returned, and Sovietism became a freedom-crushing bureaucracy. Now the worker is enslaved by a new all-powerful capitalism more odious than the old."

DOVER PATROL GIFT HANDED TO DANIELS

£6,000 Presented by British People for Monument to be Erected in New York Harbor.

A NAVY WAR MEMORIAL

Daniels Says Anglo-American Friendship Must Be Cemented in Devotion to World Peace.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—In the presence of a group of British and American officials gathered in his office, Secretary Daniels received from Major J. Evelyn Wrench of London, on behalf of the Dover Patrol Committee and the English-Speaking Union, of which Major Wrench is Secretary, a check for £6,000 for the proposed monument to commemorate the association of the American, British and French navies in the war. The monument will take the form of a monolith and will be erected near the entrance of New York Harbor.

The money represented in the check was contributed by between 7,000 and 8,000 British subjects. In offering the check Major Wrench explained that the British Committee of the Fund felt they would like to present to the Government of the United States a sum of money, however modest, for the specific purpose of erecting in America a monument which would serve for all time as a reminder of the cordial cooperation which existed between the American and British navies during the war, and in addition to record our admiration for the important part the American Navy played in the war."

In expressing his appreciation of the gift Secretary Daniels said that "it was a proof of the respect and esteem with which the American naval forces are regarded by the people of Great Britain." He paid a tribute to the work of the Dover Patrol in curtailing the activities of the German submarines, destroyers and aircraft, and in conclusion said to Major Wrench:

"I wish to thank you for coming in person to present this latest token of the comradeship of our countries and of the men of our navies during the World War. The friendship strengthened in the stress of mutual co-operation and sacrifices in war must be cemented in devotion to world peace and world justice in the years of transition and in the decades of peace that we trust lie before us."

Among those who witnessed the ceremony of presentation were Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy; chiefs of the naval bureaus, Sir C. Lindsey, Chargé d'Affaires of Great Britain in Washington; Major General Bethel and Lieut.-Col. Thorn, Attaches of the Embassy, and Rear Admiral Niblack, Chief of Naval Intelligence.

NEW BILLION TO BE TAXED.

Mayor Tells of Great Rise in Real Estate Assessment.

Mayor Hylan held hearings yesterday on a number of legislative bills affecting the city. He announced that he would approve the bill providing for three weeks' vacation to per diem employes in city departments. The men have heretofore received but two weeks' vacation, and the new arrangement will bring their working time to the same proportion as that of other city employes.

When the Mayor took up the bill providing for an increase in the mill tax on real estate, which would mean that there would be an increase of $1,000,000,000 in the assessed valuation of real estate next year. The present valuation is approximately $9,000,000,000.

Sidney E. Mezes, President of City College, pointed out that under the present rate the college obtained as its share of the tax approximately $820,000 a year, and that the amount was inadequate to maintain the institution on a proper basis.

It is expected that the Mayor will sign the bill increasing the salaries of Borough Presidents of Manhattan, Brooklyn and the Bronx from $7,500 to $10,000, and that of the Presidents of Queens and Richmond from $5,000 to the same amount.

ACT DRAMA AND COMEDY.

Jewish Art Theatre Pleases in "Fortune" and "Serving Folk."

Two more plays were added to the growing repertoire of the Jewish Art Theatre last night when a drama by H. Harshowbevski called "Fortune," and a comedy by the late Sholem Allichem entitled "Serving Folk" were presented at the Garden Theatre to a well-filled and appreciative house.

"Fortune" employed the talents of a cast of four, Sonia Gorskaya, as a deserted and lachrymose heroine; Mischa German as an intellectual who finds he cannot build new loves in the shadows of old ones; Rosa Zilbert as the charmer who lures him into misfortune and Jechiel Goldsmith, as the sinister nemesis who visits ruin upon them all.

The play, typically Continental in its presentation and theme, portrayed the futile efforts of two modernists to build up a new structure of happiness upon the shady foundation of shattered conventions and uneasy consciences.

In lighter vein was the one-act skit which followed, and which faithfully portrayed the "life below stairs" in a large Russian country estate. Many of the old-time favorites were in the cast, among them Ben Ami, Bina Abramovitz and Sam Adler.

Mr. Mosler had been an invalid for several years and had been confined to his bed without hope of recovery for the last few months. Most of his life was spent in France and those who tended him in his failing years said that it was a desire to live to see France emerge victorious from the war that kept him alive since first he was stricken in 1914 just after returning to New York for the last time to make his home among his children.

With all the fame and brilliant successes of his long career, Mr. Mosler was as typically a self-made man of humble beginnings as any of those American pioneers of industry whose achievements form a typical chapter of the country's history. His father came here from Germany. Henry was the eldes of seven children. He was born in this city in 1841.

As his father did not prosper at first, for a time he sold newspapers around City Hall and again he worked at stripping tobacco when his father embarked in that business. The family removed to Cincinnati when Henry was 10 years old. The boy already had shown a taste for drawing and was apprenticed to a wood engraver. He found this but a poor preparation for the realization of the dreams which already were beginning to take form, but when he was 16 he chanced to visit a hat shop with his mother and there discovered the hatter at work over an easel in a back room. It was the lad's first experience of actual creation in color and to his great delight he was permitted to become a pupil of the humble, unlearned artist.

The youth found his tutor's methods crude, but he worked away until his family moved to Richmond, Ind., when he was 16. There he executed his first commission, designing and painting a silk banner for the Fire Department. Fifty-seven years later, when his fame had become international and his rank unquestioned, this banner was presented to him as a souvenir of his beginning.

War Artist for Harper's Weekly.

Two years after the banner was painted the family moved back to Cincinnati, where a few amateurs had formed a sketch club under James H. Beard. The youth became a member of the club and thus got his first qualified instruction. He worked away until Major Anderson entered Cincinnati, after the first gun of the civil war was fired at Sumter. Inspired by the military pageantry, Mosler made a sketch which he sent to Harper's Weekly. Soon he received an acceptance, a check and a commission to represent Harper's as a war artist.

For two years Mr. Mosler worked for Harper's until he had acquired enough money to begin seriously to study art. Then, despite the pleadings of the publishers, he resigned his commission and went to the studio of Professor H. Muecke of the Royal Academy. Dusseldorf, and then to the studio of Herbert in Paris. Herbert's teaching he attributed much of his success.

He came back to America and painted his first picture to win some degree of recognition, "The Lost Cause." This was followed by the group "Betsy Ross Making the First American Flag."

His Fame Becomes Worldwide.

In 1874 Mosler returned to Europe, having married in the meantime. He devoted himself to the genre productions which carried his fame over the world. He settled in Brittany and painted "The Quadroon Girl" and "Early Cares," which were accepted by the Salon of 1878. Next year, when he was 39 years old, he painted "Le Retour" (the Return of the Prodigal), which won him an honor no American had achieved before. The picture was bought for the French Government and hung in the Luxembourg. For fifteen years he exhibited yearly in the Salon. Edmond Tarquet, Director of Fine Arts for France, bought "The Purchase of the Wedding Gown" in 1880. In 1883 he won the Salon gold medal and six years later captured the silver medal at the Paris Exhibition. The French Government made him a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor in recognition of his artistic achievements, and he became an officer of the French Academy. Later he entered the American Academy, but resigned many years ago because he disapproved some of its methods.

After twenty years in France, the artist returned to America and opened a studio in Carnegie Hall. Every year thereafter he returned for a time to France, but his love for America and the incidents of American history which lent themselves to pictorial representation was strong and most of his work from then on was devoted to pictures of that sort. These he achieved after the most careful researches and with the most painstaking historical accuracy, which, however, never robbed them of their vigor, freshness and individuality.

One of the best-known paintings of this class is "Ring, Ring the Bell for Liberty," which he accomplished only after a long, tedious search had disclosed the name and something of the characteristics of the man who tolled the bell in the cupola of Independence Hall in '76. Others of his historical paintings are "Paul Jones" and "Washington Crossing the Delaware."

Mr. Mosler is survived by two sons, Dr. Mosler and Arthur Mosler and two daughters, Mrs. Otto Marx and Mrs. J. Feter. The funeral will be tomorrow and will be private. It will be under the auspices of the Loyal Legion and the Masonic bodies of which the painter was a member.

Augustus Buhler, Marine Painter.

Augustus Buhler, the marine and landscape painter, who devoted nearly forty years to the presentation of scenes and people in the neighborhood of Gloucester, Mass., died Sunday in Gloucester in his sixty-seventh year after a long illness. He was born in New York and studied art at the Julien Academy in Paris under Benjamin Constant and Julien Lefebre. On his return he at first did illustrations for the Youth's Companion and Harper's, then turned to water colors and finally to oils. He was a member of the Boston Arts Club and the Salmagundi Club of this city.

Sanford of Minneapolis, professor emeritus of the University of Minnesota, who was here attending the convention of the Daughters of the American Revolution, died suddenly early today at the home of Senator Nelson of Minnesota, where she was a guest. Miss Sanford was one of the leading women educators of the country. YANKEES TO MAKE SEASON'S DEBUT AT POLO GROUNDS TODAY AGAINST ATHLETICS

YANKS OPEN TODAY AT POLO GROUNDS

QUINN AND PERRY TO PITCH

Lieut. Gen. Bullard Will Throw Out First Ball—Usual Ceremonies Mark Inaugural Program.

The Yankees will open their home season at the Polo Grounds this afternoon with all the hurrah and festivity which the momentous situation warrants. Connie Mack's rejuvenated Athletics will be in attendance and provide the opposition at the carnival after the band has finished playing and the preliminary ceremonies have been enacted.

The first ball will be tossed out by Lieut. General Robert L. Bullard, U. S. A., now commanding the Department of the East. This distinguished soldier, who led the First Division in France and later commanded the Second Army, will send the American League season of 1920 on its way, and it is expected that a large representation of Manhattan's baseball public will be present to see if General Bullard has the necessary qualifications for a baseball player.

General Bullard will be accompanied by Colonel William Weigel, Chief of Staff, and a number of other officers from Department Headquarters. The military guests will arrive at the park about 3:20 and will march across the field. The game will start at 3:30 o'clock.

The gates will be thrown open at 12:30 and beginning 1:45, there will be a band concert by John George Frank's band of sixty pieces. The stands will be decorated with flags and bunting.

Of course the main attraction at the opening today will be the first local appearance of Babe Ruth, the home run king, in a Yankee uniform. The famous slugger who has been added to the ranks of Manager Huggins's club made a new world's record last season by banging out 29 home runs, and the local fandom is already spending much time arguing about Ruth's chances of equalling or bettering his own record this season.

While the Yankees have not set the league afire this season, it is too early yet in the club's career to show its real strength. Huggins has had to make various changes in his line-up because of the loss of Baker, Bodie and Fewster. He has placed Meusel at third and Vick in right field and the present line-up should show plenty of power when it gets started.

Fewster is recovering rapidly in Baltimore and feels so well that he pleaded with his physician to be allowed to come to New York today and see the opening game, but the permission was refused. Fewster predicts that he will be back in the game in a few weeks.

The probable line-up of the clubs at today's opening will be:

The rain yesterday spoiled Brooklyn's chances of feasting on another game at the expense of the Boston Braves. The Dodgers were confident of adding to their strip of victories yesterday and wanted a chance to entrench themselves in first place in the league race. The rain fell so heavily in Brooklyn that Ebbet's Field was too muddy to think of playing. While the Dodgers were idle the Pirates won a game and assumed the leadership.

The Giants had a day off, and it was just as well, because they couldn't have played, anyway. The Giants will open their first series on the road in Boston this afternoon, while Brooklyn will play in Philadelphia.

The Yankees, who were unable to play in Boston yesterday on account of the rain, returned to New York early last evening and had a good rest before opening the home season at the Polo Grounds this afternoon.

OPENINGS ARE POSTPONED.

Rain Prevents International League Games in Three Cities.

Rain interfered with the openings scheduled in the International League yesterday at Jersey City, Syracuse and Reading, but the Baltimore club was able to break away as per schedule, the champions of 1919 defeating the Buffalo club by the decisive score of 13 to 0. In the cities where rain made play impossible an effort will be made to pay off the ild this afternoon with all the ceremonies that had been arranged for yesterday.

Dick Hoblitzell's Akron team, a newcomer in the league, was scheduled to open the season with Bill Donovan's team at Jersey City, while Hugh Duffy was all set to make his début as Toronto manager in a game at Reading. A delegation of fifty Toronto fans, headed by Mayor T. L. Church of the Ontario metropolis, accompanied the Maple Leafs to Reading for the opening game. A number of Rochester fans had accompanied Arthur Irwin's team to Syracuse for the opening, and they, too, were disappointed.

The International League will play a schedule of 154 games, the same as the major leagues, the season ending on Sept. 19. The difference of three weeks in playing seasons between the majors and the International is made up through scheduling double headers, and also in the fact that seven of the eight cities allow Sunday baseball. Toronto is the only city in the circuit where Sunday games will not be played.

Pirates' Home Start Delayed.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., April 21.—Officials of the Pittsburgh National League baseball club announced today that the game scheduled for tomorrow at Forbes Field between the Pittsburgh club and the St. Louis Nationals had been postponed, as it has been impossible to put the field in playing condition after the severe rains of the past few days. The game which will open the season here will be played on Friday.

Gibson Denies Trade Rumor.

CINCINNATI, April 21.—George Gibson, manager of the Pittsburgh National League Club said here today that he "couldn't see" the rumored trade of Outfielder Carey and Pitcher Cooper of the Pirates to the St. Louis Cardinals for Pitcher Doak and Infielder Hornsby. He also said that as far as he was concerned there was no foundation to the report.

PIRATES TAKE LEAD IN PENNANT CHASE

Victory of Gibson's Men Over Reds Breaks Tie for First Place—Score Is 5-3.

CINCINNATI, Ohio, April 21.—Ring's wildness in the first inning enabled Pittsburgh to obtain a lead of four runs which the Reds could not overcome and the visitors won their second straight game from the champions, 5 to 3. The Reds outhit the Pirates, but Cooper was effective with runners on the bases and prevented any rallies. The victory put the Pirates in first place in the National League pennant race.

Make It Three Straight in 7 to 4 Victory Over Browns.

CHICAGO, April 21.—Chicago batted out an easy victory over St. Louis today in the final game of the series 7 to 4. Williams pitched in fine form, until the last inning when he eased up, and the visitors bunched five hits. Sisler's batting was the feature. It was Chicago's third straight victory of the season.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 21.—Defeating Harvard at lacrosse here this afternoon by 5 to 2, the Naval Academy won its fourth successive game. The Crimson gave the Midshipmen their hardest tussle in the first six minutes. The Navy scored twice, Moorehouse shooting both goals. Harvard hit a rapid pace, however, and Frenyear tied the score.

A rally at the end of the half, during which Roth and Herring scored, gave the period to the Navy by 4 to 2. Herring's goal near the opening was the only score of the second period.

NAVY NINE BEATS HARVARD BY 3 TO 1

Timely Hitting and Good Base Running Enable Midshipmen to Win Baseball Game.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 21.—In the best game of the present season the Naval Academy baseball nine won by 3 to 1 from Harvard here this afternoon. Both teams fielded in fine style, but the work of the Midshipmen at the bat and on the bases was decidedly better. Lincoln, Harvard's third baseman, did some clever work at the hot corner, and Clougley, the Navy Captain, threw unerringly to bases.

In the second inning the Navy scored on singles by Stubbs and Rawlings and Clougley's out. In the fifth they scored two on Milner's pass and steal, singles by Fino and Poole and Pumphires's sacrifice fly. Harvard scored in the eighth on singles by Lincoln and Edmonds, Baker's wild pitch and Conlon's out.

YALE LEADS HER RIVALS.

Records of "Big Three" in Spring Sports Show Ells in Front.

A summary of all contests in Spring sports with Harvard and Princeton shows that Yale holds a decided advantage over both universities, according to statistics compiled by The Yale Daily News. A majority of the track meets and crew races have resulted in Yale victories, while in baseball Princeton has been outclassed. Harvard here has a slight lead.

In a grand total of forty-five crew races with Harvard, Yale has been victorious in twenty-five. This series of races dates from the first regatta in 1864. Even prior to this date Yale crews had rowed against Harvard in intercollegiate races, but 1864 marks the first year that the two met in a dual race. In that year and the year following Yale was victorious; however, the next five races went to Harvard. For several seasons thereafter a dual race between the universities was not held. But in 1877, when eight-oared crews were used for the first time in place of the four-oared shells, Yale was the winner.

The ensuing season the race was rowed over the New London course for the first time, and the result was a Harvard victory. From then on competition between the two universities was very close, first one winning and then the other. It was not until 1886 that Yale began to take the lead. Starting with that year the Ells won nine out of the ten following races. At this point there ensued a period of four years in which the annual race was not held, followed by six consecutive Yale victories. Harvard's crews then made a decided improvement, and from 1908 until 1913 the Yale crew was consistently defeated. Since 1913 the Yale crew has been on very even terms with her rival. The 1914 and 1915 races were won by Yale, while Harvard gained the victory in 1916 in the fast time of 20 minutes 52 seconds. Due to the war no race was scheduled in 1917, and the next season an informal two-mile race was won by Harvard. The success of Captain Mead's crew last season brought Yale's total of victories up to twenty-five.

In baseball Yale has been defeated by Harvard in a majority of the series played, but leads Princeton by a substantial margin. A unique feature of the baseball comparison with Harvard is that, although Yale has won sixty-nine games to her rival's sixty-five, yet the lead in series is yielded to Harvard by twenty-six to nineteen. In 1868 the first game ever played between the two ended with the score 25-27 in Harvard's favor. Harvard won the series for that year and for several years following. It was not until 1874 that Yale managed to defeat its opponents for the first time. Since then the victories have been very evenly divided, neither Yale nor Harvard ever winning for more than two or three years in succession. The series in 1917 was canceled in account of the war, but in the last two years the Yale nines have won the series in consecutive games.

Yale has generally been victorious over Princeton on the diamond. A total of seventy-six games and twenty-five series for Yale against fifty-three games and twenty series for her opponents bears witness to this fact. In the first few years that the two rivals met, Yale always held the advantage; however, since 1909 the series have been evenly divided, each university having won five.

The Yale track teams have been especially successful. Of the twenty-seven annual meets with Harvard, Yale has won fifteen. In addition, Princeton has been defeated fourteen meets to one. In 1891, first track meet between Yale and Harvard was won by Harvard. For several years Harvard won the majority of the meets, but Yale soon became stronger in this branch of sport and by 1905 each college had won seven meets. From then on the results were very close until in 1915 the two universities were again tied in total number of meets. Three successive victories, however, gave Yale the lead which it now holds.

Princeton has never been able to cope successfully with the Ell track teams. The first time that a dual meet was scheduled between the two colleges was in 1896, but the meets did not become annual until 1908. Since then Princeton has managed to defeat Yale in only one meet and to earn a tie in another, the balance of the victories going to the Ells usually by rather large scores.

Over Fifty Baseball Nines Organized at Penn State

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., April 21.—Over fifty baseball teams are now being organized at Penn State to take part in the mass athletic program outlined by Hugo Bezdek, director of athletics, and as soon as weather conditions permit games will be started on six different diamonds. The teams are divided into an interfraternity league and an interunit league, composed of the nonfraternity men. Thirty-six fraternities have already entered teams and at least twenty units will be represented in their league. The winners in the respective leagues will play for the championship of the college.

These teams are all being formed in addition to the 'Varsity squad and to the various class teams. Over seven hundred students will be taking part in intramural baseball this Spring. Similar leagues will also be formed in tennis and other sports.

CADETS VICTORIOUS IN BASEBALL GAME

Score First Victory of Season on Improvised Diamond, Beating Tufts by 3 to 1.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., April 21.—The Army, anxious to get into the game after a week's idleness, laid out a diamond on the grass parade ground today, and the cadets went through nine innings of fog and rain to their first victory of the season. Tufts, fresh from a defeat at the hands of Fordham yesterday, was the victim. The score was: Army, 3; Tufts, 1.

The collegians tallied in the opener on hits by Fallon, Land and Kirstein, Rowland's smash over second, followed by Wilhide's triple to left, tied the score for the Army in the cadets' half of the third.

Although Morrell showed signs of weakening as early as the sixth, it was not until the eighth that the Army forged ahead. Honnen walked, Keefe's wild throw gave Beasley a life, and Eastman's scorching single to centre scored both runners.

McGrath held the visitors hitless after the second frame and, although Tufts filled the bases in the ninth, the Army's hurler pulled himself together and retired the side. Eastman's shoestring catch and doubling up of Gladu off third in the seventh was the fielding feature.

BAKER LEADS WAY IN HALF-MILE RACE

Glencoe Star Speeds to Front on Last Lap of Feature at Federal Reserve Games.

Homer Baker of the Glencoe A. C., metropolitan half-mile champion, raced to victory last night in the Federal Reserve half-mile special, the feature of the indoor athletic meet of the Federal Reserve Bank A. A. and Fourteenth Regiment A. A., at the latter's armory in Brooklyn. The fleet-footed Glencoe middle-distancer, with a terrific burst of speed over the closing circuit of his four-lap test, led Jake Driscoll of Boston College to the wire by about nine yards. The latter, in turn, managed to annex second place in a spectacular dash which started as the runners were rounding the last turn into the home stretch. Sid Leslie, former Millrose A. A. runner, shaking himself in the final ten yards, finished third, right at Driscoll's shoulder, and Jack Sellers, New York A. C., local 600-yard title holder, was fourth, immediately behind Leslie. Baker's time—1:58 4-5—measures one of the fastest half-miles turned in by a local runner during the now waning season.

Baker's closing burst electrified a crowd of about 3,000 which witnessed the race. For three laps the bespectacled runner had nine back in a field of six starters, while Arthur Reilly, Knights of St. Antony, and Sellers alternated in the pace. As the start was signaled on the last lap by the bark of a gun, Baker, with a suddenness which caught his rivals completely unawares, sprang out from third position and in a few bounds he had headed Sellers. Another twenty-five yards and Baker was leading by five yards, with Sellers, calling on all his strength, striving to close this yawning gap. Leslie, following Sellers, also sought to catch up with the fleet-footed Baker, but did not possess the required strength.

Baker Gains on Rivals.

Racing over the back stretch, Baker, going as if propelled by some mechanical contrivance, gradually picked up ground. Sellers and Leslie continued their almost superhuman efforts to overtake the flying leader, but slowly Baker increased his advantage, until at the finish he was in front by about nine yards. Making the final turn, Driscoll started a belated sprint and like a freak came up on the outside. With every stride he picked up on the tiring Leslie and Sellers until with one final effort he threw himself past the judges at the finish about a foot in front of Leslie. The latter nosed out Sellers for third by a hair line.

Walter Koppisch, young Buffalo middle-distance runner, who participated in the one-mile record-breaking relay race in the Bison City last Saturday, made an auspicious debut in metropolitan competition, in a 660-yard handicap run for Military Athletic League runners. Koppisch, sporting the emblem of the Sixty-fifth Field Artillery, competed from scratch, against a representative field, and annexed the premier prize in 1:25, smashing the old armory record, held by Mel Sheppard, by one and two-fifth seconds.

Koppisch displayed impressive form in racing to victory. He fought his way through a field of fourteen liberally handicapped rivals, and with a determined last-minute spurt broke the worsted less than a yard in front of C. Brodie of the Fourteenth Infantry, who was allowed thirty yards. William Richardson, Seventy-first Infantry, allowed thirty yards, finished third.

PAUL JONES SHOWS FLEET HEELS TO OTHER CRACK THREE-YEAR-OLDS IN NEWARK HANDICAP

PAUL JONES FIRST IN FEATURED RACE

Captain Ral Parr Uncovers Another Promising Derby Candidate at Havre de Grace.

WINS NEWARK HANDICAP

Captures Six-Furlong Sprint from Strong Field in Mud—Handily Defeats Ross Horses.

HAVRE DE GRACE, Md., April 21.—In making his bid for the rich Kentucky Derby and The Preakness, Captain Ral Parr will at least have no complaint to make on the condition of his two most prominent candidates for those events. This was demonstrated here this afternoon when Paul Jones, following the example set a few days ago by his more illustrious stablemate, Blazes, made his début as a three-year-old and captured the Newark Handicap, a six-furlong sprint which brought out no less than five horses which may later strive for the rich purses. Paul Jones made his victory the more impressive by defeating King Thrush, the most highly esteemed of the Derby candidates of J. K. L. Ross and Faisan Dore, another from the same stable, which took third.

As the Newark Handicap was only a sprint it was not a true test of fitness for the Derby or the Preakness, but it was quite evident that Paul Jones was well advanced and was returned to the races with all the speed which made him a consistent winner early last year. He won by a length and a half and finished with fine speed, considering the sloppy track over which he ran, but Jockey Clarence Kummer took no chances with the outcome and rode his mount out to the very end. This was the second victory of the day for Captain Parr. Kummer also had a good afternoon, as he rode three winners.

The Ross entry, King Thrush and Faisan Dore, was made favorite, chiefly because of the victory scored by the first named last week upon his first appearance of the season. Though he is a very promising colt and did get up with a fine show of speed in the final furlong today, it was Faisan Dore which ran the more impressive race of the two. The latter was a keen factor all the way and fought out the issue with the winner to within a sixteenth of the finish.

Paul Jones broke in front but quickly was passed by J. W. May's Vice Chairman, a colt with plenty of early speed and a liking for the track that prevailed today. But Vice Chairman was never able to gain an appreciable advantage, and Paul Jones was lapped on him at through the first half mile. Meantime, King Thrush had started slowly, while Faisan Dore was making the bid for the stable.

Turning into the stretch Paul Jones finally shook off Vice Chairman, which was evidently short and could not maintain his speed. The winner then went to the front with a rush and was soon leading by a length. Faisan Dore was still trying vainly to catch the winner and suddenly tired under the effort, but King Thrush had found his racing legs by this time and came up in the last few strides to take the place from his stablemate by half a length. Kummer could probably have won without as much effort as he made in the stretch, but he took no chances when he saw King Thrush dashing through the mud and water and overhauling his field.

Great Three-Year-Olds Are to Show Paces in Preakness

HARVE DE GRACE, Md., April 21.—Horsemen are showing a great deal of interest in the Chesapeake Stakes, a $5,000 race for three-year-olds at a mile and seventy yards which will be run here Saturday, as it will afford the first opportunity to see a considerable number of the candidates for the Kentucky Derby and The Preakness in action against each other. Though run at a shorter distance than the big races to follow, the Cheapeake is designed as a preliminary test for The Preakness especially, and forty-four of the best of the three-year-olds have been named for it. The list of nominations contains the names of several horses which are expected to figure prominently this year. Among these are Blazes and Paul Jones which have already won; John P. Grier, Dr. Clark and Upset of the H. P. Whitney string; King Thrush and Royal Jester, owned by J. K. L. Ross; Vice Chairman, Blue Wrack, Lady Brummel, Head Over Heels, Bullet Proof, Rapid Traveler, King's Champion and Herron, winner of the Cuban Derby.

PICKING FOURTH MAN PROBLEM IN TENNIS

Garland or Harte Seems Logical Selection for Davis Cup Team.

The announcement of three names selected for the Davis Cup tennis team, which will represent the United States abroad this Summer, has led to much conjecture as to the possible fourth man for the international competition. The players most generally mentioned are Charles S. Garland, Richard Harte and Wallace F. Johnson. R. Lindley Murray, former national champion, is another possibility, but there is a feeling that the great left-hander may be unable to take the time necessary for the trip. Moreover, the problem is really to find a doubles partner for either Johnston or Tilden, not to add another singles star to the aggregation.

In this respect, Murray does not seem as likely a candidate as either Garland or Harte. Neither is Richard Norris Williams, 2d, the third choice for singles, a promising man for the doubles. It has been argued that Johnston and Tilden, in combination, would present an unbeatable team, as they indicated last Summer by defeating Brookes and Patterson without any practice together. But no one who saw that match could claim that the American pair played good doubles. Individually they were overwhelmingly superior to their opponents, and the Australians had an off day, which made their downfall a comparatively simple matter. Both Johnston and Tilden frankly confess that they do not care to play doubles together, quite apart from geographical considerations, which would make it impossible for them to get the necessary experience together. Both are natural leaders on the court, and each one plays far better when he feels himself the captain of his side.

This was the case both with the old national champion team of Johnston and Griffin and with the later titleholders, Tilden and Richards. When the latter improved at such a rate that he was able to play his partner on even terms, and even to defeat him for the indoor championship, the teamwork of the pair gradually went to pieces.

At Southampton last Summer Garland took the place of Richards as Tilden's partner, and the two presented an impregnable front, winning the tournament easily. These two expect to play together in a number of events this Summer, unless the plans of the Davis Cup Committee definitely call for a different arrangement.

Since Griffin's decline, which was clearly demonstrated last season, Johnston has been without a worthy doubles partner, and it would be difficult to find one on the coast at present. Willis Davis and Roland Roberts are possibilities, but both have still to prove their mettle in international competition. Harte might make a good partner for either Johnston or Tilden, although here also geographical factors must be considered. The former Harvard star played sensational tennis indoors all Winter, with two victories over Tilden to his credit. Last Summer he played Williams in the Longwood finals, first defeating Garland and other stars. He was not ranked, because of insufficient play, but is included in the list of Davis Cup candidates, and unquestionably belongs in or near the first ten.

Wallace Johnson is ranked above Williams on the last season's record, and has had the experience of going abroad on a previous Davis Cup team. His chopping game might prove a powerful asset against the conventional methods of the Europeans, but he is far more of a singles than a doubles player. Altogether the choice of either Garland or Harte would seem logical enough, depending partly on which of the acknowledged leaders the committee decides to use in the doubles. Only actual experience on the courts can give the problem a definite answer.

BROOKLYN'S SPRING HORSE SHOW OPENS

More Than 2,500 Attend Opening Session—Past Record for Entries Broken.

More than 2,500 lovers of fine horses crowded and jammed their way into the Riding and Driving Club last night to witness the opening of the twenty-eighth annual Brooklyn Horse Show. The exhibition, which will run for three days more, ending on Saturday evening, marked the inaugural of the Spring and Summer horse show season, and if last night is a reliable criterion the season should be highly successful.

The large crowd was not the only notable feature of the first evening of the show. All records for the number of entries were completely shattered, nearly 900 entires having been made. These include many of the foremost horses in the East.

Society, as usual, made the most of the occasion. The flag-draped boxes, the only bits of color in the arena, were comfortably filled early in the evening, and names prominent in the social register of Brooklyn were on the list of boxholders. The lower stands at the sides of the ring were also occupied to capacity by a fashionably clad throng. The entire scene was a striking display of gowns, jewels and color—the three features that have marked the opening of horse shows from time immemorial.

Society in Attendance.

Among the prominent persons who were present were: Mr. and Mrs. Thomas L. Leeming, Mrs. Charles F. Hubbs, Mr. and Mrs. John Anderson, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Ames, Mr. and Mrs. John Gerken, Mrs. Edward C. Blum, Miss Alice Blum, Miss Madeline Ames, Miss Lida Fleitman, Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton H. Salmon, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick MacKay, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Howells, Mrs. William M. Alford, Clarence H. Robbins, Frederick V. Clark, Miss Belle Beach and Captain Charles F. Holm.

Sixty classes will be judged before the show is ended on Saturday evening, and it is interesting to note as another indication of the revival of interest in harness events, that eighteen of the sixty are of that class. Of the ten events last night, three were harness classes.

Miss Isabella Wanamaker, whose blue ribbon winners in the past have been numerous, is one of the leading exhibitors in the Brooklyn show. Her first entry, however, failed to live up to the Wanamaker record. Astonishment, a roan mare, being forced to yield first place in Class 14, novice harness horses, to Irvington Ganymede, a chestnut gelding owned by Franklin B. Jourdan of Brooklyn. Jack Donnelly drove the winner, which is one of Mr. Jourdan's new horses. Astonishment took second honors and R. Lawrence Smith's Seaton Sylvia was third. There were no other entries in this class.

Miss Wanamaker gained due and just revenge against Mr. Jourdan for her defeat in the Class 14 competition by carrying off first honors from the Brooklyn exhibitor in the class for harness horses in pairs, one of the most important classes of the evening. Miss Wanamaker pitted Eve, a chestnut mare, and Netherall's Pride, a chestnut gelding, against Mr. Jourdan's crack pair of harness horses, and took the blue ribbon after a striking display of style, pace and all-around action. Mr. Jourdan's entry, which had to be satisfied with second place, was Montpelier Pearl and Waddington Rector. Third honors went to Miss Constance Vaucilain's The Wasp and Dragon Fly.

The Lillian L., a bay mare owned by Miss Anna C. Ehlers of Montclair, N. J., won first prize in another of the main events, the saddle horse class for steeds over 14.2 hands and not exceeding 15 hands. Alice A. Dodsworth's Chick Harley was a close second, and third honors went to Bimble, a bay gelding entered by Miss Mary Van Brunt. J. A. P. Ramsdell's Lightnin' was fourth. The price was $50 and a medal offered by the Association of American Horse Shows.

Forty-two Jumpers Compete.

The last harness class of the night resulted in a double victory for Mrs. F. P. Garvan, whose Hamilton Flame was awarded first place. Her Hamilton Dianthus was second, and Berkley Smiles, one of David B. Rintoul's many entries, took third prize.

The first event of the evening was perhaps the most interesting of all. It was for forty-two jumpers over jumps of four feet. The blue ribbon went to Billing, a sturdy chestnut gelding owned by Charles D. Lanier of New York City. The winning horse took the jumps well and combined with this an abundance of dash and boldness. Second to the Lanier entry was Silver Tip, a bay gelding owned and ridden by William Dupont, who developed the horse on Foxcatcher Farm, Rosemont, Pa. Mr. Dupont was one of the few owners who rode their own horses, and he showed considerable skill in guiding Silver Tip over the bars.

Charles Butler's W. J. P. carried off third honors in the jump, and fourth place went to Ramapo, a bay gelding owned by William Schenstrom. Miss Constance Vaucilain's sole entry, Spitfire, failed to place. Arbiter is a new horse that has never been exhibited before.

Butler's Second Victory.

Charles Butler won his second triumph of the evening in the novice saddle ponies class, in which Mademoiselle, a five-year-old, took first place. The gaits required were the walk, trot and canter. David B. Rintoul's Garland was second, and the same exhibitor carried off third honors when his Berkeley Smiles received the judges' decision. Whonna, the property of L. P. Yandel, was fourth.

The awards last night were as follows:

MURRAY NO MATCH FOR JIMMY WILDE

Referee Stops New Jersey Bout in Eighth Round to Save Quaker from Punishment.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMDEN, N. J., April 21.—Within thirty seconds of the close of the final round in the eight-round bout between Jimmy Wilde of England, flyweight champion of the world, and Battling Murray of Philadelphia, at the Camden Sportsmen's Club tonight, Referee William H. Rooap stopped the contest to save Murray from further punishment.

Murray was down three times in the last session. He had got off to a whirlwind start, flooring Wilde with a left hook in the first round.

Murray earned the first round, making it sure when he knocked Wilde down with a left hook to the jaw. Wilde took a count of two. Shortly afterward the Briton spurted and sent over several rapid fire leads. Murray added to his advantage, however, when he caught Wilde with another left that rocked the Briton's head. Wilde boxed more cautiously in the second and succeeded in gaining an even break. He played it safe. Murray swung wildly and missed several roundhouse wallops. The Briton appeared in the early part of the round to be feeling the effects of the knockdown he received in the first round.

Murray went to the fore again in the third. He landed two rights full force to the Englishman's chin and Wilde's head flew back with the punches. Wilde didn't appear to have the pep that he showed in his previous bouts. Murray's heavy blows seemed to sap his steam.

Murray held his lead in the fourth, when he sent Wilde back with several rights. In the fifth Wilde began to find himself and Murray, the battler, laid back for one punch, while Wilde sent over clean short punches to the head. In the sixth Wilde started going. He left-jabbed Murra, and crossed his right many times without a return. In all Wilde shot in twenty-nine punches without a return. One was a straight right that sent Murray to the ropes and brought blood to his lips.

The seventh saw Wilde making Murray miss by inches, while the Briton sent over short rights to the head. In the eighth Wilde scored three knockdowns, catching Murray while he was in the air. The referee stopped the bout after Murray went down the third time, taking a count of four. Murray also was bleeding from a bad cut he received over the eye when their heads came together.

CARPENTIER TO BOX MAY 2.

American Ring Debut to be Staged at 71st Regiment Armory.

Georges Carpentier, premier European heavyweight boxer, will make his American ring début in this city. The popular Frenchman will appear in a boxing bout at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory Sunday night, May 2, as part of an extensive program arranged for the purpose of obtaining subscriptions to the fund for the proposed Army and Navy Building, for which a drive will be held throughout the week beginning May 2.

Final arrangements for Carpentier's participation were completed last night at a meeting in the Navy Club, East Forty-first Street. Jack Curley, who has Carpentier under contract for a tour beginning May 3, agreed to the European champion's part in the affair.

Carpentier will appear in a boxing exhibition against one of the sparring partners who have been signed to tour the country with him. The length of the exhibition has not been definitely agreed upon, but it probably will be for four rounds.

TO MEET BRITISH COLLEGE GOLFERS

All-American Team of Amateurs Will Play Oxford-Cambridge Linksmen Abroad.

An all-American team of golf amateurs is to be sent across the Atlantic by the U. S. G. A. this Spring to face the combined Oxford-Cambridge team in a special international match. Announcement of this important event, which is actually a return compliment to the British, who in the Fall of 1903 sent an Oxford-Cambridge team to this country, has been authorized by Robert A. Gardner, the former national amateur champion. Gardner is going to England next month as a member of the Rules of Golf Committee of the U. S. G. A., and also to play in the British amateur championship at Muirfield. In addition he will play on the American team against the English collegians.

Only three members of the team from this side have given acceptance to the U. S. G. A., according to Gardner. They are Grant A. Peacock, former Princeton star and former clubmate at Pittsburgh of S. Davidson Herron but who now makes his residence in this city, and Nelson M. Whitney of New Orleans, holder of several sectional titles, including the Transmississippi and the Southern amateur championships. The officials of the governing body have been close-mouthed about the newest of the golf invasions of Europe this Summer, and this announcement will come as a distinct surprise to the golfing public, which has been led to believe that only the four women who sailed last Saturday, the professionals and Gardner would play in British tournaments.

Many Stars Unable to Go.

Gardner indicates that a team of representative size will be selected. Undoubtedly the difficulty lies in obtaining leaders of American golf who can afford to devote six or more weeks of the Spring to such a trip. Both Herron, the champion, and Bobbie Jones, the runner-up in the national last Summer, have flatly denied that they planned to compete this season in England. The reason in Jones's case was that his parents insisted that he continue his studies at Georgia Tech. When Francis Ouimet was in New York two weeks ago he indicated that there was a doubt about his going abroad, but he said he was almost positive that he would be unable to make the trip. Various reports from the Middle West have been to the effect that Chick Evans might go abroad, but in each instance they have been followed by denials from the Edgewater star.

According to Gardner, the matches will be played just before the start of the British amateur tournament, which will begin June 7 at Muirfield, Scotland. Undoubtedly they will be scored similarly to the event in this country seventeen years ago, a point for winning each thirty-six-hole encounter. Although the U. S. G. A. has seen fit as yet to divulge none of the arrangements, it is fair to assume that if golfers of the high calibre of Peacock and Whitney are once abroad they will not be satisfied with meeting the collegians but will join Gardner in teeing up for the qualifying round of the British amateur event.

Relations in Athletic Lines.

The fact that the Americans will meet the joint Oxford-Cambridge team is of especial interest this year because of the other cordial relations existing between English colleges and the athletes of this nation. The Oxford-Cambridge team of relay runners, which recently arrived, is now at Philadelphia practicing for the Penn relays, and there is a possibility that the Union Boat Club of Boston and possible other clubs or colleges will send crews abroad to meet the English collegians in the famous Henley regatta early in July.

The last previous international match with Oxford-Cambridge golfers was held on Sept. 7, 1906, at the Nassau Country Club, Glen Cove, L. I., and resulted in a victory for the Americans. The score was 5 and 4, nine players constituting each team.

DEMAND FOR GOLF DATES.

Nearby Clubs Plan Three-Day Tourneys Early in Season.

Instead of being forced to urge nearby golf and country clubs to liven up the Spring and early Summer by holding three-day tournaments, local officials charged with arranging events are fairly overwhelmed with applications for choice dates on the calendar. No less than six clubs in the Metropolitan district will hold the popular three-day invitation tourneys, and as these are always played on Thursday, Friday and Saturday, they will account for six weeks of the early season. The clubs which have applied are Garden City Golf Club, Deal, Fox Hills, Nassau, Sleepy Hollow and the National Golf Links of America. In addition the annual Victory Cup tournament at Siwanoy will be a fixture.

Many applications also have been made for events of the one-day variety, insuring an unusually busy July. June will be amply filled by sectional and county tournaments carrying championship titles.

All Metropolitan handicaps have been received from individual clubs and the list is now at the printers. New York lags behind both Philadelphia and Boston in making public the tournament schedules and the handicap lists. Other than the announcement that Garden City probably will usher in the local tournament season, about May 13, no dates have been awarded officially.

Higher Cost of Golf May Be Noted Soon on Nearby Links

The old H. C. L. is hovering around the golf professionals in the metropolitan district in a way that is ominous to the beginners. Whereas the prevailing rate for instruction at the larger nearby courses is $2 an hour, there is a sentiment which is gaining ground among the pros that this rate is incommensurate with the other charges for the game on the links. They reason this way: One hour on a course is worth to a beginner five hours indoors, yet most instructors at indoor golf schools throughout the Winter charged $3 an hour, and some got as high at $4. Several pros within the last week have approached club committeemen with the request that the rate be raised to $3 an hour for outdoor instruction. In Philadelphia no such advance in prices is evident. Huntington Valley, one of the larger Quaker courses, has a rate of $1.50 an hour and $1 for a half hour.

JENKINS RALLIES AND DEFEATS FOSS

Comes from Behind in Pocket Billiard Tourney, Winning by 100 to 89.

Playing some of the greatest uphill pocket billiards that has been seen this season, R. H. Jenkins defeated Humboldt Foss at the Broadway Billiard Academy last night in the tournament for the metropolitan championship of the National Association of Amateur Billiard Players. The score was 100 to 89. This victory advanced Jenkins to a tie for third place with H. Saltus.

Jenkins was far below his normal form at the start of the match, and by the end of the sixth frame Foss was leading by a score of 50 to 14. Quite unexpectedly, however, Jenkins found his stroke, and began clicking off the balls. He caught Foss in the eleventh frame, tying the score at 71. In the next frame Jenkins took the lead by a score of 82 to 80. Thereafter he was not headed.

After his poor start Jenkins played some of the best pocket billiards that has been seen in the tournament thus far. In no less than five frames he got eleven of the fourteen balls. His high run was 11. It was his position play more than anything else that enabled him to come from behind, overcome the tremendous handicap that Foss piled up early in the game and win by a fair margin.

Foss on the other hand, slowed up perceptibly in his work after a most auspicious start. Prior to the game he was generally favored to win, and it seemed that the confidence of his backers was well placed when he started out with such a rush.

The score by frames:

R. H. Jenkins—2 10 1 3 0 8 8 9 11 11 11 5 11 7 11. Total, 100; high run, 11.

H. Foss—11 4 13 11 14 6 6 5 3 3 3 9 3 7 3. Total, 89; high run, 14.

COLUMBIA GOLFERS NAMED.

Captain Walker Announces Team to Compete in First Match.

Captain A. Lucien Walker, Jr., captain of the Columbia golf team, announced yesterday the makeup of the team that will open the season with the Fox Hills Golf Club Saturday morning on the Richmond County Club links, Staten Island. Four teams of two men each will represent the Blue and White in the foursomes in the morning and eight individual golfers will play in the twosomes in the afternoon. The Nassau system of scoring, one point for the winner of each nine holes and one point for the entire eighteen, will be used.

Walker will team off with Philbrick in the foursomes, and will also head the Columbians in the twosomes. Several new players will make their début in Saturday's match.

The lineups will be as follows: foursomes, Walker and Philbrick, Rohdenberg and Van Raalte, Schreiber and Towers, Church and Ellers; twosomes, Walker, Schreiber, Rohdenberg, Van Raalte, Philbrick, Towers, Palmton, and either Ellers or Church.

COLUMBIA CREWS GO TO DERBY TODAY

'Varsity and Junior Oarsmen on Their Way for Clash with Yale on Housatonic

Columbia's 'Varsity and junior 'Varsity crews will leave this morning for Derby, Conn., to take up quarters near the scene of the opening race of the season with Yale on Saturday afternoon. The Blue and White also shipped its two shells by rail yesterday and will hold its initial workout on the Housatonic this afternoon.

The delegation that leaves this city at 9 o'clock this morning will include twenty 'Varsity oarsmen, in addition to the coaches, trainers and managers. The entire contingent will go straight to Derby, where accommodations have been arranged for in the Clark Hotel. In the party will be the first and second crews, two coxswains and two substitute rowers, Helwig and Wright.

No practice was staged yesterday afternoon, Coach Jim Rice detailing some of the oarsmen to the arduous task of loading the shells into a box car on the Harlem River siding. The shells were the Edwin Gould and the Bogue, which will be used by the first and second eights, respectively, on Saturday. The boats were shipped to Derby last night and if they arrive safely and on time, Rice will order a practice spin this afternoon. The final workout will be held tomorrow.

With his customary reticence, the Columbia rowing mentor last night declined to hasard any predictions as to his crews' chances against Guy Nickalls's eights. Fred Plaisted, the assistant coach, made the unequivocal declaration that "Columbia will win," but Rice refused to follow suit.

"The only thing I can say is that it will be a good race," he stated. "We will give Yale a hard fight and the result should be close. My crews are still a little rough and inexperienced and they will be a whole

ARBITERS' AWARDS NOW BINDING IN LAW

Signing of Walton Bill Ends Power to Withdraw from Agreements.

MARKS END OF LONG FIGHT

Squares Business Conscience with Public Opinion, Declares Charles L. Bernheimer.

Contracts between employers and employes to arbitrate differences and between business men in disputes are made enforceable by law in this State under Senate Bill No. 357, introduced by Senator Walton, passed unanimously by both houses and signed by Governor Smith. The new law is the outcome of a long campaign by the Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York.

Arbitration agreements hitherto have had only moral force. Employer or employe could decline to go through with the arbitration agreement. Business men who had actually submitted their dispute to arbitrators, in accordance with their contract to do so, could withdraw even after the other side had submitted its case, thus giving an advantage in a future lawsuit to the party revoking the agreement.

These agreements could not be enforced because of ancient English decisions that no man could be deprived, or could deprive himself, of his right to have his dispute passed on by a court. In a volume, "Commercial Arbitration and the Law," written at the suggestion of the New York Chamber of Commerce, Julius Henry Cohen traced this conception of the law back to the days of Coke and showed that the arbitration of business disputes was killed by the hostility of lawyers who opposed the reduction of litigation. The lawyers of the seventeenth century made their influence felt in shaping the precedents which have ruled in English-speaking countries for 300 years. The Bar Association of the State of New York and many eminent lawyers were active, however, in finally breaking down this barrier to the easy adjustment of commercial and other disputes.

The Walton Act does not compel any one, either employer, business man, employe or labor union, to enter into any arbitration agreements. Having once entered such an agreement, however, they are not at liberty to disregard it, as in the past.

If one party refuses to arbitrate a question, which he has agreed to arbitrate, the other party may appeal to the Supreme Court. If the agreement to arbitrate is admitted, it becomes the duty of the court to direct an arbitration in accordance with the agreement. If there is a dispute as to whether the question at issue is covered by the arbitration agreement, the court to which application is made must proceed at once to trial to determine this question of fact.

If the agreement does not provide the manner of arbitration, the law prescribes that the Supreme Court, upon application, shall name the arbitrator or arbitrators. Unless the agreement specifies otherwise, a single arbitrator is to be named. All commercial agreements, capital and labor agreements, and all other contracts to arbitrate are thus enforceable, with the following exception described by the act:

"It is not applicable to controversies arising respecting a claim to an estate in real property in fee or for life."

Charles L. Bernheimer, Chairman of the Committee of Arbitration of the Chamber of Commerce, who has been working for an act of this kind for eleven years, and who obtained the support of a large number of commercial organizations throughout the State for the law, said yesterday that it did away with "an impression in the foreign mind that the American merchant entered into such agreements under false pretenses." He added that the business conscience now was squared with public opinion.

Sends Carloads of Shoes by Mail.

MIDDLEBORO, Mass., April 21.—Express and freight shipments continue so uncertain because of strike and embargo conditions on the railroads that shoe manufacturers here are shipping shoes by mail in carload lots. One car which left here today carried $3,000 in postage. Several more cars of parcel post matter from the factories will be sent out during the week.

SEA OTTER BRINGS $1,300.

From the point of view of the high prices obtained, sea otter was easily the feature at the local fur sale yesterday. The best of these skins, which are said by experienced fur men to be the rarest and most costly furs known, was purchased by a well-known local firm for $1,300. The next best skin of the three went to an English buyer at $1,025. The smallest skin in the lot brought $625. By way of contrast, a collection of 157 skins known to the fur trade as "golyaks," brought one cent each.

Also from the high-price viewpoint, Russian sables were second in interest. The choicest of these skins commanded $540 each. Russian sable tails were taken at prices ranging from $3.10 to $3.20. The other "royal fur"—ermine—in the opinion of buyers present furnished the weakest spot in the day's sales. The purchase prices for these skins began at 16 cents and ran up to $2.50.

The morning session opened with the offering of otter held over from Tuesday. Bidding was generally good for these skins, although more especially so for the brown pelts, and the top price was $66. Opossum brought prices that began at 25 cents and ran up to $4.35. The average figure brought by No. 1 opossum was $2.60, while the average for No. 2s was $1.85. House cats did fairly well. The poorest were sold for 5 cents and the best ones for $1.15 each.

Chinchilla, pony, leopard and ringtail cat skins were also sold yesterday. As on the earlier days of the sale, prices paid for other than prime, fresh furs showed varying declines from the levels established at the February sale here. This applied to practically all of the furs sold. Buyers were apparently willing to pay well for the pelts they really wanted, but otherwise there was a spirit of caution evident through most of the day. Yesterday's sales reached $675,000, which brought the grand total for three days to $2,125,000.

The low and high prices paid by buyers for the furs sold yesterday are given in the appended table. With them are given the percentage advances these prices showed when compared with those paid at last April's sale of similar pelts:

	Low Price.	High Price.	Advance, Per Cent.)
Otter	$7.00	$66.00	*40
House cat	.00	1.15	15
Pony	.20	3.00	†..
Leopard	3.00	25.00	20
Ermine	.16	3.50	†..
Chinchilla	2.00	106.00	†..
Russian sable	13.00	540.00	†..
Sea otter	625.00	1,300.00	†..
Ringtail cat	.25	3.40	†..

*This advance was on Northern otter. Southwestern otter skins went up 70%. †Not compared. ‡Unchanged.

Muskrat will be a feature of today's selling. About 330,000 will be offered, including nearly 17,000 blacks. Another feature will be the offering of about 1,212,000 moleskins. Badger, lynx and wildcat also will be sold.

BUSINESS WORLD

COMMERCIAL PAPER.

Yesterday, 6% to 7 per cent. for the best names. Today, 6% to 7 per cent. for the best names. The quotations are for six months' paper.

Washes and Dries Clothes.

A clothes washing machine has just been placed on the market that combines cleaning and drying. The washer consists of a perforated metal cylinder turning at the rate of forty revolutions a minute. At every fourth revolution it reverses. The extractor or drier at top speed turns at 3,500 revolutions a minute, the water flying off through centrifugal force. The machine is operated by a motor which needs to develop but one-half horse power to do the work. The device will be sold to hotels, laundries and private homes.

No Disposition to Change.

The leading buyers of women's apparel, who some months ago brought the wrath of the manufacturers on their heads by counseling more conservative purchasing, have not changed the tenor of their advice one iota. In fact, what was then a cautiously advanced opinion is now a settled conviction that prices have to come down. Even in the case of certain articles that have shown little signs of price weakness, predictions are now freely made that concessions will come. In cotton goods, for instance, a drop is thought not at all unlikely.

Dress Goods Continue Slow.

The accordeon and knife pleated garments that are fashionable in women's wear would ordinarily call for a larger amount of dress goods, but first hands in this market have yet to feel any activity as a result. In fact, conditions are very dull in the business, and the opinion is held that quantities of goods in second hands as well as those owned by manufacturers must have been very large to prevent a reflection of this fashion factor so favorable to the trade. Some of the largest operators in the cutting-up trade are out of the market entirely except for goods "at a price." Concessions are being given more freely.

Gray Goods Sales Fair.

Considering the sharp break in cotton a fair amount of trading was done in gray goods here yesterday. The feature was the selling of Eastern 38½-inch 80-48s, for April-May delivery, at 24½ cents. This was the first time that price was paid for these goods for shipment further ahead than spots, and it was said to be due to their scarcity. Eastern 38½-inch 64-60s, spot, brought 20½ cents. Save for sheetings, buying of which was fairly active, the rest of the market showed little life. Sheetings sales included April-May 5.50s at 18¾ cents, April 5-yard cloths at 20¼ cents and May-June 56-60, four-yard goods at 20½ cents.

Hits at Piece Goods.

If the enterprising manufacturers of clothing who intend to capitalize the overall movement instead of letting it hurt them by making suits of denim, succeed in getting trade, it was pointed out yesterday, the movement may turn out to be more of a slap at the piece goods mills than at the clothing makers. It was explained in the trade yesterday that the houses specializing in Summer clothing might well take up the production of denim suits to their profit. At $15, which is a price some wearers of denim appear willing to pay, these manufacturers might furnish garments cut in the latest patterns. All told, the trade does not take the overall idea very seriously.

Japanese Drug Prices Drop.

On the report of a money flurry in Tokio, Japanese drug products precipitately declined in price on attempts of holders to realize by immediate sales of available material in New York and Pacific Coast markets, Drug and Chemical Markets will say today. Camphor, which sold only a month ago at $3.50 a pound, was offered at $2. Even lower prices were paid in some cases. Soya bean oil fell from 18 cents to 12, a very sharp drop for that product, but recovered most of the loss. In the heavy chemicals, speculators took advantage of the recent slump in sodium bichromate, due to the railway workers' strike, and advanced prices. In the dyestuffs, coal-tar intermediates are firm at very high prices, because of the shortage. Speculators have taken advantage of the situation to corner supplies and put up prices.

Will Extend Millinery Showing.

Partly because of the unusual success of the venture and partly because of the number of buyers who were kept from coming to this and other markets earlier in the week by the uncertainty of passenger service on the railroads, the wholesale showings of "Summer hats for Summer wear," which began on Monday, will be continued through the coming week in the leading markets of the country. The displays are a part of the "Four millinery seasons a year" campaign being carried on under the auspices of the Millinery Chamber of Commerce of the United States. Their extension through next week will carry them right to the opening of the retail showings of Summer hats, which under a plan adopted by the Retail Millinery Association of America, will occur simultaneously all over the country during the week beginning May 3.

A New Way of Making Profit.

A new lesson in how to run a business at a profit was taught to a local business man yesterday. He had got tired of paying high rents, so he bought a loft building. Finding that the hoist way required some repairs, he arranged to have the job done. It took two men two days to do the job, which was about three times as long as it should have taken, and when the bill was rendered it was at the rate of $14 a day for each man, or a total of $56 for the job. While that seemed high to the owner of the building he did not complain, but there was another item which rather got his goat. This was an additional charge of $5.60, or 10 per cent. of the bill, which was alleged to be the cost of the workmen's compensation insurance while on the job. The owner got in touch with an insurance broker, who told him that this cost should have been charged at the rate of $1.62 per cent., which meant about $2.15. In other words, the employer of the men had made an extra profit of about $3.50.

Comparative Labor Costs.

One of the great stumbling blocks described by garment manufacturers in discussing the possibility of lower prices is the factor of labor costs. According to representatives in the trade, it costs almost as much to make a high priced suit or coat as it does to turn out a cheaper garment. The only difference, they contend, is in the price the material going into the merchandise, because at weekly instead of piece work rates labor gets paid the same. A leading manufacturer yesterday, however, objected to this argument. The garment house that cannot get lower labor charges on its popular priced garments, he said, deserves little consideration. Constructions can be used, he explained, that yield much faster production, thus lowering the labor cost on the individual units. He added that while manufacturers could sell higher priced articles, it was not to be supposed they would devote their efforts to cheaper merchandise on which smaller profits obtain. The time is fast approaching, if it is not already here, he said, when there will be a wider range of values offered.

BUSINESS NOTES.

The Dry Goods Union, of which William Moeller is manager, yesterday had a meeting of buyers of linens and domestics that was well attended. Among the offerings was airplane linen, which was freely bought.

Through a typographical error it was stated yesterday that the entertainment section of the party to be given on the roof of the New Amsterdam Theatre by the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation to the shippers to and buyers at the Spring auction would begin at 3 P. M. It should have been 9 P. M. A dinner preceding the entertainment will be served at 7 o'clock.

CORDUROY

Work Started on 3,000-Foot Pier, First Unit of Jersey City Project.

SIX MILES OF WHARF SPACE

Plant Will Cover 550 Acres and Cost Millions—Ore Handling a Feature.

Another link in the chain of big terminal and water front improvements along the Jersey shore was added yesterday when the Lehigh Valley Railroad announced that work had started on an ocean and freight terminal in the Greenville section of Jersey City. The new development will cost millions and will be known as the Claremont Terminal.

Other projects across the Hudson, designed to enormously expand New York's facilities for handling commerce, are the huge pier and terminal plans of the Cunard and other steamship companies, and the New York Central Railroad, which, if arrangements now pending are completed, plans to install about $3,000,000 worth of trackage to hook up the steamship companies' operation.

The first unit of the Lehigh Valley's terminal will be a 3,000-foot pier near the foot of Chapel Street, Jersey City. This site is approximately directly across the Bay from the Bay Ridge section of Brooklyn. To reach the pier a thirty-five-foot channel is now being dredged, this operation requiring the removal of 3,500,000 cubic feet of material.

According to an official of the railroad, the Claremont Terminal will ultimately cover 550 acres and will be about eight times the size of the first unit. Pier space alone, it was said, would be more than six miles in length. The pier upon which construction has been started will afford docking facilities for five or six steamships of the largest size, and will be built on timber piles with a concrete deck. At the extreme outer end a modern plant for the unloading of ore from vessels to cars will be installed, containing four unloaders. When the entire machinery has been set it will be possible to unload ships at the rate of 2,500 tons of ore an hour, or load one freight car a minute.

It was said that the loaders would be used principally by the Bethlehem Steel Company in connection with the movement of ore from steamships to cars en route to its plant at Bethlehem, Pa. Arrangements between the railroad and the corporation have been completed to this end.

The shore end of the piers of the completed terminal will be equipped with electrically operated gantry cranes of thirty-ton capacity, each covering a serving area of four tracks. Between the piers and the trackage of the terminal will be several two-story steel and concrete warehouses, 800 feet long and 100 feet wide. A yard with a capacity of 500 cars will be built adjacent to the piers and a power house of 4,000-kilowatt capacity will be installed.

At the New York Central offices, officials asked to comment on the reported plans of the railroad declared that the plans were still in the formulative stage. It was admitted, however, that about $3,000,000 would be expended in putting in trackage in connection with the huge terminals already under way for the Cunard and other lines. The Central's improvement will be constructed just north of Weehawken, at Bull's Ferry, and about opposite Thirty-fourth Street in Manhattan. An application for grant of riparian rights is now under consideration by the New Jersey Board of Commerce and Navigation.

WOULD REORGANIZE STATE GOVERNMENT

E. H. Hooker Favors Executive Budget System and Other Reforms.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., April 21.—Declaring that everywhere, high and low, there is a distinct drop in morale and individual responsibility, Elon Huntington Hooker of Niagara Falls and New York today discussed "common sense in business and government" at the noon luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce.

Pointing out the big increases of cost of running the State, Mr. Hooker said that future increases would be paid largely out of the income taxes, although "we did not like the tax we paid this year." He advocated reorganization of the State Government to eliminate waste, systemize expenditures, and centralize responsibility, and he favored the adoption of the executive budget system, pointing out that New York was one of the only two States retaining the legislative budget system.

Mr. Hooker urged full development of the State barge canal system, which cost $150,000,000, and said there should be a bond issue for construction of boats and tugs to give canal service to the people.

Mr. Hooker has been mentioned as a possible "dark horse" candidate for the Republican nomination for Governor. There was very little discussion today of Mr. Hooker's Gubernatorial possibilities.

AKRON GAINS 139,368.

Increase of 201 Per Cent. Puts Her Ahead of Dayton and Syracuse.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—With an increase of 139,368 in its population during the last decade, Akron, Ohio, with a 1920 census population of 208,435 has gone ahead of Kansas City, Kan., Dayton, Memphis, Nashville, Syracuse and Albany. Akron's total increase was the largest in number thus far reported in the fourteenth census.

Ranking as the eighty-first city in 1910, Akron's rate of growth in the last ten years was 201.8 per cent., which places it now just below St. Paul, which is the next largest city having reported this year, with 234,595.

Wichita, Kan., with a 1920 census of 72,128, shows an increase of 19,678 or 37.5 per cent.

HOUSTON REBUKES BORROWING ALLIES

Reference to Country "Crying Aloud for Rescue" Taken as Answer to France.

EXTRAVAGANCE OUR EVIL

FRANCE HOPES FOR CREDITS

Finance Minister Says Allied Powers Should Share the Burdens of Restoration.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 21.—Secretary Houston, addressing the Chicago Association of Commerce, made a plea today for cooperation on the part of bankers, business men and individuals and sounded a warning against the prevailing extravagance. Without mentioning the country by name, Senator Houston also rebuked one of the European allies of the United States, thought by his audience to be France, for the attitude that nation has taken toward its largest creditor, the United States.

"One of the great nations of Europe," he said, "which in the five years since the war began has raised less by taxation than Great Britain and this country raised in one year, still is resorting to borrowing, is stupidly saying the money isn't there, and is crying aloud to this country for rescue, as if we would send good money after bad—into the bottomless pit."

"Simply because of what this country did during the war," Mr. Houston added, "some European nations think we should solve all their financial problems now."

"We have greatly aided Europe since the war," he continued. "We have extended credits amounting to $4,000,000,000, but direct Government loans have ceased, except so far as commitments are concerned. It is taking many people abroad a long time to realize that fact."

"How idle it is for any one to say that this nation can be in the world and yet live apart from it," Mr. Houston said at another point. "We are entangled, and we will be more entangled as the years go on. Our problem is one, not of preventing entanglements, but of so controlling entanglements that peace shall be preserved and the horrors if war prevented. For us today there is neither peace nor the horrors of war."

He ascribed much of the present unrest to failure promptly to conclude peace. Yet, he declared, the burdens would be heavy if we did have peace.

There is no cause for alarm in this country, Mr. Houston contended, although the people have expended $38,000,000,000 since the war, and there is a $24,000,000,000 debt, the interest charges of which may approximate the country's former national budget.

Prices are abnormally, dangerously, high, he said, but they will eventually come down.

"This country, financially, probably will never return to a pre-war condition," he said, "that is economically impossible, but we must make efforts to get back to normal as nearly as possible. Prices are high, and for many reasons; principally, it may say, because of the increased demand and the decreased production; because of the demand for credit with which to finance industrial enterprises; because, in many cases, of profiteering. But these prices ought to come down, and they will come down. But don't expect this downward movement to begin immediately.

"The thing that must be done, if this nation is to meet adequately the needs of its own people, and at the same time extend some assistance to Europe, is to husband its strength. While our credit is great, it cannot be used lavishly. There is no reason why we should not proceed on a sound footing. Understand me, there is no need for alarm, but with cool heads we must face the facts as they exist."

Secretary Houston said he was an optimist, that he had no fears for the national future, but he added that, if one should fear at all, the present extravagance of the people would be a foundation for misgivings.

SAYS FRANCE NEEDS AMERICAN CREDITS

French Finance Minister Asserts Allies Should Help Rebuild Devastated Areas.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 20.—The following statement by Francois-Marsal, French Finance Minister, on the economic situation of France has been given exclusively to THE NEW YORK TIMES:

"The financial situation of France is not so serious as some people seem to suppose. It is only unsteady, and if we act with determination and energy it will soon be re-established.

"The debt we have to acquit ought neither to frighten nor to disquiet our friends. Although the task is formidable the Government intends to deal with it firmly, and both the Chamber and the country are behind it in that resolve.

"What have we done? We have succeeded in raising a national loan which gave more than 15,000,000,000 francs to the treasury. The Chamber is just now voting new heavy taxes, which, while affecting all sources of wealth, bear most heavily, as is just, on those who have made large profits during the war.

"The reproach has been often made recently that while the French were willing to spend their lives for their country they would not spend their money and pay their taxes. That is not entirely true, at present at least. In the last few months revenue has poured in at a most encouraging rate. The people are really as anxious to shoulder their financial burden as they did the burden of fighting, and those who are unwilling to pay are finding that the law is becoming increasingly strict and being strictly enforced.

"Despite our efforts there seems, however, to be a feeling of distrust abroad about our power to restore the national finances. This mistrust is in part responsible for the high rate of exchange. Nations which never doubted our ability to win the war are now doubting whether we shall win in the economic struggle which began at the signing of peace. Those who know France best, however, know that this victory, like the other, is only a matter of time.

"In the last five years all the material wealth of Europe, the means of transport by land, mines, &c., has depreciated to an enormous extent from the lack of labor and other causes. For Europe alone, and for France especially, to make up the difference which these five years have brought is almost impossible. She needs credit, and it is to America she would go first for long credits to buy raw materials. It would not then be many years before France would have a commercial balance to pay her debts in full. If the United States does not help us we shall have to depend on other European countries, for we cannot run further into debt.

"The Allies and the associated powers should also take their share in the heavy burden that the budget for the liberated regions imposes on France. The rebuilding of these devastated regions in which the armies of the world fought for victory obliges us to increase our imports and contributes to increase the depreciation of our exchange. At the same time their return to life and productivity are essential to the rapid recovery of the country as a whole."

IMPERATOR WILL LOSE HER AFTER FUNNEL

Its Removal Will Lighten Ship By 200 Tons and Increase Stability.

When the Cunarder Imperator arrives in New York again, which will be about the middle of June, the third funnel of the second largest liner in the world will be missing, as it is to be taken off her in the Gladstone dock, Liverpool. The removal of the after funnel, which was used only as a dummy for ventilating purposes, and was 69 feet above the deck and 32 feet by 18 feet at the opening, with the portion of the heavy iron superstructure to which it was attached, will mean more than 200 tons taken away and will make the Imperator much more stable than she has been since her maiden voyage to New York in June, 1913.

On her eastward voyage that time to Hamburg the liner careened so heavily that the dishes were swept from the tables in the dining saloon and the passengers were nervous. On her arrival at Cuxhaven she was detained for three weeks, and the Ritz-Carlton restaurant gallery was taken down and the three funnels were cut down, making a reduction of nearly 400 tons.

On her last eastward voyage in March the Imperator listed in a very uncomfortable manner and the ash ejectors jammed and allowed water to enter the boiler room. After her arrival in Southampton docks the liner had a thorough overhauling and was to have sailed for this port in April, but it was decided to send her to Liverpool and remove the third funnel. The Imperator will be converted into an oil burner because of the economy in fuel.

ILLNESS OF LOCKWOOD BLOW TO TEACHERS

Senator Will Be Unable to Push Tax Measure to Provide Salary Rise.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 21.—After Senator Charles C. Lockwood of Kings, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Public Education, had suffered a nervous breakdown this morning leaders of the agitation for the teachers' salary increases ordered the teachers who have been trying to induce legislators to vote for the proposed increased to cease their efforts in the Capitol Building. Senator Lockwood's illness was due in large measure to his efforts in behalf of the teachers.

With Senator Lockwood tied to his bed by order of two physicians he will not be in a position to make a fight for his bill providing for a direct tax of one mill and a half to provide permanently for something approximating the increases for which the teachers have been contending.

It is regarded as likely now that they will have to remain satisfied with a $400 bonus in New York City and the $350 bonus proposed for up-State teachers in a bill introduced on Saturday by Chairman Sage of the Senate Finance Committee.

CHAMBERLAIN IS FIRM ON BRITISH TAX RISE

Chancellor Says That He Will Stand or Fall by the Proposed Excess Profits Levy.

LONDON, April 21.—Austen Chamberlain, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, announced in the House of Commons today that he intended to stand or fall by his original proposal to increase the excess profits tax to 60 per cent. from the present 40 per cent. rate.

The Chancellor said, however, that if proposals subsequently were introduced for the taxation of war-acquired wealth, the extra 20 per cent. would be remitted.

It was reported last night that Mr. Chamberlain was considering whether the tax might not be permitted to remain at 40 per cent. in view of the hostility shown to the proposed increase in Parliament and elsewhere.

DENY KNICKERBOCKER SALE

Broadway Hotel Not to Change Ownership, Management Says.

The Hotel Knickerbocker at Broadway and Forty-second Street was reported to have been sold yesterday by James B. Regan to an unnamed purchaser according to a rumor in real estate offices. It was reported that Mr. Regan had closed out and would retire.

"It is all news to my father," said James B. Regan, Jr., "and I can't understand how the report started. There is absolutely nothing to it. Such a step has not even been contemplated by my father."

Reports that the Hotel Belmont and the Hotel Manhattan of the Bowman group had changed hands also were denied yesterday.

WOOD TO MEDIATE CLASH OF MANAGERS

Hitchcock-Procter Differences Over Campaign Reach Acute Stage.

REPORTED BOTH WILL STAY

Hitchcock's Friends Declare He Will Take Precedence in Future Moves.

Differences of opinion between Frank H. Hitchcock and Colonel William Cooper Procter over the handling of Major Gen. Wood's campaign for the Republican Presidential nomination, which have existed for several weeks, have reached the open warfare stage and a change in the management was said yesterday to be imminent. Although the local Wood managers refused to discuss the situation, it was learned that the trouble has been put directly up to General Wood for adjustment. Friends of Mr. Hitchcock declared he would be completely vindicated and that, as national manager of the Wood campaign, would hereafter take precedence over Colonel Procter.

The reversals which the Wood campaign have recently met in Michigan, Illinois and South Dakota, as well as the situation in Ohio, led directly to the clash of authority between Mr. Hitchcock and Colonel Procter. After starting out as Chairman of the Leonard Wood League Campaign Committee at the inception of the Wood boom, Colonel Procter's title was changed to that of Chairman of the Wood National Campaign Committee, following the ousting by General Wood of National Committeeman John T. King of Connecticut as as National Campaign Manager by General Wood of John T. King of Connecticut with whom Colonel Proctor also had a difference of opinion.

Procter's Friends Blame Hitchcock.

General Wood himself selected Frank H. Hitchcock, on March 5 last, as his national campaign manager. Mr. Hitchcock's duties were those of a field manager, with authority to go into each State and round up delegates to the National Convention for General Wood. Mr. Hitchcock has operated in practically every State in the Union which has held or will hold a primary. He reported from time to time to the Wood managers that things were going satisfactorily, but when General Wood lost South Dakota, Michigan and Illinois in the primaries friends of Colonel Procter, it is said, circulated stories that Mr. Hitchcock was to blame for allowing General Wood to make fights in those States or in any State where a favorite son was a candidate.

Reports of these criticisms reached Mr. Hitchcock and his friends immediately began to explain that he had nothing whatever to do with creating this situation, as Colonel Procter had practically made all arrangements for General Wood to make fights in South Dakota, Michigan and Illinois and even in Ohio and Nebraska before Mr. Hitchcock entered the campaign. In various States the friends of both managers took sides and recriminations flew thick and fast. The situation reached such an acute stage that Mr. Hitchcock returned to New York discouraged at the opposition he met with in the Wood organization and demanded a "showdown."

The "showdown," it was said, was not long in coming, for the Eastern managers of the Wood campaign took this side of the controversy and did everything they could to head off another King-Procter episode. Mr. Hitchcock refused to quit the campaign, but continued his work for General Wood's nomination in Eastern States where the Procter forces had not been active. Friends of Mr. Hitchcock declared last night that he was vigorously opposed to making any fight in States that had favorite sons as candidates for the Republican nomination, basing his opposition on the theory that it was bad politics to stir up factional fights; thereby creating enemies and trouble with the Republican organization.

Procter Received Coldly Here.

Colonel Procter hurried to New York and sought to patch up the trouble through a conference with the local Wood managers. His mission was not successful, however, for he received a chilly reception at the Wood headquarters in the Imperial Hotel. Colonel Procter yesterday sought to get in touch with Representative Norman J. Gould, Eastern Wood manager, but was not able to meet him until late in the afternoon, when the Colonel had to hurry away to keep an engagement. He arranged for a meeting with Mr. Gould today, following which the Colonel announced that he would leave on the Twentieth Century Limited for the West. He expects to meet General Wood somewhere in Ohio, where he is campaigning.

Colonel Procter declined last night to comment on the situation, but said he might have something to say today. Mr. Hitchcock also refused to discuss the matter, but his friends declared that he had no doubt as to what General Wood's decision would be and was too busy to engage in any alleged controversy. His friends said he was going to keep right on with his work of managing General Wood's campaign.

It was denied last night that either Mr. Hitchcock or Colonel Proctor has any thought of withdrawing from the campaign. With General Wood as peacemaker, it was said that an understanding would be reached whereby the authority of both managers would be more sharply defined and that Mr. Hitchcock would continue as campaign manager with all that the word implies. A message sent to General Wood at Chillicothe, Ohio, from the local headquarters asking about the situation brought this reply from the General:

"The report of the withdrawal of Mr. Hitchcock from the Wood campaign is, as far as I know, entirely incorrect."

YALE HEADS FOR HOOVER.

President Hadley and 150 of the Faculty Express Their Preference.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 21.—Yale's Faculty, to the number of 150, including President Arthur T. Hadley and the heads of seven departments, have expressed their preference for Herbert Hoover for President in answer to postcards sent out by the Yale Hoover Club.

The Deans who have declared for Hoover are Frederic S. Jones of the college, Russell H. Chittenden of the Scientific School, Charles F. Brown of the Divinity School, Sergeant Kendall of the Art School, David Stanley Smith of the Music School, Thomas W. Swan of the Law School and J. W. Toumey of the Forest School.

George Parmley Day, Treasurer, and Minott A. Osborn, Acting Secretary, also will vote for the one-time Food Administrator if they get a chance.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 21.—Albert J. Beveridge, former Senator from Indiana, has been suggested in influential quarters as a candidate for temporary Chairman of the Republican National Convention. Information reached Chicago tonight that an agreement upon Mr. Beveridge by the National Committee when it meets in Chicago next month will eliminate, under most friendly circumstances, both Senator Lodge and Senator Borah. This, it is said, would end any chance of a fight over the organization of the convention between the two Republican extremes within the Senate on the Peace Treaty.

Federal Judge Declares Liquor Search Illegal When It Amounts to Trespass

MARQUETTE, Mich., April 21.—Any search and seizure by Federal prohibition agents that would amount to trespass under constitutional law is illegal, Judge Clarence W. Sessions of the Federal Court stated today during the trial of Scalcucci Brothers in connection with the Iron River "whisky rebellion."

"A revenue agent could never invade my home or my premises without a search warrant unless I should give him permission," the Judge said.

The trial had progressed to the point where Leo J. Grove, prohibition agent, entered the basement of the Scalcucci store, at Iron River, to hunt for liquor, when the defense objected to presentation of further testimony or samples of wine said to have been found in the basement.

Judge Sessions excused the jury while lawyers presented arguments. District Attorney Walker argued that the Federal agents believed that they had the right to search the basement, because, in their opinion, it was connected with the store, a public place, and not with the private dwelling house on the second floor.

JOHNSON REDOUBLES EFFORTS IN JERSEY

1916 RECORD IS ASSAILED

Wood Campaigner Says Eastern Republicans Will Reject Man Who Fought Them.

Encouraged by the victory of Senator Hiram W. Johnson in Nebraska in his fight for the Republican Presidential nomination, the local Johnson campaign managers intend to redouble their activities to carry the New Jersey primaries next Tuesday. They believe that if he can win a large Eastern State nothing can stand between him and his nomination, except a possible reverse in California, his own State, where he will have to fight Herbert Hoover.

"Senator Johnson's sweeping victory in Nebraska clinches the proof that he is the only candidate for the Republican nomination for whom there is any genuine public sentiment whatever," said Angus McSween, his Eastern campaign manager, yesterday. "Once more Senator Johnson, without money and without important organization, has gone into a State where thousands of dollars had been spent to boost his opponents and won hands down.

"The result shows that the people in the country want Senator Johnson for President as much as do those of the city. As Nebraska has gone, so would every other Western State go if the people had an opportunity to express themselves at the primaries.

"Sentiment for Presidential candidates cannot be produced by organization or manufactured by money. The Wood supporters are beginning to suspect that and they will be sure of it very soon. With victories in Dakota, Michigan and Nebraska, all of them won without any money and with little organization, it is perfectly clear that Senator Johnson is the man that the people of this country have decided upon as their next President."

Meetings in behalf of General Wood's candidacy will be held in all parts of New Jersey every day and night from now until primary day, according to information received yesterday by Norman J. Gould, Eastern manager; from Edward Duffield, State Chairman of the New Jersey Leonard Wood Campaign Committee. A meeting will be held in Trenton tonight and at Mt. Holly Saturday night. The speakers will include Former Governors Runyon, Stokes and Griggs, Ret. Robert A. McElroy, of Princeton; William Pennergast, former Controller of New York City; Mrs. Douglas Robinson and Capt. Robert J. Foster.

A large number of street meetings have been arranged. A score or more automobiles carrying speakers will cover the entire State between now and primary day. Horace B. Tobin, Vice Chairman of the Wood New Jersey Campaign Committee, reported at the Wood headquarters here that the Trenton section was thoroughly organized for General Wood. From all sections of the State Wood supporters reported that a recanvass since the Johnson forces began their campaign showed the field still safe for General Wood. At a meeting in Newark yesterday Captain Foster said:

"In the trying days of 1916 the Republicans of the East looked with hope to California, but found none. In 1920 a Californian is looking to Eastern Republicans with hope, but he will find none. He found none in New York State, and he will find none in New Jersey. If the Republicans of the East were not good enough in 1916 to support in 1916 they are not good enough now."

Discovery that no vacant space has been provided on the Republican and Democratic primary ballots to be used in the Presidential primary in Newark next Tuesday caused the holding up of the work of printing more than 100,000 ballots. An opinion will be sought today from City Counsel Jerome T. Congleton. Friends of Herbert Hoover had been counting on showing the Hoover strength in New Jersey by having the former Food Administrator's name written on the ballot.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, candidate for the Republican Presidential nomination, left yesterday for the Middle West to address delegates and organizations in several States. The first stop will be at Chicago. From there the candidates goes to Milwaukee, Madison, Wis., and Davenport, Iowa. On Sunday he will address the congregation of Trinity Cathedral at the latter place, and on Monday he will address the Republican Club of Grand Rapids, Mich.

BELMONT PAYS HIS I. O. U.

Settles $15,000 Gambling Debt with E. W. Rankin Out of Court.

The suit of Edward W. Rankin against Raymond Belmont to recover on an "I O U" for $15,000 given by the defendant at Newport, R. I., in 1912, which Mr. Belmont alleged in his answer was for a gambling debt, was settled out of court yesterday. The case was to have been tried today.

In behalf of Mr. Belmont it was said yesterday that he had decided to pay if convinced that the debt was a valid obligation, and he reached that decision. It is understood that the full amount of the claim was paid.

TWO DRY OFFICERS HELD FOR GUNPLAY

Caught by Patrolman in Auto Race Down Eighth Avenue from Reisenweber's.

"FRAMEUP," SAYS SHEVLIN

James Muck and Michael Grial Are Taken by Enright After Thrilling Leap from Car to Car.

In a thrilling automobile chase covering twelve blocks, two prohibition enforcement agents were overtaken and arrested last night by Patrolman Thomas Enright of the West Forty-seventh Street Station on a charge of disorderly conduct, using profane and indecent language and flourishing a revolver in Reisenweber's Cafeteria, Columbus Circle and Fifty-eighth Street. The chase began in front of Reisenwebers' and ended at Forty-sixth Street and Eighth Avenue, when the policeman leaped from the running board of the car in which he was riding to that occupied by the two prohibition agents, while both cars were running at high speed.

The men described themselves as James Muck, 25 years old, of 37 Catharine Street, and Michael Grisi, 43 years old, of 177 Cherry Street. They were locked up at the Forty-seventh Street Station, but were later released on $500 bail furnished by Louis Alerise of 11 Chatham Square.

James Shevlin, Supervising Prohibition Enforcement Agent, said he believed the arrest of the agents a "frame-up" as the result of his refusal on Monday to assist John Walsh of Reisenweber's in obtaining from Prohibition Director O'Connor a wholesale liquor permit. He said Walsh came to his office on Monday and urged him to use his influence to obtain the permit. Mr. Shevlin added he told Walsh that he had nothing to do with the issuance of such permits and that he did not know of any reason why a restaurant should have a wholesale liquor permit.

Shevlin Ready for Fight.

"If Reisenweber's restaurant wants a fight with the prohibition agents, they will certainly get it," Mr. Shevlin asserted. He also remarked that some time ago he was asked by Walsh if it was permissible for a man to bring his own drink into the restaurant, and he answered him in the negative.

The prohibition agents entered Reisenweber's around the supper hour, according to the story told to the police. They accused a waiter of stealing an overcoat. Just then a taxicab driver came in with the overcoat they were seeking. An argument ensued and John Walsh, the head waiter, ordered them out, the police say. Muck put his hand into his hip pocket and held it on the butt of a revolver.

Waiter Holds Muck's Arms.

Angelo Jatron, a waiter, of 343 West Fifty-sixth Street, sprang behind Muck and pinned the prohibition agent's arms behind his back. Another waiter, Thomas King of 1,020 Amsterdam Avenue, ran forward to assist Jatron. He also remarked that the men were prohibition agents. Then, according to the policemen, Grisi drew his revolver and, covering both, shouted, "Let him go!"

Several women screamed and a number of patrons hurriedly left the place. One blew a police whistle.

Jatson released Muck on the order of the head waiter, and then Muck and Grisi, the latter with the revolver in his hand, backed to the door, according to the police.

Patrolman Enright heard the police whistle and hurried to the scene. As they came up the prohibition agents jumped into a taxicab, ordering the chauffeur to lose no time in getting away. The policeman hailed another taxicab and gave chase. At Fifty-seventh Street he hailed Patrolman Patrick Leddy, who was directing traffic, and Leddy boarded the taxicab commandeered by Enright. As the chase continued, first one taxicab and then the other was ahead. Going abreast of the car in which the prohibition agents were fleeing, Enright made a leap from the running board to the other car and ordered the chauffeur to drive back to Reisenweber's.

Whisky on Revenue Man.

Charles H. Alexander, who said he was the manager, said he wanted to prefer charges of disorderly conduct and using indecent language. He refused to make a statement, saying that the whole story would come out this morning.

Revenue shields were found on the prohibition agents when they were searched at Police Headquarters. Grisi had half a bottle of whisky in his pocket which, the police say, he told them he got as evidence at a place other than Reisenweber's.

Patrolman Enright said that while taking the men back to Reisenweber's they used profane language and called him "names" and that he would make an additional charge against them when they are arraigned in the West Side Court today. According to the police, the men were abusive to the officers and also to the men in charge of the restaurant when they were taken back there after being overtaken.

INVOLVES POLICE IN PATERSON THEFT

Federal Agent Accuses Six Unnamed Members of Force in $200,000 Silk Robberies.

HAS PRISONER'S CONFESSION

Maspeth Hotelman and Four Others Held in $25,000 Bail Each in In Chelsea Yards Theft.

Government officials investigating recent thefts of silks, valued at $200,000, from the Paterson, N. J., depot of the American Railway Express Company, announced yesterday that they had obtained evidence which indicates that at least six members of the Paterson police force were involved in the thefts. That assertion was made after United States Commissioner Matthews, in Newark, held Moe Blank, a partner in the International Silk Company, at 42 Shady Street, Paterson, and Julius Cohen of 108 Fair Street, Paterson, in $5,000 bail each on a charge of receiving some of the stolen silks from the thieves.

It is understood that the investigation has revealed that between Sept. 1, 1919, and Jan. 1, 1920, the period in which the thefts took place, the policemen of the Paterson force were aware of the action of the band of thieves and, for failing to interfere, received in the aggregate $25,000 from a "go-between" for the thieves. W. S. Nelson, in charge of the investigating forces of the North Atlantic Division of the American Railway Express Company, said:

"From the statements contained in the confession of one of the men under arrest I can now state that certain members of the Paterson Police Department are or were involved in the cases which my department has been working upon for the last six months. I cannot state at this time the name of the man making the confession, or give any further details, but startling developments and disclosures may be expected in the near future."

Blank and Cohen were arrested in Paterson early yesterday morning. Sixteen others are accused of being connected with the thefts. Blank was a partner of Nathan Kasler, who was held in $10,000 bail Tuesday by Commissioner Matthews on a charge of receiving some of the stolen silks at the International Silk Company owned by himself and Blank. Of the eighteen men arrested thus far ten are dealers in silks in the Paterson district, four are drivers, and four others were designated by the arresting officers as "go-betweens" for the drivers, the dealers and the police.

It is understood that the investigating officers have not arrested the suspected policemen because they are looking for several witnesses to transactions between the policemen and the "go-betweens." One Government official declared yesterday that it was not improbable that more than six policemen would be found to have been involved in the thefts before the investigation ends. He intimated that the investigation might uncover thefts of other materials from the express company's depots in Paterson not heretofore charged to alleged police connivance.

Assistant District Attorney M. R. Rayner, following his investigation of the theft last month of a shipment of velvet, valued at $5,000, and the sale of part of it to innocent dealers, caused the indictment and arraignment in General Sessions yesterday of Isaac Anderson, a Broadway merchandise broker, on a charge of grand larceny and the receiving of stolen goods in the first degree. Anderson pleaded not guilty. He was released in $1,000 bail pending further investigation. Several dealers not interested in the case have joined Rytenberg in a general investigation of similar robberies which are said to amount to $250,000 annually.

Benjamin Serlen, proprietor of a hotel at Maspeth, L. I.; his brother, Theodore, an auctioneer, of 1,288 St. John's Place, Brooklyn, and three other men arrested Tuesday in Serlen's hotel when detectives recovered $218,000 worth of Japanese raw silk, which had been stolen from a freight car on April 8 last in the Chelsea yards of the New York Central Railroad, yesterday were arraigned in the Federal Court and held in $25,000 bail each on suspicion of being receivers of stolen property.

The alertness of Dominick Colandrillo, a driver, of 92 Allen Street, yesterday prevented the theft of nine cases of woolen goods valued at $30,000. Colandrillo left his truck at the foot of Beach St. and went into the office of the Old Dominion Steamship Co. to straighten out his delivery papers. When he came out he discovered that the truck had disappeared. Hurried inquiries revealed that a youth had driven the team on the truck away at a breakneck speed south on West Street. Colandrillo pursued on foot. At Duane Street he spied the truck and hailing a policeman ordered him to arrest the stranger who was driving the vehicle. At the Beach Street Station the man said he was Andrew Rocco, 20 years old of 18 Roosevelt Street.

Louis Cassassa of 24 Roosevelt Street was later arrested on a charge of knowing something about the case.

ARRESTED IN STREET FIGHT.

Lawyer and Ex-Revenue Officer Make Counter-Complaints.

Ralph Bennett, 42 years old, formerly an Assistant Prosecutor in Chicago, living at the Yale Club, and Richard Yancey, who said he was a broker, but admitted he was a former revenue officer now under $5,000 bail on a charge of conspiring against the Government, were locked up in the West Forty-seventh Street station at one o'clock this morning, after each had made a charge of simple assault against the other.

Both showed evidences of a hard fist fight, and according to Policeman Fowler they were savagely attacking each other as they rolled upon the sidewalk in Broadway near Forty-fifth Street when he separated them.

Mr. Bennett said that several months ago, after Yancey and four other men had been arrested for conspiring to violate the prohibition law, Yancey had blamed him for the arrest and had attacked him on the street.

Bennett said he had obtained a summons for Yancey, but had been unable to find him until they met this morning.

HOOVER ROOMS IN CHICAGO.

Intensive Campaign Throughout the West Is Planned

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 21.—Hoover took steps today for the opening of an intensive campaign in Chicago between now and the data set for the Republican National Convention. A suite of rooms on the second floor of the Congress Hotel, on what has come to be known in national political circles as "Presidential Row," and which already is largely occupied by headquarters of Governor Lowden and General Wood, was assigned to the Hoover management today. Other rooms on the same floor already have been engaged for the headquarters of Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, and a "favorite son" of the New York delegation. The Butler headquarters are to be opened on June 1.

It is planned to direct a Hoover campaign throughout all Illinois from the Chicago offices in the Congress Hotel. Then the scope will branch out until within a fortnight, it is believed, Chicago will be the centre of activity for the Hoover movement throughout the Middle West.

Order Favors War Veterans in Post Office Appointments

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Under an Executive order issued today the Postmaster General is authorized to submit to the President for nomination to first, second and third class Postmasterships "the name of either the highest eligible or the veteran obtaining the highest eligible rating, as the best interests of the service may require."

It is not necessary that the veteran shall have obtained the leading post among those available for the vacancy, the order said.

REPORT CARRANZA IS SEEKING PEACE

Delegation Said to Have Left Mexico City for Sonora to Effect Compromise.

TALK OF MARTIAL LAW

Congress Asked to Suspend Guarantees—Nine States Involved in Revolt—Rebels Take Tuxpan.

AGUA PRIETA, Sonora, April 21.—A commission named by the Mexican Congress is enroute to Sonora to attempt to adjust differences between the revolutionary State and the National Government, according to unofficial advices made public here today by Francisco Elias, a leader of the Sonora movement against President Carranza. It was said the commission was due at Laredo, Tex., today.

According to the information given out, the commission was named Friday last, after a conference with President Carranza.

At military headquarters, official denial was made today of the report from Nogales, Ariz., that Sonora troops under General Angel Flores had been surrounded and trapped by Federal forces after entering Culican, capital of Sinaloa.

A message from Governor De la Huerta, at Hermosillo, denied the report, adding that Culiacan was captured after a few small skirmishes.

General J. M. Pina, commander of this district, today said a scouting party of Carranza troops had been seen at another pass through the mountains from Sonora. This pass would take invading troops within a few feet of the American border at many places. General Pina said he had dispatched a force to this pass as well as to Pulpito Pass, further south, where the Carranza forces are expected to make their hardest fight to enter Sonora.

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, April 21.—Unofficial Mexico City advices received in Mexican circles here today said that President Carranza has asked the Mexican Congress to suspend the individual guarantees "in order that the entire country may be placed under military law." The report could not be confirmed at the Mexican Consulate.

Another unofficial report reaching here says General Arnulfo Gomez, with 4,000 men, has captured Tuxpam, State of Vera Cruz, and has joined with followers of the rebel leader, Manuel Pelaez, the report asserted, have indorsed the Sonora secession.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Reports from Mexico, official and unofficial, today emphasized the growing strength of the revolutionary movement led by the State of Sonora.

Advices from private sources said two new States, Hidalgo and Tlaxcala, supported by their Legislatures and State troops, had joined in the secession movement.

The Mexican Embassy issued a formal statement on the situation, declaring the revolution to be only a local movement. The statement added, however, that if the secession movement should spread it would result in the stoppage of business, curtailment of wealth and international commerce, and the indefinite postponement of the foreign debt."

The Senate Committee investigating Mexican relations today summoned General Salvador Alvarado, who was Governor of Yucatan for Carranza during the Henequin controversy, and who is now in Washington, to appear before it on Tuesday.

General Alvarado, who arrived here last Sunday as unofficial representative of General Obregon and the Sonora movement, declared today that nine States are now involved in the revolution against Carranza, either through action of State Legislature, defections of military governors or otherwise. General Alvarado said his reports today indicate that Tampico is threatened, and that General Arnulfo Gomez with 3,000 had occupied Tuxpan.

The States named by Alvarado as having joined in some measure the fight are Sinaloa, Nayarit, Michoacan, Zacatecas, Guerrero, Morelos, Hidalgo and Tlaxcala. With Sonora, he said, this makes nine States involved in the revolt. The State of Nayarit was formerly known as the Territory of Tepic.

Advices to the State Department here today said that General Fortunato Maycot had joined the Obregonistas with his entire command, which has been operating in the border country between the States of Morelos, Michoacan and Guerrero, a short distance west of Mexico City.

Obregon, General Benjamin Hill, and a number of friendly officials who recently fled from Mexico City are with Maycot's command, which consists of three regiments of cavalry and two of artillery.

NOGALES, Ariz., April 21.—Delegates of the Nogales, Sonora and Nogales, Ariz., Chamber of Commerce began a series of conferences here today planned to adjust differences between the Southern Pacific Railroad de Mexico, an American owned road, and striking employes.

Representatives of the strikers announced today that the men would return to work for the American owners under the old wage scale and former working conditions for three months if the company would recognize their union.

TRANSPORT BRINGS TYPHUS

Polish Soldiers and Civilians Numbering 1,776 Held for Observation.

When the U. S. A. Transport Pocahontas arrived yesterday in Quarantine from Dantzig with 1,620 Polish soldiers, Dr. Koffer, the Health Officer, discovered two cases of typhus fever and ordered the soldiers and 150 civilian passengers to Hoffman and Swinburne Islands for observation.

Dr. Copeland, Health Commissioner, said there was no need for alarm, as there had been sporadic cases of typhus on ships reaching this port since the armistice was signed, but that the disease had not reached the shore.

Loew Buys Six More Theatres.

Marcus Loew, who already owns thirty-seven theatres in New York City, added six more to his list yesterday when he purchased from David Picker five motion picture houses in the Bronx and one in Manhattan. The theatres will be renovated and opened by their new owner in a few weeks. The names of the properties are the McKinley Square, the Bijou, the Spooner, the Bronx Park Oval, the Victory, all in the Bronx; and the Rio in the Washington Heights section.

Porter's Wife Supports Alibi

Testifies He Was at Home on Night of Police Raid in Which He Is Accused.

CORROBORATED BY FRIEND

Two Witnesses Agree That Former Police Official Was in His Own Apartment.

READY TO SUM UP THE CASE

Porter Paid $2,400 Rent While Earning $40 a Week, Smith Brings Out.

Ex-Third Deputy Police Commissioner Augustus Drum Porter, who is on trial on the charge of neglecting his duty in that he ordered policemen not to arrest Margaret Wood, alleged to have been his companion in a disorderly apartment in West Ninety-sixth Street, raided on the night of Nov. 12, was at his own home at 57 West Fifty-eighth Street during the whole of that night, according to the wife of the defendant, who testified yesterday. Mrs. Porter, who was formerly Ella de Ruyter, belongs to an old and wealthy New York family. After her testimony the defense and prosecution both rested, and the case will be summed up tomorrow.

Mrs. Porter clinched her alibi by saying that her husband had had a visitor from 10 o'clock until 12 o'clock, covering the period of the raid, and that between those hours he had entered her room several times to offer to assist her in unpacking her trunk, which had arrived that night from Morristown, N. J., where she had been several months on a vacation.

Another alibi witness was Bernard Lowenthal of 27 West Nineteenth Street, a lace dealer and formerly a moving picture man, who said that he called on ex-Commissioner Porter on business on the night of Nov. 12 and talked with him in his apartment from 10 o'clock until 12. The detectives had fixed the date of the raid at 10.35 p. m.

Lowenthal was fluent and unhesitating about the circumstances leading up to the visit, but he was unable to fix even approximately the date of any other visit or meeting with the defendant. Lowenthal said that he had seen Mr. Porter on various occasions earlier in 1919, but could not give the date or details of any of them.

Two Witnesses Support Alibi.

Mrs. Porter and Lowenthal strengthened the alibi, because their testimony interlocked. Lowenthal, who was first on the stand, told of entering the Porter apartment about 10 o'clock, only half an hour before the raid, and there exchanging a few words with Mrs. Porter, who apologized because her unpacking kept her at work in the other room.

Mrs. Porter, who was called after Lowenthal and was the last witness, is a gray-haired woman who appeared quite calm in the face of the ordeal of impeaching a jail escape composed exclusively of men. She answered questions simply and readily. She was spared cross-examination by Assistant District Attorney Smith.

Mrs. Porter had returned only the day before, she said, from Morristown, and had arrived home in the day time of the alleged crime. She said that Mr. Porter shortly after 10 o'clock had aided the superintendent of the building, David Coyne, in carrying the trunks up to her room, thus connecting another link of the alibi. Coyne had testified to the same effect, so that there was elaborate corroboration for the fact that Mr. Porter was at home shortly after 10 o'clock.

Mrs. Porter answered a large number of questions before Mr. Littleton came to the vital question whether she could positively say

Liberty Bonds Decline and Stocks Fall Violently—Sterling Under Pressure.

Security prices declined sharply yesterday, Liberty bond quotations disclosing a greater degree of weakness than had been seen before in the current liquidating movement. In case of stocks, a fairly extensive recovery in the morning from Tuesday's reaction was converted later into a break which came to the verge of demoralization in the final half hour of business. A total of dealings in stocks slightly in excess of a 2,000,000-share figure told its own story of hurried selling, which reached its greatest pitch in such issues as General Motors, Baldwin Locomotive, Stromberg Carburetor and Vanadium Corporation. General Motors receded more than 40 points and the others were down at the close from 7⅛ to nearly 15 points. In these evidences was not wanting that accumulations by pools were let go for what they would bring, and once the price tendency was sensed by the professional trading element short sales accelerated the reaction. Call money stood at 7 per cent., a rate to be considered moderate in the light of the tight credit situation.

Bond dealers reported an outpouring of Liberty bonds in all denominations and coming from many sources. It would require much space to describe the many influences which investment men see behind the liquidation of war paper, extending from sales by working people who feel the pinch of an extraordinary cost of living to the marketing bonds from corporation holdings, put out because working capital cannot be borrowed except at rates of interest not experienced before by this generation save in times of acute financial distress. At yesterday's lowest point the Liberty 3½s were nearly 6¾ points below last week's maximum, the first convertible 4s were down more than 5¾ points, the first 4¼s were lower by 3.90 points and the Victory notes showed a reaction in excess of 1¼ points. These are truly astounding declines in premier investments to occur in a few days, but they are to be considered as a reflection of world-wide conditions and have no bearing upon the Government's pledge to return to buyers their principal at maturity, with interest at the specified dates. The decline is not without the moderate support which comes from institutional buying and of purchasers by individuals who find a Government bond or note returning from 5½ to more than 6 per cent. an attractive investment.

The fall of stocks this week has been brought about by influences some of which are discernible, others not being possible of definition at this stage. Whether or not the difficulties being experienced in Japan are having a direct reflection here, it is clear that over-speculation, which caused the closing of Japanese stock exchanges, has had a part in the slump of certain specialties and several old-time shares as well on the local market. It will require further developments to show if the decline is actually discounting readjustments in the business field.

Sterling exchange reacted under considerable pressure, which was coupled with sales of bills here by Japanese interests. Japan has large balances at London which may be in process of transfer to New York. Japanese exchange was firm, although still below the point permitting of gold exports. French, Italian and Belgian rates declined with sterling, lire falling 46 points.

2,000 CARS ORDERED BY UNION PACIFIC

FOREIGN LINES IN MARKET

Companies in Chile, Brazil and China Seek Locomotives—Rumania to Pay in Oil.

A large volume of new railroad equipment orders was placed by different railroad companies yesterday and there has been a substantial increase in the inquiries made by the carriers for locomotives and cars. Many of the latter have reached the point where the contracts are virtually ready to close, only a few details remaining to be cleared up. A canvass of the market shows that there are inquiries now out for a total of more than 1,500 locomotives, and it is expected that orders will be placed within a reasonably short time. Among the orders which are understood to have been placed are the following:

The Union Pacific system is understood to have ordered 1,000 cars from the Pullman Company and 1,000 freight cars from the Ralston Steel Car Company, of Columbus, Ohio. The Southern Pacific Company is reported to have asked for bids on 750 freight cars, and forty locomotives of the Mikado, Pacific and Santa Fe types, and plans to build 25 more locomotives in its own shops. This is understood to be in addition to the 4,300 cars which the company is now building in its shops.

Inquiries in the market yesterday embraced among others, one by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad for 50 locomotives, and 61 locomotives and 1,000 passenger and freight cars which are being asked for by the Chilean Railway Company. In addition to the foregoing it was stated in equipment circles that 77 locomotives have been ordered for export. Forty of the latter have been ordered by the Central Railroad of Brazil, 12 by the Tientsin-Puko Railroad in China, and 25 by the Rumanian Government Railways. A feature of the latter order is that payment has been agreed upon by the shipment of oil to this country.

A large quantity of equipment business is being held up pending the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission on just how the $300,000,000 revolving fund provided in the Transportation act shall be expended. The Commission some time ago sent a request to the Association of Railway Executives for a sounding out of the sentiment of its member roads as to the expenditure of this money. The Association is compiling this report and it is expected that recommendations will be made to the Commission that a considerable part of the fund should be spent for equipment for roads which are not able to finance their own requirements.

Seeks Inquiry Into Negro Discontent.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—An investigation into the causes of friction between whites and blacks in the United States and of the "increasing discontent" among negroes would be authorized under a bill introduced today by Senator Spencer, Republican, of Missouri. A commission of nine members, three of whom would be negroes, and with an annual appropriation of $50,000 for the work, is proposed.

The following securities were admitted to list on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday: Cuba Cane Sugar Corporation, $25,000,000 ten-year 7 per cent. convertible bonds; Cosden & Co., 104,191 shares of common stock without nominal or par value; P. Lorillard & Co., $6,062,640 additional common stock.

STUTZ SETTLEMENT HALTED BY BANKERS

STOCK DROPS OFF TO 670

Ryan Makes No Effort to Buy In Shorts Who Failed to Sign Protective Agreement.

Efforts to bring about a settlement of the Stutz controversy yesterday were halted temporarily because unexpected difficulty was encountered in obtaining the assent of bankers to serve on the Mediation Committee, the appointment of which both sides had sanctioned. It was reported late yesterday afternoon that if bankers would not serve in helping to adjust the differences between Allan A. Ryan and the shorts, the question might be submitted to the Arbitration Committee of the Chamber of Commerce. This report could not be confirmed, however.

Neither the Protective Committee representing the shorts nor Allan A. Ryan & Co. had any comment to make on the situation. At the offices of the counsel for the Protective Committee it was said a statement might be issued in the late afternoon, but even this morsel of news was refused at the appointed time.

There apparently was no effort made by Allan A. Ryan & Co. to buy in the shorts who failed to sign the agreement entered into by the Protective Committee. Stutz was a quiet feature of the Curb market. The price softened a bit, falling below the 700 mark for the first time since the auction sale of Stutz at $701 a share some two weeks ago. In all 201 shares were sold, with the high 700 and the low 670. The closing price was 690, and the bid and asked at the close were 693-725.

NEW HAVEN HEADS PREDICT RATE RISE

FIFTEEN DIRECTORS NAMED

Loan from the Government Is Authorized and Issuance of Eulpment Trust Certificates.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 21.—The stockholders of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company today re-elected thirteen of its present directorate of fourteen, added President E. J. Pearson to the board from which he retired when he became Federal manager of the road, and put Vice President Benjamin Campbell on it in place of Arthur E. Clark, the company's Secretary, who had been serving. This made the full board of fifteen members.

The other action was to authorize the officers to act in all questions and matters relative to the use, control and operation of the property by the Federal Government; to authorize a new loan from the United States Government for rolling stock not to exceed $4,165,000; to ratify and approve of an equipment trust agreement with Walker D. Hines covering allocation of rolling stock at a cost not to exceed $4,813,930, and the issuance of equipment trust certificates not to exceed the latter amount.

President Pearson in a verbal amplification of the annual statement reviewed changes in progress since relinquishment of Federal operation on March 1. He said that business of the company since the armistice was signed has been increasing contrary to the impression that a slump would come. Industries have been expanding and no less than 100 industries served by the company have made extensive developments and many others have large undertakings to increase the size of their plants. The policy of the company will be to increase its capacity and at the same time endeavor to economize in operation.

President Pearson spoke of the new law which provides that railroads must earn a certain percentage, and he said that his company would make an effort to have rates increased so that there would be no question of earning what the law requires.

Vice President Buckland said that the refunding plan of the company would not be acted upon now, as the Director General and the railroad management were not agreed upon a plan. A special meeting will be called when the plan is developed.

The law as to rates was explained by Mr. Buckland, who said that the Interstate Commerce Commission was under mandate to provide such rates as will rehabilitate the road. Mr. Buckland said there was considerable talk about the Government handing the railroads something. It hands them nothing. It would be a foolhardy man who would talk about decreasing expense of operation or labor, he said, and therefore increase of rates was the only way possible. The hope is that the New Haven will receive at least 5½ per cent. and possibly 6 on a fair valuation of its property. Under the new law Mr. Buckland thought there would be speedy rehabilitation of the road if there was also reasonable and economic management.

President Pearson assured Charles A. Ufford of Dorchester, Mass., that the company's officials were deeply interested and were participating for the benefit of the public and the company in discussion of plans to improve metropolitan passenger traffic facilities around Boston.

In reply to an inquiry Br. Buckland said the company's holdings of Boston & Maine stock were still in the hands of the trustees under an order to sell by October, 1920. He had prepared an application for an order of time extension that the provision of the new law permitting grouping of lines such as the Boston & Maine and the New Haven, might be looked into. Then it will be for the stockholders to decide the question of grouping or sale. Until the Interstate Commerce Commission acts all the road can do is to wait.

The stock vote for directors was 924,298, and on other propositions on the ballot, 924,200 with no contrary vote.

Ellis Island Can't Ship Radicals Until Washington Acts.

There are 130 radicals awaiting deportation from Ellis Island and between 200 and 300 in jails in other cities, according to Byron H. Uhl, Acting Commissioner of Immigration. He added that the immigration officials were in a quandary as to how to get the Reds back to Russia. No official advices have been received from Washington.

"There is no law for keeping these radicals imprisoned interminably, although there is a law for deporting them," he said. "Still we are powerless to make deportations to Russian ports, where the majority of the radicals belong, because there are no ships. The only solution would be to send them on a special transport, but we await orders from the Department of Labor.

Repeal of the literacy test as applied to immigrants will be urged upon the House Committee on Immigration and Naturalization in Washington today by a committee representing the National Immigraton Conference, which was held here recently under the auspices of the Inter-Racial Council. Louis Marshall will head the committee.

Victory Hall Campaign in Summer.

Commenting on the passage in the Legislature of the bill empowering the Victory Hall Association to condemn land for the memorial, General George W. Wingate, President of the ossociation, expressed hope yesterday that Governor Smith would sign the measure. He said the association would then approach subscribers to the memorial with a concrete proposal, complete in detail. The campaign probably will not be started until Autumn.

Tetrazzini Sues for $4,000.

Mme. Louisa Tetrazzini filed suit in the Supreme Court yesterday against the Oratorio Society of New York to recover the $4,000 she was to receive for singing at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory on April 11 last. The contract was cancelled by the society because Mme. Tetrazzini did not appear the day before for a rehearsal, and Mme. Schumann-Heink was engaged in her place.

DANSEY CASE DELAYED.

Defendants in Murder Case to Insist That Prosecutor Act.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 21.—Counsellor G. Arthur Bolte went to Hammonton today presumably to confer with Charles E. White and Mrs. Elizabeth Jones, son and housekeeper of Councilman White, who are at liberty under bail under the charge of complicity in the mysterious death of four-year-old "Billy" Dansey, who disappeared Oct. 8 last. His skeleton was found in the woods later not far from his home.

A writ is to be sought to compel Prosecutor E. C. Gaskill, Jr., to move the case or discharge the defendants from bail.

Prosecutor Gaskill stated today that he had no plans to move the Dansey case before the Grand Jury which meets tomorrow, as was generally rumored. "Nothing will be done until certain threads of the evidence now under investigation have been run out to the end," he continued. "Not until then will the matter be presented for action."

Did You Ever Borrow Money from a Bank?

Suppose you borrow $5000. You put up good, seasoned securities as collateral, say, $10,000 worth. Now, let us assume you pay off $2500 on your loan. You are then privileged to reduce your collateral accordingly.

But the collateral behind Prudence-Bonds, which consists of the highest type of income-producing real estate, is never reduced.

Our mortgages on these income-earning properties, underlying Prudence-Bonds, are all the time being reduced by periodical payments, but the mortgage remains the same.

And this is only one of many, many features of strength that makes 6% PRUDENCE-BONDS the premier real estate investment of their kind.

PRUDENCE-BONDS ARE ISSUED IN DENOMINATIONS OF $100, $500, and $1,000. WE PAY THE 4% NORMAL FEDERAL INCOME TAX.

MERCHANTS REPORT AGAINST BONUSES

State Chamber Records Approval of Generous Provisions for Maimed.

BURDEN TOO HEAVY, IT SAYS

Adopts Resolutions Favoring National Budget Bureau in Treasury Department.

The Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York went on record yesterday as opposed to State and Federal blanket bonuses to veterans of the World War, but at the same time approved of generous provisions for those who were disabled and for the dependents of those who died in the service of the country. In addition the Chamber adopted resolutions favoring the putting of the National Budget Bureau in the Treasury Department instead of being an independent bureau directly responsible to the President.

It also recommended that the term of office of the Controller General be permanent; that salaries of Budget Bureau officials be adequate, and approved the McCormick bill. The report of the Chamber's Special Committee on a National Budget on the question of soldier and sailor bonuses says "the grand total for Government expenditures this year was originally estimated at $6,000,000,000, and that it is now estimated that these appropriations will be reduced by about $1,500,000,000, leaving a total of $4,500,000,000 to be derived from taxation. In addition to these appropriations, the Government's present floating debt is about $3,000,000,000.

"It is estimated that the proposed legislation for blanket bonuses will require about $2,000,000,000, which brings the total to be derived from the taxation for 1921 up to $6,500,000,000.

"The estimated Federal revenue for 1920-21 being only about $4,600,000,000," continues the report, "the revenue necessary to pay the proposed blanket bonuses must be obtained by one of the following methods: A retroactive excise tax on war profits, a revival of the rates levied for the year 1918, a heavy tax on luxuries, a general sales tax and another bond issue.

"Any one of these methods would mean an increase in the tax burden upon the business of the country, a burden that is already stifling enterprise, which, in whatever form it may take, will add to and protract the present inflation.

"The origin of a proposal for blanket bonuses for ex-soldiers seems to have been largely political and inconsistent with the avowed principles of the American Legion, and is contrary to the spirit of patriotism which animated the American Expeditionary Force, the proposal is neither just nor expedient."

The Chamber of Commerce says it regards with grave concern the apparent breakdown of the Federal Board of Vocational Education and the Bureau of War Risk Insurance, and invites the attention of Congress to this situation.

UNCONCERNED OVER LIBERTY BOND SLUMP

Treasury Officials Say Small Investors Can Profit by Corporations' Necessities.

HUGE HOLDINGS SACRIFICED

Several Factors Contributing to Depress Temporarily Prices of Government Securities.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Treasury officials are not alarmed by the drop in the Liberty bond market. They said tonight that they believed the Government bonds would not only weather the strain, but would "come back" to the extent that they would be the soundest securities in the bond market.

Various causes were assigned by officials for the depression in bond prices. The chief was the probability that banks were beginning to tighten up on customers who appear to be indulging too heavily in speculation. News has reached Washington that some banks are not only refusing further loans to speculators, but are even advising those hard pressed to meet their obligations by liquidating their Liberty bonds.

Another cause assigned for the slump is the fear of the public that Congress will authorize the soldier bonus, which would result in pressure on the Liberty bonds. In addition, the public believes that Congress is spending too much money, and this also has a tendency to keep prices down. The Japanese financial panic and the alleged dissension among the Allies over the policy toward Germany are also called depressing factors.

Federal officials point to the fact that stock operators have sold many bonds within the last few days to meet the demands of the dropping market. This unloading would immediately affect the price.

The statement was made here tonight that some of the largest corporations had disposed of big holdings of Liberty bonds recently. Treasury officials regret this policy, but feel that if corporations can afford to take a loss on the bonds while continuing to pay a high excess profit tax, there is always the opportunity for the small investor to buy the bonds at the lower price and hold them until they rise.

"Remember," said one of the Treasury experts tonight, "that for every bond that is sold there is a buyer. And I believe these new buyers are going to hold on. Personally, I have never felt so optimistic about the Liberty bond market as I do now. I do not mean that the market will not fluctuate, but the bonds are solid and the best security in the world.

"There is too much speculation. Too many people are indulging in hazards. And many people are tied up in speculative enterprises so that when they are caught they turn at once to their most available assets—the Liberty Bonds—and cash them in, not caring whether they lose a point. But, I tell you, I consider Liberty bonds at the prices today nothing less than a wonderful buy."

FEARS PENSION COST OF $25,000,000,000

Thomas Assails Bill in Senate—House Leaders Prepare to Push Bonus Legislation.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—A prediction that future generations would be called upon to pay $25,000,000,000 to World War veterans and their dependents was made today by Senator Thomas, Democrat, of Colorado, in a debate on a bill providing an increase of $50 a month to civil war pensioners.

In opposing the measure, Senator Thomas declared that those who were in the war with Germany were making "an onslaught on the Treasury," and that their bonus demands had "smeared American public spirit with the dollar mark."

Senator King, Democrat, of Utah, leading the fight on the bill, asserted that it would add $85,250,000 to the present pension budget.

The debate became so protracted that a vote was put over until tomorrow.

After a conference today, Republican leaders in the House said that soldier relief legislation would be taken up May 3 under a suspension of the rules with debate limited to forty minutes and permission refused for the offering of either amendments or substitutes.

LAWSON AND OTHER BOSTON BROKERS FINED

Pleading Guilty to Breach of Statute on Mining Stocks, He and Van Riper Pay $1,000.

BOSTON, April 21.—Thomas W. Lawson and L. C. Van Riper were fined $1,000 each in the Municipal Court today for violation of the State statute concerning the advertisement of mining stocks.

Lawson and Van Riper, together with several curb brokers, were arrested recently in the campaign of Attorney General J. Weston Allen against illegal advertising of stocks.

Lawson pleaded guilty to the complaint, which contained thirteen counts. He was fined $100 on each of ten counts, and three were placed on file. The complaint against Van Riper contained ten counts, to which he pleaded guilty, and he was also fined $100 on each count.

Attorney General Allen urged a jail sentence or the maximum fine of $2,000 for Lawson.

William R. Fitzgerald was fined $400 and George L. Ware $100 on similar charges. Several others who have been convicted or have pleaded guilty previously have been fined $100 each. Everett C. Tarr and Daniel E. Samuel withdrew appeals and paid fines of $400 each, previously imposed.

VOLUNTEER BOARD PLANNED FOR CRISIS

State Chamber of Commerce Suggests Committee of Ten to Keep Traffic Going.

MOVE TO PROTECT PUBLIC

Outlaw Strike Results in Proposition to Organize Citizens for Emergency.

The Chamber of Commerce of the State of New York yesterday decided that it would provide for the meeting of any emergency such as the one recently existing in the outlaw railroad strike by adopting resolutions which allow for the appointment of a special Committee of Ten on Public Welfare which shall draw up a plan of organization and co-operation, as the result of which the public may volunteer services and maintain channels of communication and transportation. E. H. Outerbridge presented a resolution, which was adopted. It says in part:

"An irresponsible minority of the population of the United States has been organized with the purpose of making unreasonable demands, interrupting the normal channels of communication and of public service, pursuing a course of action inconsistent with our form of government, thus imperilling the structure of government and the structure of society as a whole.

"Resolved, That the President of the Chamber of Commerce be and he is hereby authorized and requested to appoint a special Committee of Ten on Public Welfare, whose duties shall be to draw up a plan of organization and co-operation whereby the public may, by volunteer service, aid in maintaining the usual channels of communication and of transportation of passengers, food and fuel, in the uninterrupted use of public utilities and in assisting the duly constituted authorities in preserving law and order."

ASKS WIDER EXPORT FIELD.

Allen Walker Tells Manufacturers Europe Gets Too Much Attention.

Foreign exchange conditions and business conditions in this country were discussed yesterday at a luncheon of the American Manufacturers Export Association at the Hotel Pennsylvania, by ten leaders representing different commodity groups. After the speeches, Allen Walker, Manager of the Foreign Department of the Guaranty Trust Company, summarizing the situation, said: "It is natural that our exports should be curtailed to those countries which are no longer able to make payment in the form in which we demand payment, and it is time that this was brought home as a lesson to the American exporter, who might have his attention distracted a little from countries where markets are not logically permanent for the United States, and turn to those markets which are permanent markets of this country. We should turn to markets which are able to take our gold, such as South America, and the Far East. Our exporters have been concentrating far too much of their attention upon Europe itself.

National American Bank Opens.

The National American Bank opened yesterday in its newly built quarters at 5 West Fortieth Street. The bank has a capital of $1,000,000 and a surplus of $500,000. Julian W. Gerard, brother of ex-Ambassador James W. Gerard and ex-Vice President of the Columbia Trust Company, is President, and H. I. Stevens Vice President and Cashier. Among the Directors are Lawrence H. Billman, Wilbur C. Fisk, Frank P. Gallagher, William B. Joyce and John H. Towne.

Keep on Turning
Many investors have added materially to their income by turning frequently their short term bonds bought during this readjustment period.
If you exchange your 7% bonds two or three times during the year you can often combine a high degree of safety with a yield usually obtained only in speculative securities.

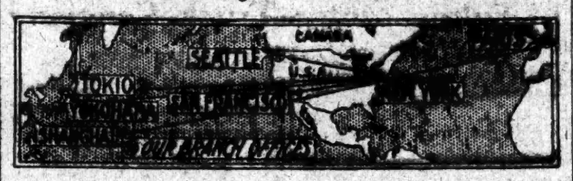
SEATTLE
A Gateway to the Orient



SEATTLE is located on one of America's finest harbors, capable of docking the largest ships afloat. This fact, together with the city's relative nearness to the Orient, and its position as a pivotal point in a region of vast industrial production, renders it of strategic importance in world commerce.
More than $580,000,000 worth of foreign trade is now handled by Seattle annually. To and from its shores operate 65 steamship lines, including the largest merchant fleets of Japan, and it is the terminus for four great trans-continental railroads.
In Seattle is maintained a branch of the Park-Union Foreign Banking Corporation, offering its full facilities to American business men engaged in the development of trade with the Far East.

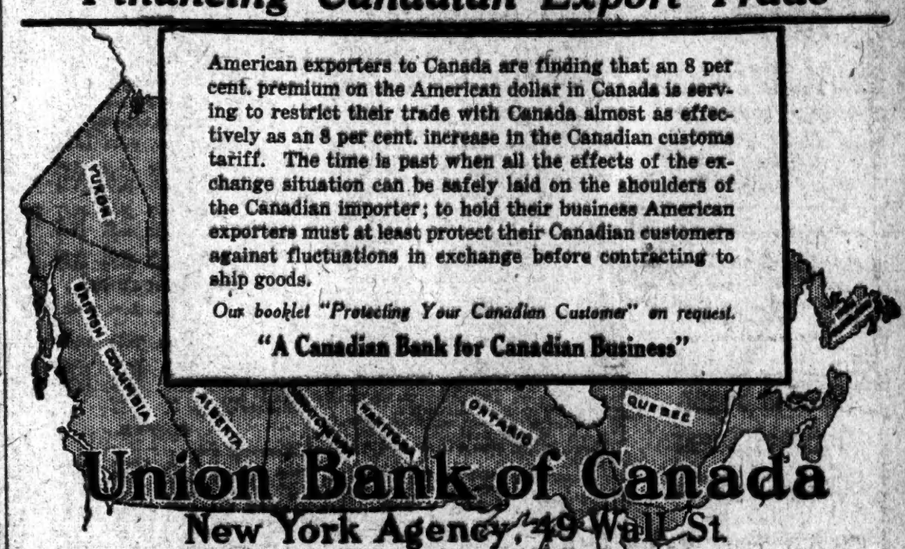
Financing Canadian Export Trade



American exporters to Canada are finding that an 8 per cent. premium on the American dollar in Canada is serving to restrict their trade with Canada almost as effectively as an 8 per cent. increase in the Canadian customs tariff. The time is past when all the effects of the exchange situation can be safely laid on the shoulders of the Canadian importer; to hold their business American exporters must at least protect their Canadian customers against fluctuations in exchange before contracting to ship goods.

MARKET NEAR PANIC AS COTTON DROPS

Unsettlement from Stock Exchange Reports Causes Slump—Spots Fall to 41.75.

The bad break in the stock market and the unsettlement attendant thereupon caused an equally sensational break in the cotton market in the afternoon. In the early part of the day the market was steady and at first it was inclined to advance. The Liverpool market was steady for futures, although spots sold off 25 points to the basis of 26.39d, the lowest price touched thus far this year, and both private crop reports and the Government's weekly weather report were of the sort usually regarded as strongly bullish, the former giving an account of fresh damage done to the cotton belt and the latter bearing out earlier private reports of unfavorable conditions.

On this bullish inspiration the market started firm and during the morning advanced 15 to 20 points, with the distant months doing slightly better than the near months. But after these high prices had been recorded the market began to lag off and as Wall Street and commission houses started unloading prices fell rapidly. The declining pace was accelerated after the turn of the day when the stock market went into its worst slump and losses ranging to as much as 100 points net and to more than 170 points from the early highs were scored.

At one time the market became almost panicky, with offerings coming in from all sides and with virtually no takers. This state of affairs, however, was corrected before the market got completely out of hand and at the close the list was up 15 to 28 points from the extreme low. It was not much of a rally, of course, but it at least served to check the decline and left the market in what probably was a better condition than it had been in during mid-afternoon. A great many stop orders were caught on the way down and the elimination of these, together with the short interest created around the ring, left the technical position somewhat better than it had been.

Spot prices here fell 100 points, to 41.75. In the South some of the leading spot markets, including Galveston and Houston, were closed for local holidays, while in other markets there were only nominal changes in quotations. At Little Rock, Dallas and Fort Worth the only severe breaks occurred, these amounting to 75 to 100 points. In the trade, however, it is expected that many of the Southern spot prices will have to come down on the readjustment, although it is reported that the trade position for actual cotton still is strong.

Scarcity due to the strike has caused an advance in blast furnace coke from $10 to $11.

It now develops that probably 200,000 tons of rails have been bought at $57. Meanwhile such track accessories as spikes and track bolts are moving at $4.35 and $6 for 100 pounds respectively. Of the 76,000 tons of Bessemer rails bought from the War Department some time ago about 60,000 tons have been sold for export.

The Iron Trade Review says:

Stagnation of iron and steel operations has extended itself steadily during the past week and at present the iron and steel industry, struggling against the strike handicap, is scarcely able to make a 50 per cent. showing. While the primary cause of this tie-up is beginning to clear up in a number of directions, the cumulative effects of the congestion are continuing and it is feared that further contraction of output will result and some difficult times must be faced before production can be restored. Coal apparently is the key to the situation, since plant reserves rapidly are being exhausted to maintain only fractional operations and some time must elapse before these are replenished to the point required to sustain normal activities.

BLAMES NEW YORK BANKERS

Argentine Paper Resents Refusal to Renew the $50,000,000 Loan.

BUENOS AIRES, April 20.—La Razon, commenting on the fact that the British Government was loaning Argentina $50,000,000 to pay off a loan of the same amount by New York bankers, after the latter had refused to renew it, criticises the lack of indulgence on the part of the North American financiers. The newspaper says this means that Argentina in future financing will turn again to England, "the traditional indulgent Mecca of our country." La Razon continues:

"Our brief excursion to North American banks during the war has been instructive. The new lenders had not the least consideration for the exceptional situation through which we were passing and twice repeated the same song: 'If maturities are not paid Argentina's signature will be protested and her name posted on the slate of delinquent debtors on the New York Bourse.'

"In paying the loan of $25,000,000 in 1917 it was necessary to violate the organic law of the bank of the nation, and this time it is necessary to apply to the gentle consideration of the English Government in order to fulfil delivery of the $50,000,000 due shortly. It meant nothing to the Wall Street bankers that this country had been their best cash client."

The newspaper adds that the Americans took no account of the fact that the Argentine Government permitted branch banks to operate here and grow prosperous.

An official of one of the largest international banks of this city, with branches in South America, said yesterday that the criticisms of La Razon were not supported by the conservative financial interests of Argentina. Payment of the $50,000,000 loan was due next month, he added, was being arranged without friction or disturbance of any kind between financial interests here and in Buenos Aires.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

The Liberty National Bank has organized a trust department under the direction of Donald D. Davis, with special facilities for investigating and reporting on the condition of industrial properties. Harvey D. Gibson, President of the bank, has been elected a Director of the Royal Indemnity Company.

Burr C. Chamberlain and William M. St. John have been elected Vice Presidents of Gaston, Williams & Wigmore.

Robert Winsor has been elected a Director of the General Asphalt Company to succeed the late James Lewis Rahe.

Paine, Webber & Co. are offering bonds of the Argentine Government 4 per cent. external loan.

Cabled advices received yesterday stated that Directors of the Anglo-South American Bank, Ltd., at a meeting in London had recently declared a special dividend of 20 per cent., to make up arrears caused by reduced dividends during the war. An interim dividend of 12 per cent. was also declared.

IRON AND STEEL REVIEW.

Stagnation in the iron and steel industry brought about by the railroad strike will not be overcome for many days according to the Iron Age in its weekly survey of conditions. This publication says:

While the end of the railroad strike is in sight, the delivery of steel products is seriously disorganized and the return to normal conditions is not expected for a good many days. Buying has been much curtailed in the past week and manufacturing consumers of pig iron and of rolled steel have been compelled in many cases to shut down wholly or in part because their fuel supply was cut off.

In all districts manufacturing has been on a much better scale than shipments. Thus raw material have been worked up only to the increase of congestion in mill yards. Some steel plants are in distress for ferromanganese and the pinch there is likely to last beyond the ending of the strike.

Scarcity due to the strike has caused an advance in blast furnace coke from $10 to $11.

It now develops that probably 200,000 tons of rails have been bought at $57. Meanwhile such track accessories as spikes and track bolts are moving at $4.35 and $6 for 100 pounds respectively. Of the 76,000 tons of Bessemer rails bought from the War Department some time ago about 60,000 tons have been sold for export.

The Iron Trade Review says:

Stagnation of iron and steel operations has extended itself steadily during the past week and at present the iron and steel industry, struggling against the strike handicap, is scarcely able to make a 50 per cent. showing. While the primary cause of this tie-up is beginning to clear up in a number of directions, the cumulative effects of the congestion are continuing and it is feared that further contraction of output will result and some difficult times must be faced before production can be restored. Coal apparently is the key to the situation, since plant reserves rapidly are being exhausted to maintain only fractional operations and some time must elapse before these are replenished to the point required to sustain normal activities.

LANDLORDS OFFER INCOME TAX PLEA

Some Call Plumbers and Other Workers to Prove High Labor Cost.

AUSTRALIAN MOVES CITED

Premier of Queensland Tells Mayor's Committee That Government Is Building Homes.

Producing a copy of an income tax report before Municipal Court Justice Edgar J. Lauer in the Fourth District Court, a realty company argued yesterday that it was justified in raising rents more than 25 per cent. because the report showed that the company had made but 4½ per cent. on its investment in the last year.

The case was that of the Elvira Realty Company, which sought to dispossess tenants in an East Fifty-seventh Street apartment house. A representative of the company also told Justice Lauer that the realty company had been put to considerable expense because of damage done by thme tenants. The case was adjourned until April 28topermit the realty company to submit additional figures.

In other cases in the Municipal Courts landlords prooduced their books in attempts to justify increases of more than 25 per cent. in rent in the last year. One case was almost all day before Justice Leary in the Sixth District Court. When the landlord raised the rent in an East Thirty-eighth Street tenement from $34 to $44 and the tenants refused to pay he sent dispossess notices. The landlord not only produced his books but brought into court plumbers, carpenters and painters to give testimony concerning the increase in their charges. As it still appeared that the landlord was earning from 10 to 12 per cent. on his investment, the increase was not allowed.

Edward G. Theodore, Premier of Queensland, Australia, was an interested spectator in the main hearing room of the Mayor's Committee on Rent Profiteering in the Municipal Building. Arthur J. W. Hilly, Chairman of the committee, explained to Mr. Theodore the working of the new rent laws and the Premier described the fair rents acts passed in Queensland and New South Wales. In about a year and a half New South Wales has spent from $15,000,000 to $20,000,000 in building homes for working people, Mr. Theodore said. The houses are let at reasonable rentals and they may be purchased on the monthly instalment basis.

Three months ago, said the Premier, the Queensland Legislature pased a similar measure. A commission has power to fix rentals. Bonuses for leases are made unlawful, the punishment being a fine up to $250.' Mr. Theodore said Australian profiteers had sent up rents 100 per cent., cottages renting for 12 shillings a week being increased to 24 shillings. The charge in Government-built houses is about 18 shillings.

D. J. Spain, Secretary of the Landlords' Protective Association, sent to Mayor Hylan and Mr. Hilly a copy of circulars issued by the Workingmen's Consumers' League of Brooklyn, calling on the tenants to organize.

Samuel Spivack, Manager of the Brownsville Labor Lyceum, the headquarters of the Brooklyn Tenants' Union, denied that either the Rand School or the Tenants' Union was active in arranging for a rent strike on May 1. He asserted there was little likelihood of a rent strike of 25,000 tenants in Brownsville and East New York on May 1.

Mr. Hilly reported that landlords in increasing numbers were asking the Mayor's committee to decide on what it considered reasonable rental for their properties. The cases will not be passed on until the tenants have an opportunity to be heard.

The Real Estate Owners' Protective Association made public resolutions calling attention to excessive prices charged during the moving seasons in the last two years by van owners. It was urged that the Board of Aldermen amend the ordinance regulating public cartmen to end such profiteering.

Magistrate Folwell in the Gates Avenue Court, Brooklyn, set April 26 as the date for the trial of Robert Wasserman, owner of an apartment house at 60 Patchen Avenue. Witnesses said that Wasserman acquired the property on April 1. Prior to that date, they said, there was plenty of heat and hot water. Afterwards the temperature in the rooms was 50 to 52 degrees. Wasserman said he was unable to get coal.

ANTI-STRIKE LAWS ASKED.

Commercial Organizations Would Prevent Tieup of Utilities.

The conference of commercial organizations of this city has asked the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to test the business sentiment of the country in a referendum upon a declaration that interruption of the service of public utilities is an attack upon public rights which should be made impossible by legislation. The request was made in a letter which says:

"Whatever may be said regarding the rights of employes in ordinary industrial operation, we are strongly of the conviction that the arbitrary cessatin f labr by employes of public utilities is a wrongful attack upon the rights of the entire people and that such arbitrary cessation should be made impossible by the enactment of proper restrictive laws."

UNEARTHED 295,977 TAX DELINQUENTS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Discovery of 295,977 delinquent taxpayers and collections of $19,031,238 in delinquent taxes and penalties were made by the Bureau of Internal Revenue during a six months' delinquent tax drive ended Jan. 31, according to announcement today. The delinquents were for 1918 and prior tax years. With the close of the current filing period, March 15, 1920, the bureau began another delinquent tax drive which it is purposed to make the most effective in the bureau's history.

During each of the six months of the recent drive, the average number of deputy collectors employed was 2,261. This force discovered that of the delinquents 181,386 had not filed income tax returns. Taxes and penalties aggregating $7,534,291 were obtained from this class. In verifying the 1,040 returns (income of $5,000 and less), it was found that 4,261 taxpayers failed to pay the full amount due. Additional taxes obtained from these amounted to $3,500,709.

The drive reached every part of the country and every class of taxpayers. In the collection districts which include New York City there were found 70,000 delinquent aliens who were returning to foreign lands. Taxes and penalties obtained from these amounted to $2,500,000. Aliens leaving this country are required to satisfy all income tax obligations up to and including the month preceding their departure.

Discovery was made of 164,591 individuals and corporations who had not filed proper returns of miscellaneous taxes, such as the luxury, admissions, excise, soft drink, etc. These paid $7,926,238 in taxes and penalties.

In its current drive the Bureau of Internal Revenue will use every avenue of information. Information returns, reports of payments to others of $1,000 or more made during 1919, will be placed in the hands of the deputies for use. The number of such returns for 1919 is approximately 7,000,000.

In addition the bureau has received 5,200,000 ownership certificates, revealing the payment in 1919 of bond interest, dividends and items of foreign income. Return of information were used to great advantage in the last drive.

NORDICA JEWELS HELD UP.

Injunction Issued Against Estate of Opera Singer.

A temporary restraining order against the executors of the estate of the late Lillian Nordica Young was issued yesterday by Vice-Chancellor Backes in Newark. The order restrains the Fidelity Trust Company of Newark, and the executors, E. Romayne Simmons and Robert S. Baldwin, from disposing of the jewels of Mme. Nordica, now in a vault of the trust company. The jewels were inventoried five years ago at $206,632, it is said, and have doubled in value since that time.

The rule to show cause and the restraining order were granted on the application of George W. Young & Co., Inc., which holds an assignment from the singer's husband, George W. Young, of his claim to the jewelry. Mme. Nordica died May 12, 1914, leaving her property to her three sisters, but Young has contested, claiming the jewelry.

ASKS METAL TRADES TO AID RAILROADS

Railway Age Editor Says Their Unfilled Orders Menace All Industries.

TELLS OF PREFERENCE NEED

Inadequate Equipment Would Mean Poor Freight Service, Checking Increased Production.

Unless the railroads receive preference from the metal trades in orders for materials needed for equipment and supply it will be impossible for them to render adequate freight service to any industry in the country, Samuel O. Dunn, editor of Railway Age, warned the members of the Metal Trades Association at their annual dinner at the Astor last night.

"While legislation for the solution of the railroad problem and the return of roads to their owners was pending," he said, "it was impracticable for large orders for equipment and materials for the railroads to be placed. Meantime industries of other kinds were rushing into the market and placing large orders. Railways are finding it extremely difficult to get these materials, principally because the market has been so largely monopolized by the automobile and other manufacturers.

"The resulting condition of the material market as it affects the transportation situation, and through it the entire business situation of the United States, is one of great seriousness. If orders which have been placed for materials by automobile and other manufacturers are to be given precedence over the orders which are now being placed by the railways and the railway equipment and supply companies, it will be impossible for the railways to render adequate freight service to any industry in the country. If the orders for railway materials are not filled as rapidly as possible, the limitations imposed by the inadequacy of means of transportation will prevent increased production in every line of industry."

Mr. Dunn attacked the contention of Director General Hines and some other defenders of Government ownership that only a small advance in rates would have been needed under continued Government operation.

"A very large advance in rates will be required to put the railway companies on their feet financially, but an even larger advance would have been needed under Government operation to stop the ever-increasing deficit," he said.

At the opening of the twenty-second annual convention of the Metal Trades Association yesterday morning, Philip C. Mohler submitted the report of the Committee on Industrial Education which called for a continuance in peace time of methods employed during the war to speed up production.

The convention will close today, after a discussion of technical matters, reports of convention committees and election of officers.

Colby Receives Ambassador Geddes.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Sir Auckland Geddes, the new British Ambassador, was received today by Secretary Colby at the State Department and was accorded the privilege of talking up Embassy matters with the department in advance of the presentation of his credentials to President Wilson.

AMERICAN SHIP SINKING, TUG GOES TO HER AID

Steamer Wayhut Sends S O S from Latitude 47 Degrees North, Longitude 7 Degrees West.

LONDON, April 21.—A report to the Lloyd Shipping Agency today says that the American steamer Wayhut is sinking in latitude 47 degrees north, longitude 7 degrees west. A tug is on the way to the distressed vessel.

A wireless message from Queenstown, received just prior to the Lloyd's announcement, stated that the tug Anglo-Saxon in response to an S O S signal was proceeding to the assistance of an American vessel, the name of which was not given, but which was reported sinking in the latitude and longitude named by the shipping agency's report.

The Anglo-Saxon, the dispatch added, was three hours' steaming from the distressed ship. The message as received in Queenstown, merely said:

"Come at once to a sinking ship."

The steamer Wayhut is a wooden vessel of 2,551 tons gross, owned by the Shipping Board and under operation of the Mallory Line in trade between Belgium, France and Gibraltar. She carries a crew of about thirty men and was built in 1918.

The last report received here of the steamer was when she left Huelva April 17 for Antwerp with a cargo of ore.

DELAY HUDSON TUNNEL BILL

New Jersey Legislature Still Deadlocked on Financial Provisions.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., April 21. — Still deadlocked over the bill providing a financial plan for construction of the proposed Delaware River bridge between Camden and Philadelphia and the proposed Hudson River vehicular tunnel between Jersey City and New York, the Legislature adjourned late today until Wednesday of next week.

Both Houses returned today to act upon the Bridge and Tunnel bill, the Annual Appropriations bill and the score of bills vetoed by Governor Edwards during the recess. The deadlock over the Bridge and Tunnel bill is caused by the Senate's action in amending the original House measure so that the $2,000,000 annual interest charges on the proposed $28,000,000 bond issue would be raised by a direct State tax instead of being withdrawn from the general State funds.

BARS MILK PRICE FIXING.

Federal Judge in Detroit Holds Part of Lever Act Invalid.

DETROIT, April 21.—A ruling by Judge Arthur J. Tuttle in the Federal District Court that Section 4 of the Lever act is unconstitutional will probably be appealed to the Federal Court of Appeals in Cincinnati, District Attorney Kinnane announced tonight.

The court's ruling was made in granting a temporary injunction to Detroit milk dealers restraining the Federal Fair Price Committee from fixing prices. The committee had ordered a two cent reduction in milk prices.

The decision, Mr. Kinnane declared, would seriously hamper Federal authorities in their campaign against profiteers.

Kelsey Motors Co. Incorporates.

TRENTON, N. J., April 21.—The Kelsey Motors Company of Newark was chartered by the Secretary of State today. The capital consists of 200,000 shares of preferred stock valued at $2,000,000 and 4,000 share sof common with no nominal or par value. The company will manufacture engines and dynamos. The Directors are C. W. Kelsey of Short Hills, Ernest B. Slade, Edward J. Churchill and M. S. Howland of Newark.

BIG LEASES CLOSED ON FIFTH AVENUE

$2,000 FRONT-FOOT RENTAL

Eight-Story Building Opposite St. Patrick's Cathedral Leased for Over $1,000,000.

The constantly increasing rental value of Fifth Avenue property in the midtown shopping zone was shown yesterday in a re-lease of 294 Fifth Avenue at a figure aggregating about $2,000 a front foot a year.

The property which is the old De Pinna headquarters, a converted dwelling just north of Thirty-sixth Street, was leased shortly after De Pinna moved to Fiftieth Street and Fifth Avenue to Lee Morris.

Yesterday Mr. Morris sold his lease contract to Klein & Jackson, the owners of the building, for $50,000, and they immediately re-leased it for a term of twenty-one years to a dealer in women's wear at $32,500 net a year. The new lease, which becomes effective in August next, was negotiated by Harris, Vought & Co. and Montgomery P. Crook.

Another important Fifth Avenue deal further north on the avenue was closed by Clark T. Chambers, who leased for the estate of Thomas R. A. Hall the eight-story building 50 by 100 at 635 Fifth Avenue.

The tenant is a merchant now located on Fifth Avenue who will use one of the stores and rent out the balance of the building to tenants. The lease is for a term of seventeen years at an aggregate rental of over $1,000,000.

The building stands on a Columbia College leasehold and is located opposite St. Patrick's Cathedral. The new lessee, who will get possession of the property Oct. 1, 1921, will occupy the store now under lease to Clark & Weinberger.

H. Frankfort sold for J. Ezra Smith to Meyer Kraushaar the private dwelling on Oak Place, Far Rockaway.

The Rickert-Brown Realty Company sold to Addison C. Thorne a Colonial dwelling on Glenwood Avenue, between Broadway and Cutter Avenue, Westmoreland, L. I., for $14,000.

Colonel House Takes Apartment.

Apartments Will NOT Be Sold—

In this new 16-story, ultra-modern, co-operatively owned and mortgage free apartment house, after the subscription lists are closed. This date is not far distant, as about $3,500,000 already has been subscribed by prominent New Yorkers, each of whom will own, and occupy an apartment in the new building.

You Still Have the Pick of Some of the Most Desirable Apartments

Regardless of the fact that a large number have been sold, an excellent selection remains on almost all of the floors as 30 per cent. of the apartments are reserved for purposes of renting to tenants, and defraying the costs of operation. Purchasers of apartments have no further rent to pay and may arrange their apartments to suit.

LATEST DEALINGS IN THE REALTY FIELD

Co-operative Purchases by Tenants' Syndicates Continue to be a Market Feature.

GROUP BUYS THE CLARENCE

West Ninety-third Street and St. Nicholas Avenue Houses Figure in Transactions.

Two more deals were closed yesterday whereby apartment house residents took over multi-family houses on the co-operative basis which has recently become so popular.

A syndicate of eighteen tenants in the Clarence, a six-story house, at 312 West Ninety-third Street, on a plot 50 by 144.9, bought the property from the Vermont Trading Company of Brooklyn. The property is between Riverside Drive and West End Avenue and is assessed at $150,000. The new owning company was represented in the deal by Gallert, Heilborn & Raphael as attorneys.

An investor bought for the occupancy of himself and several of his friends from the Morgenstern Brothers Syndicate the Florida, a six-story high-class apartment house, arranged for twenty-two families, at 1,001 St. Nicholas Avenue, northwest corner of 163d Street, on a plot 128 by 100. The structure was held at $250,000 and was acquired by the sellers a short time ago. M. B. Freedman & Co. were the brokers.

The Denwood Realty Company, B. Benenson, President, bought from a client of Feinberg & Reis, who previously acquired it from Paterno Brothers, the Colosseum, a twelve-story apartment house at the southeast corner of Riverside drive and 116th Street, valued at $450,000. The structure was erected about eight years ago and returns an annual rental of approximately $53,000. The structure stands on a curved plot, the combined frontage on Riverside Drive and 116th Street being about 152.2 feet.

Charles Galewski resold the two five-story apartments at 471-473 West 146th Street, northwest corner of Convent Avenue, on a plot 75 by 100, to the Rovalon Realty Corporation, Frederick Harling President. They were held at $125,000 and rent for about $15,000 annually. Charles A. Connor was the broker. Mr. Galewski bought the houses a couple of weeks ago from A. & J. Kearney.

Gilbert Rider sold for Adolph Fischer to Reuben Fleig for investment 723 Columbus Avenue, a five-story flat, with stores, on lot 25.2 by 85 by irregular, adjoining the northeast corner of Ninety-fifth Street. It was held at $40,000.

Pease & Elliman sold for an out-of-town client to Joseph G. Abramson the five-story apartment and store at 62 West Forty-seventh Street, on a lot 20 by 100, held at $75,000.

District Attorney Swann Buys Dwellings for Alterations.

District Attorney Edward Swann, who made a good profit recently out of the dwelling at 47 West Twelfth Street, which he sold to Arthur Garfield Hays of the law firm of Hays, Kaufmann & Lindheim, has bought three more houses at 37, 39 and 41 West Ninth Street.

These old dwellings, which were acquired from the Mamber Company, representing I. E. and Jacob W. Bermant, have been supplemented by another purchase involving 57 West Twelfth Street, which was bought from John Daniells of Daniells & Sons.

Judge Swann also purchased from the St. John estate the adjoining dwellings 53 and 55 West Twelfth Street, for which he is reported to have paid $42,000 to the estate heirs.

These dwellings have been used for boarding or rooming houses and Judge Swann, who purchased the various properties through Pepe & Brother, plans to restore them for use as private homes.

The Strength of Organization

IN these days of specialization, accountancy service can most thoroughly be rendered by organizations rather than by individuals.

Organizations, such as ours, for instance, can place at your disposal not one man, but a group of men, each able to bring to tax, auditing or accounting problems, the specialized knowledge and ability the specific case requires.

Individual service can at best bring to bear a general knowledge of many problems, but hardly a thorough knowledge of any.

NAVY'S WAR PLAN RIGHT, PRATT HOLDS

Simms Errs in Assuming U-Boats Were Our Chief Concern, He Tells Senators.

BRITISH DEFEATED THEM

Navy's Principal Mission Was with the Army and Had to Consider Problem as a Whole.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Rear Admiral Sims's criticisms of the Navy's conduct of the war were based on the false assumption that combating the German submarine campaign was the main object of the United States Navy, Captain Pratt, former assistant chief of operations, testified today before the Senate investigating committee. The chief mission of the American Navy, Pratt declared, was to organize the service of supply transportation in conjunction with the army, and to get American troops overseas safely and swiftly.

The British got the submarine situation under control in 1917, before the United States could have assisted, the witness declared, and held it to the end.

"The United States Navy was a contributing factor, but never the deciding one, in defeating the submarine," Pratt told the committee. "The department had to adjust the total naval effort so as to use our forces to the greatest advantage against the enemy as a whole. In reviewing the general conduct of the war it is difficult to see wherein the plan of campaign could be changed if we had it all to do over again."

Admiral Sims's charge that the navy was not prepared to enter the war was partially true, the officer said, because "our form of government is not adapted to getting into war quickly."

Great Britain, warned ahead of time of the probability of war, was forced to build up its military strength behind the fleet after war was declared, Captain Pratt said.

"The office of naval operations, charged with the preparation and operation of all naval forces, committed errors, some of which were stated in Admiral Sims's letter," Pratt testified, "but that it or the Navy Department in general did not enter wholeheartedly into the campaign, I can with authority deny."

Pratt told the committee Sims's testimony would give the impression that reprehensible delays by the United States in protecting merchant shipping drove the British to such straits that they could neither take care of their own supply needs nor assist in transporting United States troops and supplies. As a matter of fact, he said, Sims's own planning section in January, 1918, criticised the British for employing forty-one merchant ships of 400,000 tons as auxiliary cruisers in the grand fleet.

Sims's criticism of the department for keeping a large force at the Azores Islands was based on a misconception, the witness said, because it was necessary to occupy those islands to prevent the enemy from basing U-boats there and raiding American troop convoys.

AGREE ON SERVICE PAY.

Conferees for 31 Per Cent. Rise in Navy, 20 in Army.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—Pay increases of 31 per cent. for the enlisted personnel of the navy and 20 per cent. for the enlisted personnel of the army, with graduated increases for commissioned officers in both services, were tentatively agreed upon today by the Senate and House conferees on the Service Pay bill.

All the increases would be retroactive to last January 1. The conferees are understood to be divided, however, as to whether the advances should be made permanent.

Bulls Cause Panic in Alicante.

ALICANTE, Spain, April 21.—Twenty bulls which were to participate in bull fights escaped yesterday and injured several persons. Most of the bulls were shot and killed after causing much alarm.

NAVY ASKS MORE COAL BIDS.

Daniels Rejects Most of Those Tendered as Too High.

WASHINGTON, April 21.—The Navy Department today requested additional bids on coal. Secretary Daniels announcing in a circular letter to operators that the department had rejected most of the bids opened last week. These covered less than one-fourth of the 2,300,000 tons of bituminous coal required and showed price increases up to $1.42 over the fixed prices discontinued on April 1.

The Secretary said he had received assurance from operators that "more satisfactory tenders" would be received in the next opening, set for May 18, when it would be "possible for suppliers to quote prices free of protective margins earlier considered necessary to meet uncertainties in the industry.

Gov. Calvin Coolidge Says:

"I AGREE that the measure of success is not merchandise, but character. But I do criticise those sentiments, held in all too respectable quarters, that our economic system is fundamentally wrong, that commerce is only selfishness, and that our citizens, holding the hope of all that America means, are living in industrial slavery. I appeal to Amherst men to reiterate and sustain the Amherst doctrine, that the man who builds a factory builds a temple, that the man who works there worships there, and to each is due, not scorn and blame, but reverence and praise."
